POLA AGAIN BOMBARDED

LONDON, Sept. 5, (British Admiralty per Wireless Press.)—The Italian official communication today tells of the resumption of the battle on the Julian front and the capture of an Austrian position on the Bainsizza Plateau south of Ocroglo. In addition, 86 officers and 1,600 men were made prisoners. The communication says:

Yesterday the battle on the Julian front was violently renewed. On the Bainsizza Plateau we obtained advantages, capturing an important position southwest of Coroglo. The battle is raging northeast of Gorizia.

We captured today 86 officers and 1,600 men belonging to ten different regiments.

On the Carso Plateau the enemy, after most violent bombardment, launched infantry forces against our positions from Castagnevizza to the sea. On the northern section of the line, between Castagnevizza and Korite, the attack, after varying fortunes, was repulsed. In the centre, between Korite and Celle, our troops gallantly resisted seven furious assaults and maintained their positions.

To the south, between the Brestovizza Valley and the sea, the enemy was able to gain an initial success between Hill 146, to the northeast of Flondar and the railway tunnel northeast of Lokavac, where we were compelled to withdraw temporarily from a few advanced positions. In the afternoon by energetic counterattacks our line was re-established, with the capture of 302 prisoners, including fourteen officers.

Two hundred and sixty-one of our airplanes participated in the battle, bombing the enemy troops and their communication lines.

Tuesday night our air fleet renewed the bombardment of Pola with effective results, and returned safely to its base.

A dispatch received in London confirms the capture by the Italians of Monte San Gabriele, together with 950 prisoners, including thirty-two officers. The Italians now possess the entire chain of mountains which dominate Gorizia.

Victory on Cardona's Birthday.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—Advices by cable received by the Italian Embassy today showed that the Italian offensive on the Austrian front continued to make steady headway, but that the Austrians were bringing up reinforcements in an effort to save Trieste and check the Italian advance.

One of the dispatches received by the embassy, the text of which was not made public, stated that British and Italian monitors operating in the Gulf of Trieste had made excursions down the coast of the peninsula which runs southeast from Trieste toward the Austrian naval base at Pola, and had come within close touch of Pola. These naval operations, it was explained, were being synchronized with the activities of the Italian air fleet, which had made several flights over Pola, dropping bombs on the Austrian fleet base and storehouses and also over the military works at Pola, where a very large garrison of Austrians has been maintained.

"General Cadorna celebrated today his seventieth birthday by pushing ahead in his drive on Monte San Gabriele. The loss of this stronghold will prove a serious blow, inasmuch as the Austrian Army will have to retreat considerably.

"The Italian military critics commenting on the situation say the Italian offensive has by no means stopped. Progress is slower, owing to the greater difficulty now of moving the heavy guns up the sides of mountains, for which roads must be built, and also to the necessity of providing means of transportation in newly occupied territory and of consolidating the conquered areas.

"These operations are made all the more difficult on account of the constant increase of Austrian forces being rushed to this front to attempt a counter-offensive. The Italian command will not permit itself to be caught unprepared."

IMMENSE BOOTY CAPTURED.

Whole Convoys of Arms and Munitions Abandoned by Austrians.

UDINE, Italy, Tuesday, Sept. 4.—It is impossible thus far to give even an approximate idea of the immense quantity of booty which has fallen into the hands of the Italians since the beginning of their advance. The materials captured show the precipitation with which the Austrians fled all along the line of attack.

On the Bainsizza Plateau, near Santo Spirito and Laska, whole convoys of arms and munitions were abandoned in such haste that there was no time to destroy them. At one point thousands of boxes of projectiles, hand grenades, rockets, shoes, rifles, and helmets were strewn everywhere.

Some of the caverns are still packed

British and French Hospitals Attacked by German Airmen

PARIS, Sept. 5.—An official statement issued this afternoon says:

"Last night German aviators bombarded the new hospitals behind the Verdun front and are reported to have caused deaths and injuries.

"Bar-le-Duc also received a number of projectiles, and there were several victims among the civilian population."

LONDON, Sept. 5.—Tonight's report from British headquarters in France says:

"Last night enemy airplanes again dropped bombs on different places behind our lines. A few casualties were caused in one of our hospital areas, and there was some damage to property in the civilian zone.

"There was no damage of military importance. One of the enemy's raiding machines was brought down by our fire and destroyed."

KERENSKY SEIZES MORE PLOTTERS

WOMEN HELD AS LEADERS

Minister of Justice, Upbraided by the Premier, Resigns His Place.

PETROGRAD, Sept. 5.—In addition to the arrest of Grand Duke Michael Alexandrovitch, brother of the former Emperor, and his wife, the Countess Pahlen and the Grand Duke Paul and his morganatic wife have also been taken into custody. The reported arrest of Grand Duke Dmitri-Paulovitch is as yet unconfirmed. The arrests are the result of suspected complicity in the counter-revolutionary conspiracy for the restoration of the autocracy, concerning which the Provisional Government obtained evidence during the Moscow conference. The chief conspirators, it is said, were Mlle. Margaret Hitrovo of Tobolsk and Mme. Liubov Hitrovo of Yelaburg, members of a well-known bureaucratic family, both of whom are under arrest.

Last night the assistant commander of the Petrograd district, with a detachment of picked soldiers, arrived at Tsarskoe-Selo and read the order for arrest to Grand Duke Paul, who submitted, merely asking the reason. The assistant commander stated that it was by order of Premier Kerensky. Later the same officer visited Gatchina and arrested Grand Duke Michael and his wife.

In their home was found a mistress of the court, Mme. E. A. Narychaine, confidant of the former Dowager Empress Alexandra Feodorovna, and a Colonel Dietz. The latter was taken into custody. Mme. Narychaine was not arrested, but an immediate domiciliary search of her home in Petrograd was made and her correspondence seized. According to the Birzheviya a number of officers have been arrested and other Grand Dukes have been taken into custody. The State's attorney refuses to divulge their names. It is assumed that one of the Grand Dukes arrested was the conspirators' candidate for the throne.

According to some of the newspapers, the headquarters of the conspiracy is in Crimea, where other Grand Dukes and Duchesses and the Dowager Empress reside under surveillance. In Crimea, the newspapers say, there has been recently founded a society under the name of "Forward for the Czar and Holy Russia," which was detected organizing and training "Czarist" propagandists with the design of sending them to the front to revive monarchism in the army.

A special council was held yesterday by Premier Kerensky and the chief Ministers, at which plans for future action against conspirators of the Left and Right were drawn up.

It is stated that Minister of Justice Yardoudny has tendered his resignation. This action resulted from Premier Kerensky's displeasure over the Minister's failure to unearth the plot, which was brought to M. Kerensky's knowledge by three Bolsheviki visitors. An indictment against the Hitrovo women and their accomplices already has been drawn up.

ACCUSED MINISTER TO CZAR.

Prince Andronkoff Sought to Get Soukhomlinoff Out.

PETROGRAD, Sept. 5.—The testimony of M. Guchkoff, President of the Third Duma, against Colonel Miasoleoff in the trial of General Soukhomlinoff, former Minister of War, and his wife, charged respectively with high treason and as an accomplice in the crime, was answered yesterday by Soukhomlinoff, who declared that he had no reason to suspect the Colonel of being a spy. The former War Minister admitted receiving a number of letters reflecting on Miasolevoff, but said that he would have had no assistants left if he had dismissed everybody who was similarly accused.

Mme. Merkouloff, a cousin of Mme. Soukhomlinoff, testified concerning Mme. Soukhomlinoff's unhappy childhood. The father deserted the family, she said, leaving them poor, and Mme. Soukhomlinoff finished her education with great difficulty. She supported herself and her mother, refusing help from her father. She married a rich house owner and left him after one day, eventually returning to him and living unhappily several years. The witness recounted how her cousin attempted suicide after her husband had beaten her, and that she finally left him, obtained a divorce and married Soukhomlinoff. The Soukhomlinoffs, according to the witness, lived simply, and she added that, although Mme. Soukhomlinoff dressed well and spent much time

PROCLAIMED AS BIG VICTORY

RUSSIAN RETREAT GOES ON

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Tuesday, Sept. 4, (via London, Sept. 5.)—Berlin's houses are beflagged today in honor of the capture of Riga, and the crowded streets present a festive aspect. The people heard first of the occupation of Riga last night, when at 9:30 o'clock all the church bells of Berlin suddenly began ringing their song of victory. Thousands gathered around the churches and were told what had happened at Riga.

At some churches the clergymen improvised celebrations, as, for instance, at the Queen Louisa Church, Schoenberg, which was filled to overflowing in a few minutes. The gathering was addressed by the pastor and sang many patriotic songs, in which thousands outside joined, while the great organ and church bells accompanied.

The newspapers today are full of descriptions of Riga and its history, the famous Baltic port being claimed as German, having been founded by merchants of Bremen about the thirteenth century, and always preserved its German character, though only two-fifths of the population are German. Most of the rest are Lithuanians and Esthians, the Russians forming only a very small colony.

Berlin is especially proud of this victory because General Oscar von Hutier, whose troops first entered Riga, lived most of his life in Berlin, where, before the war, he commanded the First Division of Guards. He is just 60 years old and of French descent. His grandfather, Jean Hutier, died in 1804 as Captain of the Imperial French Army.

Great Battle Victory Claimed.

Of the many articles by military writers on the fall of Riga, perhaps that of Lieutenant General Baron von Ardenne in the Tageblatt is the most interesting. He says:

"As a military action the fall of Riga presents a first-class warlike deed. It had been planned some time ago, and very circumspectly, but had to wait for a convenient day. The Russians, too, had prepared for this attack for a long time. They had erected on the western shore of the Dueno a formidable bridgehead in the shape of a semi-circle of a radius of thirty kilometers, extending beyond the River Aa. The Russian positions at the last-named point were evacuated a few days ago, thus shortening the line of defense considerably and increasing its formidability. Fully nine Russian divisions of infantry were employed in defense of this bridgehead. Extending upstream to Friedrichstadt, there were four more infantry divisions and one cavalry division. Altogether the Russians had assembled fully 150,000 men.

"The bridgehead itself was occupied by the Sixth and Second Siberian and Third Russian Army Corps and one brigade of Lithuanians, while the adjoining fortifications were occupied by the Twenty-first Russian Army Corps and two brigades of the Lithuanian Corps, not counting troops at the mouth of the Dvina. This extensive bridgehead formed a dangerous salient for a Russian aggression toward Mitau, Tuckum, and, furthermore, against the East Prussian frontier. The eastern shore of Dvina is dotted with fortifications and the two shores of the River Jaegel in themselves represent very strong lines of fortifications.

"It required heroic determination to attack this position with a less numerous army. The German troops advanced against Riga and the bridgehead at the road which, leading from Mitau, crosses the Tirul swamps, but the main attack took place at Duenahoff in the country around Uxkiell. After terrific fighting four positions heavily protected by wire entanglements were taken, and on the first day of the battle Riga's western suburb and the River Little Jaegel fell into German hands. The Russian commanding General left Riga hurriedly that same day. Riga was captured Sept. 2, and the German troops drove the Russian Armies before them across the River Great Jaegel.

The enemy fled in a northeasterly direction with a haste that easily explains the comparatively small number of prisoners captured by the Germans. But the booty of war material at Riga was enormous.

"Meanwhile the German cavalry has cut off the Russian fortress garrison at the Duena's estuary, and German U-boats will prevent them from leaving by sea. The fall of this fortress may be expected within a few days. The enemy's line of retreat along the River Great Jaegel is now under permanent fire by German artillery."

Called Annexationist Triumph.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, Sept. 5.—The capture of Riga is at the same time a victory for the annexationist party in Germany, and one which is being used in every possible way. Reventlow concludes a column of discussion by: "Leadership, will to victory, making the most of victory—those are the aims and means with which the German Empire can be saved from Germans, [meaning the majority party,] and will be saved. As soon as this is recognized by the German people it is all that is needed."

Professor Schieman, one of Germany's most famous critics on foreign affairs, declares that the war is now to be won.

Germans Use Wilson Note to Spur War Loan, Can't Separate People From Me, Says Kaiser

AMSTERDAM, Sept. 5.—President Wilson's reply to the Pope is being turned to account in Germany for propaganda purposes in connection with the seventh war loan, which has been announced for mid-September. From all indications money-raising efforts are to be made on an unprecedented scale, especially in the rural districts and in connection with ecclesiastical property and other trustee funds.

The Merchants' Guild of Berlin has issued an appeal to the nation to show its determination to stand by the Emperor by record subscriptions.

Lubeck has joined Hamburg and Bremen in the manifestation of loyalty to the Emperor, and has sent a message to him, denouncing "the miserable and clumsy effort of the President of the United States to drive a wedge between the Kaiser and the people."

The German newspapers continue their voluminous comment on President Wilson.

The Cologne Volkszeitung suggests a series of mass meetings to make clear to President Wilson that the German nation "scornfully rejects his insinuations."

The Cologne Gazette prints a vehement article from a contributor, in which it is said that Germany will make peace with all her enemies, but not with the United States until the latter liberates itself from "its corrupt and plutocratic dictatorship, especially of Wilson and Lansing."

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, Sept. 5.—Replying to the resolutions of the Bremen Chamber of Commerce, protesting against the Wilson note, the Kaiser telegraphed: "Warmest thanks to the Bremen merchants for their patriotic declaration. The knavish plans of the enemy have hitherto with God's help shipwrecked on German strength and steadfastness. German loyalty will bring to nought every attempt to separate the German people and their Kaiser."

11 KILLED, 62 HURT IN LONDON AIR RAID

THIN HAZE HID AVIATORS

Complaints Made in Press Forecast of More Assaults and Crowds Call for Reprisals.

LONDON, Sept. 5.—The first moonlight air raid over the London district occurred about midnight last night. The official list of casualties comprises eleven dead and sixty-two injured.

One bomb fell just outside a hospital, another smashed through a theatre, and still another hit a retail store in which a number of girls were sleeping. Notwithstanding the moonlight, nothing could be seen of the raiders, although their engines could be heard overhead. That they were invisible was perhaps due to a slight haze. The raiders were constantly shelled by anti-aircraft guns, and several British machines took the air to attack the invaders.

The streets were practically deserted at the time of the raid, it being long after theatre hours. The few late street cars that were running either put out their lights or stopped. A message from a southeastern district says that apparently the invaders crossed the North Sea in three successive groups, and that all were severely shelled both arriving and returning.

Raiders Flew in Groups.

The official announcement follows:

Enemy airplanes in considerable numbers crossed the southeast coast over a wide area between 10:30 P. M. and 2 A. M. last night. The raiders seemed to have traveled singly or in groups of from two to three machines, for which reason it is difficult to estimate their numbers with accuracy, but it is possible that as many as twenty machines took part in the raid.

By 11:20 P. M. it became evident that enemy airplanes were approaching London, and at 11:45 the first bombs were dropped in the London district. From this time until approximately 1 A. M. forty bombs were dropped.

The material damage is not extensive.

One enemy machine is reported to have been brought down in the sea off Sheerness.

The raid was begun just as a brilliant moon was waning. There was no official warning, but the flashes of the searchlights gave the public an inkling that something unusual was happening and the few persons who were still about the street when the first bombs were dropped shortly before midnight quickly took to cover.

Hidden by a Thin Haze.

It is believed there were from eight to ten raiders in the first wave of the raiding forces, but they were flying so high that they were hidden by the thin haze which overhung the sky. Shortly afterward the raiders made a second attempt and this time, with the aid of the searchlights, glimpses of the airplanes could be obtained at brief intervals.

The anti-aircraft guns came into action, and according to some observers got a direct hit on one of the Germans who was flying at a height of 9,000 feet. British airplanes also were in action, manoeuvring for a battle, but the haze rendered the development of their attack invisible.

The third wave came about 1 o'clock this morning. Like its predecessors it was accompanied by the dropping of bombs. Shortly before 2 o'clock the "All clear" signal was given.

Reports received from southeast coast towns show that last night's raid was carried out by a very large number of airplanes, only a small proportion of which reached the London district.

The sound of the machines could be heard as they passed overhead. The people could see nothing of them, however, but were startled out of their sleep by the dropping of bombs and the firing of anti-aircraft guns.

In a few cases heavy bombs were used, such as are remembered to have fallen in the Zeppelin raids; but on the whole the projectiles were smaller. The Exchange Telegraph Company says that at least one aerial torpedo was used.

American Officers in Crowds.

The streets of London were filled with curious crowds until the early hours today inspecting the damage. Among the sightseers were many American army officers. More bombs appear to have fallen in the streets than hit buildings.

In several streets the sights were reminiscent of the earlier period of the war when Zeppelins paid nocturnal visits. So far as could be seen the damage was not very great and certainly no places of military importance were affected.

Among the crowds the dominant demand was for reprisals, which many believe would put an end to raids on England. Others insisted the Government take immediate steps to obtain supremacy in the air to a degree which would render raids impossible.

Referring to the Chatham raid on the previous night, The Manchester Guardian says:

"We have been invaded and have suffered greater losses of life and property than in any invasion since the Normans conquered England."

Arguing that this is not inevitable, The Guardian adds:

"We can and must achieve overwhelming supremacy in the air, which would both open an easier victory for our army and redeem our shores from outrage."

"Has Germany got her great air offensive ready before ours?" Is a question asked by a morning paper apropos

SENATE WAR TAX IS A THIRD OF PROFITS

Further Radical Amendments Beaten and Committee Schedule Adopted, 72 to 7.

CALLS FOR $1,286,000,000

Tax Graduated from 12 to 60 Per Cent.—Total of War Revenue Bill $2,522,000,000.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—The conservatives in the Senate won a distinct victory today when, by a vote of 72 to 7, the graduated war profits tax proposed by the Finance Committee was adopted. This result came after a long series of votes on various amendments to the War Revenue bill, put in by the radicals in an attempt to levy a high rate of tax on swollen war profits.

A desperate fight was put up by advocates of an extreme tax to impose a flat levy of anywhere from 50 to 75 per cent. The Senate voted down amendments embracing these drastic levies one after another.

With the war profit tax out of the way, the Senate has overcome the greatest obstacle in the part of the War Revenue bill. While there will be a persistent fight over other features, the Finance Committee expects that the bill will be reported without change.

The adoption of the Finance Committee schedule calls for a total levy of $1,286,000,000, or about one-third of this year's war and normal excess profits. This is an increase of $1,000,000,000 over present taxes.

Amendments Defeated.

An amendment by Senator Hollis, proposing to raise $400,000,000 more from war profits than the bill provides by substituting higher rates, graduated from 20 to 70 per cent., was rejected, 55 to 24.

An amendment by Senator La Follette proposing to levy $1,505,000,000, an increase of about $220,000,000, on war profits by increased rates graduated from 12 to 75 per cent. was voted down, 56 to 23.

An amendment by Senator Johnson of California to raise the bill's two highest rates on war profits from 50 to 60 and from 60 to 70 per cent., respectively, was rejected, 52 to 28. Another by the California Senator to raise the maximum rate from 60 to 70 per cent. was defeated, 51 to 29.

Senator Bankhead's substitute for the war profits section, estimated by its advocates to raise about the same revenue, but levying on all classes of excess profits and based on actual invested capital, with an 8 per cent. exemption, was rejected, 67 to 9.

Action on the war profits section was taken in Committee of the Whole, and is subject to final review later. Today's decisive rout of the high-tax element, however, may prevent further efforts along this line, and Senate leaders say it forecasts defeat for the fight beginning tomorrow for heavier income taxes.

Bill Totals $2,522,000,000.

With the adoption of the Finance Committee's war profits provisions the bill totals $2,522,000,000, near which figure it is expected to remain. Many Senators, however, predict ultimate elimination of consumption taxes, aggregating $86,000,000; second class mail increases of $12,600,000, freight taxes of $77,500,000, and stamp taxes on parcel post packages estimated to yield about $8,000,000.

In the contest between those advocating and opposing higher taxations of war profits, which has approached high levels of Senate dissension, the largest muster of the high-tax group was twenty-nine votes. This came today on an amendment of Senator Johnson of California to increase the maximum graduated rate from 60 to 70 per cent. Supporting it were:

Democrats—Ashurst, Beckham, Broussard, Chamberlain, Fletcher, Hollis, Husting, Johnson, (South Dakota;) King, Kirby, McKellar, Myers, Overman, Phelan, Shafroth, Sheppard, Thompson, Trammel, and Vardaman—19

Republicans—Borah, Brady, Gronna, Johnson, (California;) Jones, (Washington) Kenyon, La Follette, McNary, Norris, and Sutherland—10. Total—29.

On the final vote of 72 to 7 many of the radicals voted for the committee draft.

The seven Senators voting against the Finance Committee schedule were Bankhead, Borah, Gronna, Johnson, (California,) La Follette, Underwood, and Vardaman.

War Profits Tax Provisions.

As now written into the bill, the war profits section strikes out the House provision for an additional tax of $200,000,000 and is a substitute for the present excess profits law, now yielding $226,000,000. The total levy of the new provision is estimated at $1,286,000,000.

It also extends the tax to ordinary, normal peace profits in excess of 10 per cent., in addition to excessive war profits, reached by graduated rates, amounting to surtaxes ranging from 12 to 60 per cent. The excess is based upon the net income above $5,000 of corporations, partnerships, and individuals in trade or business over the average of 1911, 1912, and 1913—the pre-war standard—with a minimum exemption of 6 per cent. of

DRAFT VANGUARD REPORT FOR DUTY AT CANTONMENTS

AFTER SKULKERS HERE

Strict Inquiry Started to Unearth Those Who Have Evaded Conscription in This City.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—Selective service soldiers representing contingents of the first 5 per cent. of the draft for the new national army began to arrive at national army cantonments today and some of them tonight were in uniform. Reports to Brig. Gen. Enoch Crowder, Provost Marshal General, indicated that the mobilization was proceeding smoothly.

The War Department is making every effort to keep secret the movements of the trains which carry these troops to their camps. With that end in view another appeal was issued to the press by the department tonight as follows:

"The only restriction that the War Department asks to have placed upon news of the mobilization of the national army at the cantonments is that of secrecy concerning train routes and train schedules. The publication of destination is permissible."

General Crowder has sent to the Governors of all States this telegram:

To Governors of all States:

The President will not, for the present, issue any special regulations covering appeals to the President. Appealed cases will be sent by District Boards to State Headquarters for transmission to the office of the Provost Marshal General for the action of the President.

Some cases appealing matters within the original jurisdiction of local boards have been forwarded him. This is, of course, in error. In such matters the decision of the District Board is final, and only matters within the original jurisdiction of the District Board may be appealed to the President.

CROWDER.

Another telegram sent by General Crowder to all Governors read:

Governors of all States:

Drafted men cannot be permitted to choose the mobilization camp to which they will be sent, nor to go with the contingent of any other local board than that which has their registration card; but there is a class of cases presenting great hardship, where, after having been called and selected by one board, and without fault or desire to evade the requirements of the regulations, a man has removed to a far distant point and is at the latter place when his order to report for military duty reaches him. This class of cases must be cared for, but local boards must be cautioned to carefully inquire into each application made as prescribed below and to grant permission as herein provided only in cases presenting great and unusual hardships.

To cover bona fide and deserving cases the following is provided:

When a man called for military duty by his local board is, on the date the call issues, at a point outside the State and cannot return without great hardship and expense, he may file an application with the local board wherever he may be for an order to report with the contingent of such local board. Such local board will investigate the case, and, if deserving, will apply by telegram to the local board having his registration card for an order for him to report for military duty to the local board where he is. Upon receipt of such application the local board which has his registration card will treat the case as provided in Paragraph D, Compiled Rulings, No. 10, and will forward with Form 164A, as provided therein, copies of both the registration card and Form 14, but instead of forwarding one copy to the applicant, the copies will be forwarded to the local board which makes the application. Upon receipt of Form 164A, in respect to the man, the local board where the man is will notify him, and will furnish him with the necessary meal and railroad tickets, and send him to the mobilization camp to which it furnishes men after the manner provided in Paragraph D, Compiled Rulings, No. 10.

CROWDER.

Colonel I. W. Littell, in charge of the cantonment construction with the United States Government, today authorized a statement in part as follows:

"Altogether sixteen military cities have been built by the Government to house the 687,000 citizen soldiers selected for service by the draft. Of these cities seven were ready today to receive their entire quota of officers and enlisted men. These seven included Camp Taylor at Louisville, Ky.; Camp Travis, at Fort Sam Houston, Texas; Camp Lee, at Petersburg, Va.; Camp Lewis, at American Lake, Wash.; Camp Sherman, at Chillicothe, Ohio; Camp Devens, at Ayer, Mass., and Camp Grant, at Rockford, Ill.

"Seven other cantonments were ready this morning to receive all the officers and two-thirds or more of their entire quota of enlisted men. These comprise Camp Dodge, at Des Moines, Iowa; Camp Funston, at Fort Riley, Kan.; Camp Custer, at Battle Creek, Mich.; Camp Pike, at Little Rock, Ark.; Camp Dix, at Wrightstown, N. J.; Camp Jackson, at Columbia, S. C., and Camp Gordon, at Atlanta, Ga.

"The two remaining national army cantonments—Camp Upton, at Yaphank, L. I., and Camp Meade, at Admiral, Md.—have already received and are taking care of more than their full quota of officers and are ready to receive the number of enlisted men officially ordered there on Sept. 5."

Sink 23 British Ships in Week, 20 of Them Over 1,600 Tons

LONDON, Sept. 5. — British merchant ships sunk by mines or submarines in the last week numbered twenty of more than 1,600 tons and three under 1,600 tons, according to the official announcement tonight, which reads:

Arrivals, 2,384; sailings, 2,432.

British merchant vessels over 1,600 tons sunk, including two previously, twenty; under 1,600 tons, including one previously, three.

Fishing vessels sunk, none.

British merchant vessels unsuccessfully attacked, including five previously, nine.

The above report shows a gain of two vessels of over 1,600 tons from the number reported sunk the previous week. There is a decrease of two in the number of vessels under 1,600 tons.

There has been a gradual increase in the British shipping losses since the week of Aug. 12, when the tonnage was lower than at any time since early in March.

WAR POWER AMPLE, HUGHES DECLARES

He Tells Bar Association There Is Full Warrant for All That We Are Doing.

GERMAN ACTS DENOUNCED

Special to The New York Times.

SARATOGA, Sept. 5.—To all persons in Congress and out of Congress who have been expressing dread fears that the war measures of the National Administration are vitiating the Constitution of the United States, Charles Evans Hughes, former Justice of the Supreme Court, made answer tonight in an address before the American Bar Association, in which he said that ours war "a fighting Constitution" as well as a peace-time Constitution.

The rapt attention accorded to Mr. Hughes was followed by a wild burst of applause when he concluded his address in these words:

"So the Constitution fights. It was never more important than now that we should appreciate the wisdom of the fathers, as under this charter the Constitution of Washington, 130 years old, the people fight with the power of unity—fighting for the freedom of our children, that hereafter the sword of autocrats may never threaten a peace-loving world."

Dr. Robert McNutt McElroy, head of the Department of History of Princeton, stirred patriotic feeling by his denunciation of German philosophy as "black as hell itself."

Picturing the German philosophy as a creed of hate, Dr. McElroy quoted Nietsche as saying "Ye shall love peace as a means to new wars—and the short peace more than the long."

Then he quoted the hymn to the German sword:

"I have slaughtered the old and the sorrowful; I have struck off the breasts of women; and I have run through the bodies of children who gazed up at me with the eyes of a wounded lion."

"These are no parodies," said Dr. McElroy. "They are the real poems of the German soul."

Mr. Hughes said that the framers of the Constitution "did not contrive a spectacle of imposing impotency"; he reminded those who would criticise powerful war measures that "a nation which could not fight would be powerless to secure the blessings of liberty to ourselves and our posterity." He said that the Constitution gave to the Government the power to wage war. He added: "The power to wage war is the power to wage it successfully."

Then Mr. Hughes showed how the Constitution backed up the draft law; how it gave the national authorities full power to send troops abroad, to deal with treason and other war situations, and then he had this to say regarding the regulation of business:

"The extraordinary circumstances of war may bring particular business and enterprises clearly into the category of those which are affected with a public interest and which demand immediate and thoroughgoing public regulation. The production and distribution of foodstuffs, articles of prime necessity, those which have direct relations to military efficiency, those which are absolutely required for the support of the people during the stress of conflict, are plainly of this sort. Reasonable regulations to safeguard the resources upon which we depend for military success must be regarded as being within the powers confided to Congress to enable it to prosecute a successful war."

As for alleged invasions of the fifth and sixth amendments, the speaker said that the basic power given to the Government by the Constitution to prosecute a successful war was not to be considered as impaired by any later provision or amendment to the original document. In reply to those who feared the President was getting too much power, he said it should be remembered that these were war times and that such a course was necessary, to do promptly things which should be done promptly.

Rebuke for Quibblers.

The keynote of Mr. Hughes's speech, the subject of which was "War Powers Under the Constitution," was that there was too much quibbling in view of the fact that this country had to whip Germany, a large and important task. Time and time again he used the expression "a successful war," the conduct of which he regarded as more important than the voicing of individual and minority fears about the welfare of the Constitution, which, he said, "is as effective today as it ever was and as strong and binding."

"In the unusual circumstances of war, it is natural that there should be some confusion with respect to the constitutional warrant for extraordinary action taken or contemplated," he said. "Some altogether misconceive the Constitution; others vaguely fear that we are serving temporary exigency at the expense of

BIG RAID ON I. W. W. AND SOCIALISTS; HAYWOOD TAKEN

Tons of Documents Seized Throughout the Country as Evidence of Conspiracy.

GREGORY TO PROSECUTE

PLOT TO BURN GRAIN CROPS

Sabotage Conspiracy Also Charged—Seven Arrests in Cleveland—Socialist Headquarters Seized.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—After weeks of careful preparation the Department of Justice today struck at the I. W. W. and struck hard. William D. Haywood, President of the organization, was taken into custody in Chicago, but was not held on a warrant. Thousands of documents were seized in raids on the offices of branches of the order throughout the country, all of which were made at 2 P. M., central time.

At the same time Federal agents took possession of the national headquarters of the Socialist Party in Chicago, where a mass of documents was also seized.

All that is known of the department's preparations indicates that its move today contemplated the wholesale apprehension of Haywood's followers.

Attorney General Gregory withheld from announcement the details of the evidence that had been gathered by agents of the Department of Justice against individuals in the membership of the I. W. W. It was said that the move was not against the organization per se, but against the activities of the organization in violation of the law. The Government has reports that destruction of plants and other violence which would lessen the output of supplies needed in war was contemplated.

In general prosecutions are to be brought under Section 6 of the Penal Code. Under this provision, when any two persons in any State or Territory or in any place under the jurisdiction of the United States, conspire to overthrow, put down, or to destroy by force the Government of the United States or to levy war against it, or to oppose by force the authority of the Government, or by force to prevent, hinder, or delay the execution of any law of the United States, they may be proceeded against under the Criminal Code. On conviction they may be fined not to exceed $5,000 or imprisoned not to exceed six years.

Prosecutions may be begun also under the Espionage act, covering the utterance of treasonable and seditious statements, and the food control law. Prosecution under the latter law could be conducted in instances where it was shown that attempts were being made, by conspiracy or otherwise, to impede the interstate movements of foodstuffs and other commodities controlled by the Government, and needed for the successful prosecution of the war.

The Department of Justice, it was stated, has obtained evidence that the I. W. W. has made itself liable under this statute in the strikes in progress in the West, where material for Government uses in the mines and the timber regions cannot be gotten out or moved because of existing labor troubles. Every office of the I. W. W. was therefore raided today, and all papers bearing on the purpose of the officials of the organization to impede Government operations and prevent the execution of contracts for supplies needed in the prosecution of the war were seized.

Industry Hampered in West.

The members of the organization have been active in instigating labor troubles in the copper and iron mines of Minnesota, Montana, Idaho, Arizona, and other States, and have been conducting strikes in the lumber regions, including the spruce forests of Wasnington, where timber is being taken out for the construction of airplanes. A favorite device was to throw phosphorus balls from railroad trains which ignited wheat fields.

It was denied at the Department of Justice that the raids on the I. W. W. had anything to do with the activities of Mayor William Hale Thompson in Chicago in connection with the recent meeting in that city of the so-called People's Council for Democracy and Peace. A report to that effect was in circulation.

"There has not even been a suggestion in the department," said a high official tonight, "of any proceeding against Mayor Thompson. No evidence has been sought against him and none offered the department. He may have violated the law, but if he has done so we do not know it."

Agents of the Department of Justice in all parts of the country are quietly keeping watch on many other lines of activity which are regarded as being opposed to the prosecution of the war. An effort will be made to have competent persons present at meetings of organizations avowedly opposed to this war or war in general, so as to note what may be said and to determine whether or not legal steps shall be taken.

The seizure of documents was carried out in accordance with a plan perfected here by William C. Fitts, Assistant Attorney General, working under the direction of the Attorney General. A statement issued by the Department of Justice announced that the seizure of papers was made in connection with a Federal Grand Jury investigation of the Industrial Workers of the World now proceeding at Chicago.

Covington Completes Inquiry.

The department's action was taken on the eve of a report to President Wilson by Chief Justice Covington of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia, who was designated recently by the President to investigate the labor situation in the West. Judge Covington has completed his investigation, which lasted several weeks, and took him to the Pacific Coast. He will probably report personally to President Wilson tomorrow.

Whether the concerted action of Marshals throughout the country was in any way related to Judge Covington's investigation, was not disclosed. It is known that Judge Covington made a close study of the activities of the Industrial Workers of the World. Shortly after he reached the Northwest, twenty-seven leaders of the organization were arrested by Idaho National Guardsmen, the day before the time set for a general strike in Washington, Oregon, Montana, and Idaho.

The charges against leaders of the organization under arrest or whose arrest is contemplated were not made public here. It was said at the Department of Justice that these would have to be determined by the Grand Jury investigating the organization.

Investigation to be Pressed.

Officials also declined to state if indictments had been found by Grand Juries in Chicago or elsewhere against Industrial Workers of the World leaders. It was intimated that the investigation had only begun. Indications are that Federal Grand Juries in other cities also will be called upon to investigate the activities of the organization.

For many weeks the activities of Industrial Workers of the World leaders have been under the close scrutiny of the Department of Justice bureau of investigation. Scores of field workers, chiefly in the Pacific and Middle West, have devoted their undivided attention to reported attempts on the part of leaders to embarrass the Government in the conduct of the war by strikes and other disturbances called in the name of labor.

These activities have never been regarded here as a labor movement. They have been held to be political, and, in some instances, conducted with a view solely to hinder and hamper the Government in exercising its full strength in carrying on the war.

Charges of many kinds have been received by the department in connection with the organization's activities. Recently it was charged that, included in the ranks of the Industrial Workers of the World, were many Austrians who have been active in stirring up strife intended to hamper American industries, doing work handled by Germans before the United States declared a state of war existing with Germany.

Continued investigation has failed, it is understood, to connect these activities with German money. The department has ascertained the principal reservoirs of German funds in this country and, it is reported, has not connected them with recent disorders in the West and Southwest. Local United States attorneys have reported many instances of a suspicious nature in connection with alleged labor troubles, and these have been the subject of departmental investigation.

As a result of the country-wide seizure of the organization's papers, the Department of Justice tonight finds itself in possession of documents by the thousand, many of which will be submitted to Grand Juries as the basis of an investigation to determine whether leaders can be prosecuted.

HAYWOOD TAKEN BY SURPRISE.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Sept. 5.—Tons of documents were removed to the Federal Building here tonight after the Government had taken possession of the National I. W. W. and National Socialist Party headquarters, as well as made six minor raids directed at the two organizations.

Fully twenty-five newspapers and other publications, besides printing presses, plates, lists of subscribers, agents, stockholders, and officers were seized. Socialist and I. W. W. booklets and leaflets and the plates for their making were taken. Their contents will furnish evidence for the possible prosecution of their authors

From seized records and note books of both organizations representatives of the Government spent the night compiling a list of I. W. W. and Socialist speakers who have been agitating throughout the country since war began and hindering the enlistment in the national army. Who directed their speeches, how much they were paid, and by whom is being inquired into.

The country-wide raids were carried out at a telegraphed signal given from Department of Justice authorities here, operating in connection with the impaneling of a special Federal Grand Jury on Tuesday. Drastic action had been expected from the charge given by Federal Judge Evans to the jurors, in which he told them of the presence of "traitors in the country" and of the public's expectation that the jury would "act fearlessly and vigorously to protect the Government."

Early today the Grand Jury met. Shortly afterward Judge Evans issued eight "warrants of search" directing United States Marshal John J. Bradley, in the name of the President, to take action. There was a gathering of Deputy Marshals, Department of Justice agents, and city police at the Federal Building. The grand swoop was made then throughout the city, in conjunction with raids outside.

When the raiders marched into the I. W. W. and Socialist headquarters—both in West Madison Street, near Halsted Street, and but a short distance apart—there was consternation. Guards were quickly thrown about the buildings, and complete possession was taken. "Big Bill" Haywood, National Secretary of the I. W. W., was the only person taken into custody, but was not formally held on a warrant.

In all eight seizures of documents the officers were ordered to seize and produce before the Grand Jury long lists of specified evidence believed to be in the offices. It was charged that the documents wanted had been used in "committing certain felonies," they being specified as:

1. Insubordination, disloyalty, mutiny, and refusal of duty in the military and naval forces of the United States while the United States was at war with the Imperial German Government.

2. The felony of willfully obstructing recruiting and enlistment service of the United States while it was at war.

3. The felony of using the mails and postal service for the transmission of non-mailable matter advocating treason, insurrection, and forcible resistance to the laws of the United States concerning the carrying on of the war.

Tonight reports were circulated that Mayor Thompson and the newspaper which supports him, The Republican, were also to be targets of the Federal Grand Jury.

Raids were conducted at these places:

Residence of John Farley, 1,046 North Franklin Street, former member of the executive board of the I. W. W.

Print shop of Rogers & Hall, 124 Polk Street, who had been employed to do job printing by the Socialists.

In the raids District Attorney Clyne had issued general orders that no arrests were to be made unless physical resistance were met with.

MANY RAIDS IN COAST STATES.

Strongbox of Rowan, Imprisoned I. W. W. Leader, Is Seized.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 5.—Simultaneous raids on headquarters of the Industrial Workers of the World, conducted in all principal cities of the Pacific Coast by United States Marshals and Deputies today on order of the Department of Justice, resulted in the seizure of a great mass of literature, records, and documents. In no case was there any resistance.

Federal officials here said that this literature was sought by the Government as evidence tending to connect I. W. W. leaders with the German War Office.

All of the matter confiscated was taken for examination by United States District Attorneys, who will report to the department at Washington. The search warants in each case charged possession of treasonable literature.

In the raid at Spokane, Federal agents seized two strongboxes, one bearing the name of James Rowan, District Secretary of the I. W. W., who is held in jail there as a military prisoner, and the other that of Don Sheridan, said to be Secretary of a timber workers' section of the I. W. W. Rowan is the man who issued orders for a general strike of industrial workers in the Northwest to be effective Aug. 20. After his arrest the proposed strike collapsed.

The raids in the West extended from Arizona north to Washington, and east to Colorado, among the principal cities in which they were conducted were Miami, Arizona, Senattle, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Missoula, Mont.; Portland, Oregon; Salt Lake City, Fresno, Cal.; Great Falls, Mont.; Everett, Wash., and Butte, Mont. At Salt Lake City 2,000 pictures of Frank Little, who was hanged by "Vigilantes" at Butte recently, were seized.

The I. W. W. agitation in California, Arizona, Washington, Oregon, and Montana has included demands for high wages and other industrial changes. Many acts of violence attending strikes and numerous incendiary fires have been laid at its doors by State officials.

SABOTAGE AND ARSON PLOTTED BY THE I. W. W.

Schemes to Burn Crops and Wreck Machinery Discovered by Federal Agents.

From a source of undoubted authority a TIMES reporter learned here last night that the rounding up of the Industrial Workers of the World in various parts of the United States follows the revelation of a country-wide plot, the purpose of which included not only the destruction, as far as possible, of the wheat and corn crops of the West and the disorganization of the mining industry, specially the copper industry, but the commission of a multitude of crimes, all intended to hamper the successful prosecution of the war against Germany.

As the result of months of quiet work by the Secret Service agencies of the Government the complete ramifications of the plot are now in the possession of the Department of Justice.

That German spies have figured in the working out of details of the conspiracy against the Government and people of the United States there is no doubt whatever among the Federal officials who have been investigating the matter. The scheme failed to materialize, in their opinion, solely because of the efficiency of the investigating services of the Government in Washington. The agents of these services have penetrated into the very nests of the conspirators in order to obtain the information they sought.

William D. Haywood, the one-eyed leader of the I. W. W. hosts, has traveled extensively through those sections of the country where the I. W. W. is strongest. It has been noted that always after one of Haywood's visits to a community there was renewed activity and agitation on the part of agents of the I. W. W. leaders.

Sabotage and fire were to have been the principal weapons of the I. W. W. in the destruction of a considerable part of the food supply of the United States and the Allies. The plans of the conspirators contemplated the wrecking of farming machinery, especially wheat harvesting and threshing machines. This was to be accomplished by placing trustworthy members of the organization in the employ of farmers as laborers, after which the "I. W. W." farmhands would take advantage of the first opportunity to drop pieces of metal and rocks into the machines. In the event the act was not detected, this would mean the wrecking of the harvester or other machine in less than five minutes after it began to operate. It was also permissible for the agent of the plotters to remove one or more vital parts of the machine if he had the chance.

This was the sabotage part of the plan, and had the plotters ever got to work it would have meant, an official of the Government stated last night, the loss of millions of dollars' worth of wheat, oats, rye, and other grains. Failing to win by the wrecking of machinery or sabotage, the plotters were to resort to fire and set the great fields of the West ablaze. The destruction of grain elevators is also said to have figured in the plans, and in this instance the weapon was to have been incendiarism.

The plans of the plotters did not end with the destruction of the bread resources of the country and tying up of great mines, the output of which is essential to the successful prosecution of the war. This also included the oil and coal industries. Strikes and sabotage were to be the weapons there. Interference with the shipping end of the oil business was also contemplated. A fact which was asserted several weeks ago when Frank Tobin, one of the agents of the I. W. W., were arrested in the Standard Oil works in Bayonne following an effort on their part to stir up trouble among the crew of a certain oil tanker, which was subsequently torpedoed and sunk by a German submarine.

The strength of the I. W. W. has always been in the West. It has never been able to gain a foothold in New York. For months past, and at the present time, the organization has been working under cover in New York on an eleventh-hour attempt to create a formidable organization in this city. Its most recent effort was an attempt to gain the sympathy of the longshoremen, from whom there is no more important body of laborers in this country at the present time. This effort came to naught.

The organization is not generally supposed to have a New York City headquarters. But it does maintain headquarters in New York, and these headquarters are in the western part of the city, not far from the Christopher Street ferry. They had not been raided up to a late hour last night.

"Big Bill" Haywood has been a storm centre of trouble in the industrial world of America for more than fifteen years. In 1905 he was arrested as one of the men suspected of the assassination of Governor Steunenberg of Idaho. Governor Steunenberg was killed with a bomb as he was leaving his home on the night of Dec. 30, 1905. Haywood was subsequently acquitted of the charge.

Since that time Haywood has been arrested at least twice. In September, 1912, he was arrested in Boston on a conspiracy charge, and a year later he was held in Paterson for an similar offense committed during the great I. W. W. silk strike in that city. He was convicted in Paterson and sentenced to six months in prison, but never served the sentence.

GREGORY AIMS TO GET QUICK INDICTMENTS

Attorney General Promises Vigorous Prosecution of the I. W. W. Offenders.

MAGNOLIA, Mass., Sept. 5.—Attorney General Thomas W. Gregory was a guest at the Summer home of Colonel E. M. House here tonight, when he received word that raids on the headquarters of the Industrial Workers of the World in many cities had been carried out as arranged by the Federal Department of Justice.

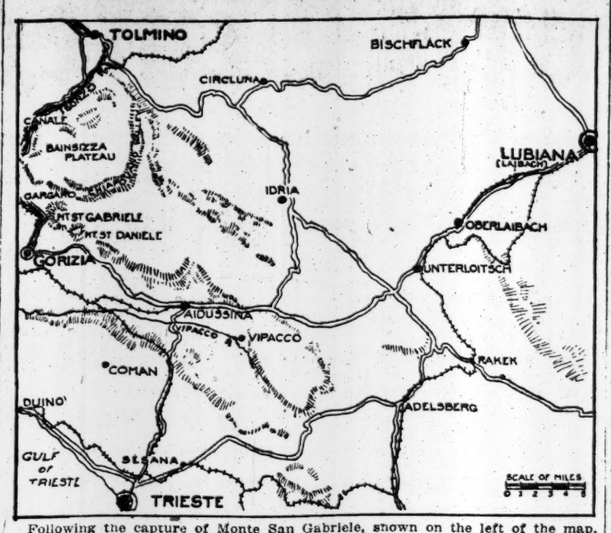
"It is no secret," said Mr. Gregory, "that the Industrial Workers of the World have been under suspicion for some time. The Department of Justice conducted a quiet investigation until I was convinced that we were warranted in taking such action as this.

"I do not need to say that the raids will be followed quickly by indictments if we find anything to warrant them, and the men will be prosecuted to the extent of the law if they deserve it.

"We have operated from Chicago as a centre because that is the headquarters of the organization. The raids extended throughout the West wherever any special I. W. W. activity had developed. In the West the I. W. W. constitutes a serious problem, but except for an occasional outcropping here and there, I do not think it is generally serious in the East."

The Attorney General declined to say what particular offenses would probably be charged, remarking only that they were included under the general term of "sedition." He left here for Maine tonight for a vacation in the woods.

Theatre of the Latest Italian Victories.



Following the capture of Monte San Gabriele, shown on the left of the map, the fall of San Daniele appears inevitable, as it is dominated by the former. Possession of these strongholds and the Chiapovano Valley, which the Italians have nearly reached across the Bainsizza Plateau, will separate the Austrian army operating from Tolmino from the army of the Carso southeast of Gorizia and open up to invasion the highway, 42 miles long, from the latter city to Lubiana (Laibach.) Lubiana is on the road to Vienna, about 200 miles away.

South of the highway a railway runs east which terminates at Aidussina, ten miles from Gorizia. At Unterloitsch, fifteen miles further east, a railway from Trieste proceeds on to Lubiana. After Monte San Daniele, the highway is bounded on the north by an almost impenetrable range for four miles. Beyond Aidussina, at Zoll, it is cut by a great highway coming from Tolmino via Sebrelje.

South of this sector stretches a gradually rising plain which a mile south abruptly descends to the valley of the Vipacco, the northern boundary of the Carso plateau. From Zoll the highway enters the Piro Forest, including which and beyond until Lubiana is reached, via Unterloitsch and Oberlaibach, the country presents few obstacles.

with Austrian dead, lying one on another. The bodies are being buried gradually.

Mule paths and the adjacent side hills are littered with unexploded projectiles which the fugitives threw away, together with daggers, swords, and iron-studded maces used for dispatching the wounded. On Hill 652 the Italians captured three 105-millimeter cannon. Two of them were perfectly serviceable, and the Italians turned them on the fleeing enemy, firing 1,000 shots.

In an armored dugout near Ravena the Italians discovered the entire equipment of an Austrian staff of brigade. The extraordinary variety of objects found testified to the haste of the retreat. It included electric lights, official documents, toilet articles, kitchen utensils, ventilators, and even love letters. Ravena was the Austrian centre of supplies for engineer troops, and nearby were found mortars of picks, shovels, hoes and wire cutters, entire outfits of electric equipments, miles of steel rails, and innumerable rolls of barbed wire.

porticoes as the shrapnel began to fall, but the moment it stopped, they hurried out to pick up souvenirs.

"The Italian is excitable. He may get very angry over ruthless assaults on his art treasures; but he has plenty of bravery." At the Claridge he found that the guests took the air raid most calmly. They walked about, smoked, and talked till the guns ceased; then they went to bed.

Speaking of his trip to Scotland, Ambassador Page said:

"I wanted to see something of the conditions in England so as to compare them with those of Italy, and I was anxious to get sight of our own people who have come over to take their place in the front line. A part of my work as Ambassador is to keep our Government informed of the difficulties of Italy. We are undertaking to help the Allies in such matters as provisioning and other kinds of relief, and we are trying to apportion our help according to the needs of each country.

"Perhaps the needs of Italy have not been as fully known and understood in the United States as those of other countries. That is partly on account of her geographical position and partly, perhaps, because of the situation which existed at the outbreak of the war. Thus it is not understood that the old triple alliance was simply a defensive arrangement and that in the earlier Balkan crisis Italy had given full warning to Austria that she would not stand by her in any aggression.

"All talk about Italy having taken the aggressive herself is sheer nonsense. She is simply fighting to free her own people from the Austrian yoke and to help to free the peoples of her allies."

The Ambassador paid a high compliment to the morale and bravery of the Italian Army:

"It is fighting," he said, "with all its soul, and its part in the actual fighting is not fully known. No country has done more than she in her field of operations. On Alpine front, and her whole front is substantially Alpine, she has accomplished the impossible, fighting her way not only up hill, but up the most impregnable mountains in Europe.

"She has pushed her line forward and it is only now that her herculean task is being understood. There are no braver troops in the world than the Italians and none has performed, in this war, greater marvels of courage and endurance."

Ambassador Page pointed out that the conditions in Italy with regard to the coal and food supply were much harder than in the other allied countries, but declared that the people at large have met them with absolute courage, knowing they were fighting in the cause of freedom.

Speaking of the work which the American Red Cross is thinking of undertaking in Italy, the Ambassador said he thought Italy was in as much need of relief as any other country and that he hoped to meet the American Commission, under Colonel George F. Watson, Jr., as soon as he returned to Rome. The commission had been paying visits to the Italian front.

"There always has been a representative of the American Red Cross in Rome," the Ambassador said, "which acted as a clearing house for the American relief work, but it has done admirable work. I look forward for great results from the American Red Cross work, as I think it will lead to a co-ordination of all the different kinds of American relief and so will reduce the expense and secure far-reaching results."

ITALIANS TO QUIT EPIRUS.

Has Been Officially Recognized as Greek Territory.

LONDON, Sept. 5.—It is reported in an Athens dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company that the Italian Commander in Chief has received orders to evacuate Epirus, which constitutes in part the southern part of Albania.

This, the dispatch says, has been officially recognized as Greek territory.

AMBASSADOR PAGE PRAISES ITALIANS

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 5.—Thomas Nelson Page, the American Ambassador to Italy, was here today on his return from a month's holiday in Scotland. He was at the Claridge during the air raid, and, comparing it with one he experienced in Venice, said:

"The attack on Venice was much more nerve-racking. The shots from the big guns in the harbor came so fast that we could not distinguish them from the bombs. It was wonderful how well the Italians took it. They sheltered under

HUNGARIAN PAPERS BACK WILSON NOTE

Two Influential Journals Indorse It Fully, Exciting Disgust of Berlin Press.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

AMSTERDAM, Sept. 5.—Hungarian opinion on President Wilson's reply to the Pope is greatly annoying the German press. AZ Est, of Budapest, which claims the largest circulation in Hungary and is a highly influential and popular journal, says:

"Every real friend of peace and every patriot must agree with the terms of the Wilson reply. By it America takes up distinctly the viewpoint of peace without annexation. That is for Hungary a most important thing. The ideals on which the answer is based are well suited to be the foundations upon which, after the war, the governments may build up a lasting peace."

The Magyar Orisag, organ of the influential Karolyi Independence Party, says:

"President Wilson, for the courage of his answer, deserves the thanks of every honest believer in peace. He who condemns Wilson's note has delivered his soul to the devil of war and is therefore an enemy of his country."

The Berliner Lokal-Anzeiger declares itself absolutely astounded at such views as these journals express. It says they appear to have no idea how insulting are Wilson's charges against the German people. "Only when Hungary is ready to submit to the dismemberment of Austria-Hungary, according to the notions of our enemies," it says, "will Hungary find salvation in the eyes of Wilson and his European friends."

The Vossische Zeitung lectures Hungary severely. The two papers mentioned, it says, appear to think that because Hungary was not especially mentioned by Wilson he will treat her with special favor. With a weak Germany, a dismembered Austria, and a partitioned Turkey, the Vossische Zeitung adds, Hungarian glory will end.

ORDERS FOREIGNERS TO GO.

Hungary, Owing to Food Shortage, Expels Persons of Means.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ZURICH, Sept. 5.—The Hungarian Minister of the Interior finds it necessary, owing to the food scarcity, to order foreigners living comfortably or luxuriously to leave the country within a fortnight, unless there are very urgent reasons for their presence in the country.

FRENCH TROOPS CHECK NEW AISNE ASSAULTS

Heavy Artillery Fire Continues on the Meuse — British Beat Off German Raids.

PARIS, Sept. 5.—German troops in the Aisne sector are making persistent attacks on the French lines but are suffering repulses, according to the official bulletins of the War Office. Heavy gunfire is going on north of Verdun.

The official communication, issued tonight, reads:

This morning, after a violent bombardment, the Germans delivered against the Californie Plateau two attacks, which were repulsed. One officer remained in our hands.

There were spirited reciprocal artillery actions on both banks of the Meuse.

The afternoon bulletin says:

After a spirited bombardment yesterday evening the Germans made an attack on the Casemates Plateau. Checked by our fire, they were not able to approach our lines.

In the Champagne we repulsed an enemy attack north of The Casque. We made a successful attack northeast of the Teton and took prisoners.

In Upper Alsace there were patrol engagements in the region of Seppois.

LONDON, Sept. 5.—The official report from British Headquarters in France says:

A strong party of the enemy endeavored to raid one of our posts east of Klein Zilleheke during the night, but was driven back by our fire with loss before reaching our position. Artillery activity continues on both sides of the Ypres battle front.

The day report reads:

A hostile raiding party was driven off by the fire of rifles and machine guns last night in the vicinity of Armentières.

A raid by the enemy at a later hour against positions held by Portuguese also was unsuccessful.

The German artillery was active in the neighborhood of Lens.

BERLIN, Sept. 5, (via London.)—The War Office bulletin issued today says:

Front of Crown Prince Rupprecht: In Flanders there has been an artillery duel on the coast, and from the Southoulst Wood the duel has increased in intensity. Up to the present there has been no infantry activity.

Front of the German Crown Prince: Before Verdun the artillery duel on the eastern bank of the Meuse increased appreciably during the day and also continued throughout the night.

MICHAELIS ANSWERS WILSON, 'NOT GUILTY'

RUSSIA TO BLAME, HE SAYS

Tells of Testimony Given at Petrograd Which Has Not Reached Allied Capitals.

AMSTERDAM, Sept. 5.—In an interview with a representative of the press the German Chancellor, Dr. Georg Michaelis, has made a statement in regard to disclosures at the trial in Petrograd for high treason of General Soukhomlinoff, former Minister of War. (Great prominence has been given in the German press recently to testimony said to have been taken at the Soukhomlinoff trial tending to show Russian responsibility for the beginning of the war. Accounts of the trial reaching this country have not contained such testimony.)

Chancellor Michaelis said:

"The statements of the former Russian War Minister and the former Chief of the General Staff (General Januschkevitch) are of the greatest importance. They are calculated completely to destroy the legend of Germany's guilt in starting the war, and they will force European opinion, if the reports are allowed to be published abroad, to revise its judgment on Germany.

"The moment at which these disclosures were made is the more favorable as we have just had knowledge of the American reply to the Pope's note urging peace. In Secretary Lansing's answer the German Government is described as an irresponsible government which secretly planned to dominate the world, which chose its own time for the war and cruelly and suddenly executed its plan; which did not heed legal barriers or truthfulness, which flooded a great continent with the blood, not only of soldiers but of innocent women and children, the helpless and the poor.

"When adopting these accusations from the Entente factory of calumnies, the American Government obviously had no knowledge of the course of the proceedings against General Soukhomlinoff. Otherwise its judgment would certainly have been quite different.

Blames the Czar's Advisers.

"It certainly is now established irrefutably that it was not Germany which chose the time for the war, but the military party surrounding the Czar, who was under the influence of France and England. It is well known that the German Emperor, who, before the war, clearly, and on every occasion, expressed his own desire and that of the German people for peace, especially regarding Russia, was surprised by the events which occurred during his pleasure trip in Scandinavian waters. Up to the last moment, in the exchange of telegrams with the Emperor of Russia and the King of England, he made the most earnest and fervent attempts in the interest of peace.

"The importance of the new disclosures is that the Czar, who had to decide as to war or peace, in fact came to the conviction, from the German Emperor's efforts, that Germany did not desire war. The consequence of this conviction was his positive order to cancel the Russian mobilization, but a couple of criminals, who belied the Czar, disregarded the order and thwarted its execution.

"In consequence of the Emperor's efforts also was the Czar's order to General Januschkevitch to give the German Ambassador, Count von Pourtales, assurances of Russia's desire for peace. The execution of this order was frustrated by M. Sazonoff, (then Russian Foreign Minister,) who obviously feared that the German Ambassador, who hitherto had done good service in the interest of peace, could perhaps take further effective steps for prevention of the threatening war.

Says Allies Incited Russia.

"Who was behind all these men? They certainly did not of their own accord plan to drive the great power of Russia, then Europe, and finally the whole world into a war of unparalleled terribleness.

"I need not remind you of the relations between General Soukhomlinoff and the French group of Chauvinists, M. Poincaré and his associates. It is well known that the election of M. Poincaré to the Presidency was a sign of an aggressive Franco-Russian alliance against Germany, and that General Soukhomlinoff was ordered to Paris to play the Presidency of the French Republic into M. Poincaré's hands. At that time in Paris General Soukhomlinoff made a statement about the Russian Army and the alterations of Russian plans for mobilization, while shortly before the war he mockingly repeated well-known articles in the Bourse Gazette of Petrograd) about Russia's perparedness. A long time previous aggressive plans against Germany were prepared by an influential political group in France, England, and Russia.

"Increasing English influence at Petrograd during the critical days July 29 and 30, (1914,) I only need to refer to a telegram of the Reuter correspondent at Petrograd and to the well-known report of the Belgian Chargé d'Affaires, de l'Escaille, which clearly show that the certainty of English support strengthened the determination for war of the leading men of Russia.

Alleges Attempt to Dupe Germany.

"While Russia thus prepared an aggressive war, and secretly mobilized not only against Austria-Hungary but against Germany, attempts were made to mislead and betray Germany in order to gain time for Russia to move her troops to the frontiers. The word of honor of General Januschkevitch will live in history, as Major von Eggeling, who at that time was the German Military Attaché at Petrograd, telegraphed the word of honor of the Chief of the Russian General Staff and expressly referred to his statement that until July 29 in the afternoon no order of any kind for mobilization had been given.

"General Januschkevitch declared to the German Military Attaché that the reassuring statements of General Soukhomlinoff of July 27 regarding the eventual Russian intentions as to mobilization were still good. Despite this, General Januschkevitch had in his pocket the prepared mobilization order. Germany was to be duped with a proposal of arbitration at The Hague Court while Russia busily continued to bring her army to a war footing for the attack which had been planned.

"In this connection the importance of the Czar's telegram to Emperor William, which was dispatched July 30 at 1:20 o'clock in the afternoon, and which announced the general mobilization of the Russian Army, is evident. This mobilization, according to the Czar's well-known ukase of 1912, meant war against Germany, and was intended to maintain the deception that the military measures which were in force were solely ordered for reasons of defense against Austrian preparations.

"The Czar's telegram also announced the visit of General Tatischtscheff with a letter to Emperor William. Where was Tatischtscheff? Can it be possible that General Soukhomlinoff and General Januschkevitch and their accomplices prevented his departure, or was the announcement of his mission only intended deceitfully to lull Germany into security?

"Fight for Hegemony of Europe."

"Germany was obliged to enter a most serious fight for the defense of her existence because she was threatened by her neighbors, France and Russia, which were eager for booty and power, which wanted to destroy her, and which were urged on by the island empire beyond the Channel because England was of the opinion that it was a fight for the hegemony of Europe, as Viscount Grey (formerly British Foreign Secretary) once said.

"England did not like to see contested this hegemony, which she believed was menaced. For this reason she supported Germany's hostile neighbors in their policy which aimed at war. Neither the German Government nor the German people, which are unshakably devoted to their imperial leader, were at that time or at any other time filled with the lust of power or conquest, as has been falsely ascribed.

"If the contrary had been true, then Germany would certainly not have allowed (to pass) the opportunity which more than once was offered, in the years which elapsed between the last war with France and the outbreak of today's world war, to begin the war under less difficult conditions. In that period of European history were moments when France was almost powerless; also moments when England and others were paralyzed by warlike complications, outside of European. Despite these facts, our hands did not seize the sword which, as Mr. Lloyd George once admitted, we were forced to keep sharp, owing to Germany's menaced position in the heart of Europe.

"Nothing else but the mischievous will of the criminal enemy war agitators forced us into the sanguinary defensive war for life and freedom. No American note can alter this historical truth, which now again is confirmed by General Soukhomlinoff and General Januschkevitch, nor can the American note shake our firm determination to fight in loyal harmony between the crown and the people for our war aims; namely, maintenance of our rights to Germany's integrity, freedom and a future of assured peaceful development, for which our heroes have now been fighting and bleeding for more than three years."

Enigma to London and Washington.

LONDON, Sept. 5.—No reports which have reached London of the Soukhomlinoff trial, either press or official, contain any revelations of testimony calculated to throw light upon the beginning of the war. Chancellor Michaelis's interview is an enigma both to the officials and the newspapers here.

The Russian newspapers reach Germany quickly, and may have contained matter not reported abroad, but thus far the German Chancellor is discussing the war from premises entirely unknown here.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—At the State Department today it was said this Government had no knowledge of any such disclosures as are referred to by Chancellor Michaelis, and was not in possession of any of the evidence taken at the Soukhomlinoff trial.

U-BOAT BOMBARDS BRITISH COAST TOWN

Three Killed and Five Injured at Scarborough—Little Damage to Property.

LONDON, Sept. 5.—Scarborough, on the English east coast, was bombarded last night by a hostile submarine, it was officially announced today. About half the shells in the thirty rounds fired from the undersea boat landed, three persons being killed and five injured, but little material damage being caused. The official announcement reads:

"A hostile submarine appeared off Scarborough about 6:45 o'clock last night and fired about thirty rounds, about half of which fell on land. Three persons were killed and five injured. The material damage was slight."

SCARBOROUGH, England, Sept. 5.—During the prevalence of the mist a German submarine appeared about two miles off shore at 7 o'clock last evening and began to bombard the town. About a dozen shells were fired in quick succession, the shore at the time being crowded with visitors.

The British mine sweepers began an attack on the submarine, and the cannonade became deafening. The submarine soon submerged and was not seen again.

The material damage inland was small, considering the fact that the bombardment lasted ten minutes. A station two miles inland was hit by a shell, but no one was injured.

Some persons assert that they saw two submarines, but the presence of more than one undersea boat has not been confirmed.

ALLIED AIRMEN BOMB MANY GERMAN BASES

Docks at Bruges Are Set Afire—French Attack Treves in Retaliation.

LONDON, Sept. 5.—Many tons of bombs have been dropped in further raids on German military establishments in Belgium, causing large fires. The Admiralty today gave out the following account of these operations:

"At midnight on the 3d inst. a bombing raid was carried out by naval aircraft on the Bruges docks, the Varsenare aerodrome and the Ghistelles aerodrome. Many tons of bombs were dropped, with good results.

"A second raid on the Bruges docks was made at noon on Sept. 4. Direct hits were observed on special targets. Many sheds along the quays were hit, and large fires which were caused were still seen to be burning when the machines recrossed the line. All our machines returned from both raids.

"On Monday afternoon, the 3d inst., an enemy aircraft spotting machine was destroyed by one of our fighter patrols and shot down completely out of control. An enemy kite balloon also was attacked and the observer was forced to jump out. Owing to the anti-aircraft fire the fate of the kite balloon was not observed."

The night report from British Headquarters in France says:

"Our airplanes have continued their bombing operations actively day and night. Yesterday great activity in the air prevailed on both sides. Our artillery machines and balloons worked all day in co-operation with our artillery in spite of vigorous attacks from hostile airplanes. A record number of aerial photographs were taken, many of them at great distances behind the line.

"Though the enemy's airplanes showed themselves disinclined to meet our fighting machines unless well to the east of the line, five hostile machines were brought down in combat and nine others were driven down out of control. Seven of our machines are missing."

PARIS, Sept. 5.—An official statement issued today says:

"On Sept. 4 five German airplanes were brought down by our pilots. Five others, badly damaged, fell within the German lines. Another airplane was brought down by our machine guns.

"In retaliation for enemy bombardments of our sanitary establishments, two of our aviators bombarded Treves last night.

"Our bombarding airplanes carried out a number of expeditions, attacking the railroad stations at Roulers and Pitthem, the aviation grounds at Ghistelles, munitions depots at Thourout, where a violent fire was observed; barracks at Lahr, aviation grounds at Schlestadt, and factories at Hagondange."

BERLIN, Sept. 5, (via London.)—The War Office statement says:

"Day and night there has been very vigorous aerial activity and numerous bombing enterprises.

"Far distant objectives were successfully attacked with bombs—Dover, Boulogne, and Calais. Twenty-two enemy airplanes were shot down."

of the invasion of England of three successive nights and Field Marshal Haig's overnight report of aggressive enemy aircraft. Another paper, which assumes and frequently warns of Germany's intention to invade England with aircraft in very large fleets, says:

"The enemy seems to be getting on rather fast with her invasion plans. The German aircraft came, bombed, and departed. Our guns fired and our aircraft went up, but without result, according to the latest official reports. This is the ninth serious raid this Summer, and of 127 machines which have crossed our coast Germany only admits the loss of seven."

Growing Casualty List.

The paper refers to the growing casualty list and the relative immunity of the invaders, and adds:

"It cannot be said that we are getting on with our invasion plans faster than the enemy."

London is convinced that the raid was only the first of many similar undertakings to be attempted, knowing the habit of the Germans, who, once successful, continue operations until a way of checking them is found.

MATERIAL DAMAGE FROM RAID SLIGHT

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 5.—Lonton tonight experienced the fury of "heaven's artillery" after last night's bombarding by German aircraft. If Londoners' nerves can stand the succession of these varied shocks they can stand "most anything." What Fragson used to sign as "Le Phlegme Britannique" seems to be standing them in good stead.

Throughout today all places where bombs were dropped by last night's raiders attracted thousands of spectators. What the cumulative effect of sustaining raids during the darkness of night and next day viewing the débris might ultimately be, students of national psychology may find an interesting question. Up to the present any hopes the Germans may be building on their moonlight or other raids of terrorizing the British metropolis seem raised on the most slender foundations.

Crowds were not only good-humored, they were disdainful. The discrepancy between German claims of what their raiders accomplished and the actual damage done was too marked not to attract everybody's notice. Even the man in the street was forced to comparisons between one lucky hit, such as occurred at Chatham, and the forty or so "misses" of last night's raid, for they all missed from military point of view, although unfortunately they took toll of old men, women, and children.

One bomb had dropped in a roadway at a hospital. London nowadays is so full of hospitals, public and private, that no special information is given the enemy by mentioning a hospital. Nearly all the windows were blown out, but this afternoon every paneless casement was crowded with "Tommies," who had got their wounds in France. They were waving hands at and exchanging greetings with people in the street below and there was not a word to suggest downheartedness or war weariness.

Thunderstorm Over City.

As evening drew on, there was much speculation as to what the night would bring forth. The skies became lowering, and toward 9 o'clock there burst forth a thunderstorm by comparison with which last night's explosions were trifling. Some Londoners preferred a German raid

London had some moments of excitement in the raid last night. I had just left St. James Theatre, where a new play by Henry Arthur Jones had been produced with great success, when the police began to warn the crowds in the streets that an air raid on London was expected.

Ambassador Page was present at the production, and the author in a brief speech from the stage after the final curtain paid him the compliment of saying that he had seriously maintained the record of his predecessors in American representation at the Court of St. James.

"The Pacifists" was the title of the play, which Mr. Jones modestly described as a farce. It was an allegory of incisive character. World war and pacifist ideals which like behavior were transcribed into language of everyday life in a small English country town, which might very well have been an American town. There was a roystering bully who rode rough-shod over all individual and common liberty. Pacifists of the town dared to persuade the bully of the error of his ways by processes of arguments, but he was only brought to reason by methods applied by a number of clerks and other peaceful citizens who went into training under a prize-fighter.

Ambassador Page seemed to enjoy the piece vastly, as did the audience generally. As he had an electric automobile in waiting he probably got home before the raid warnings were given. To others of the audience, who in these days of few taxicabs, had to walk their several ways, there came various experiences. I will give mine as an illustration of what may happen in London in these days.

I walked with my wife to a hotel, where I left her in charge of a chasseur, who was commissioned to get a taxicab as soon as possible. Then I walked. En route the police began to issue warnings and to shepherd people off the streets into big buildings which promised safety. I went into one, and after a rather anxious period of waiting obtained telephonic communication which informed me that my wife had reached home safely.

"Go down to the basement and wait there till you get the 'all clear' signal," were the instructions given and acted on.

I will not say how long it was before I was able to assure my wife that all was clear. And meanwhile things were happening. We heard guns and we heard bombs fall, one of them not fifty yards away from the buildings in which I had taken refuge and two others not very much further away. In the streets around there was ample evidence of their destructive character.

Small Loss of Life.

It is extraordinary how small is the loss of life when one sees the amount of broken glass. Some streets are ankle-deep in glass. It speaks volumes for the utility of taking cover, and police measures seem to have been as admirable as the work of telephone operators, who, as I can testify, stuck to their posts most manfully.

While the raid was on the streets were clear, but later they filled up as in daytime. Men in pyjamas with overcoats, and women in night dresses with mackintoshes were numerous. Cordons had been established by the police in all places where bombs were dropped. Long before the "all clear" signals were received these quarters of particular interest were besieged by crowds. Everybody seem

POLICE AGAIN STOP SOAP BOX ORATORS

JURY BEGINS ITS INQUIRY

Questions Deputy Commissioner and Calls for All Records of Recent Turbulent Gatherings.

Because the traffic lanes and sidewalks were not kept clear, the police last night dispersed 3,000 persons who had gathered to listen to the speakers at the meeting of the Friends of Irish Freedom at Thirty-seventh Street and Broadway. The order for dispersal came before the speaking had got well under way, and although there was an outburst of boos and hisses at the command of the police, the crowd left the corner in an orderly fashion.

The meeting had been scheduled for 8:30 o'clock, but long before that hour Thirty-seventh Street was packed and the utmost efforts of the thirty-five policemen on duty there were needed to prevent an overflow which would have blocked Broadway.

The first speaker of the Friends of Irish Freedom was the National Organizer of the Society, Stephen W. Johnson. Mr. Johnson stood on a soap box platform between two flags, the Stars and Stripes and the green, white, and orange banner of Ireland. He read a statement urging his hearers to be orderly and leave a lane for the passage of vehicles and pedestrians. This was followed by the reading of a petition for the freeing of Ireland. Before the crowd had finished a wild outburst of cheering, the speaker recited two stanzas of "The Star-Spangled Banner," and then he read the Declaration of Independence.

The crowd cheered to the echo every reference in the least derogatory to Great Britain. When the speaker came to the lines in the song "Their blood has washed out their foul footsteps' pollution," the uproar of applause put a temporary stop to further speaking.

After Mr. Johnson finished, Miss Margaret Curley made a speech in Gaelic. The only interruptions were cries of "Speak English. We can't understand." All the time the crowd was growing denser. When she ceased speaking there was a pause while Captain Costigan of Commissioner Woods's personal staff conferred a moment with Inspectors Ryan, Gillen and Bolan, and with Mr. Johnson. Then Farrel Gallagher, a member of the Friends of Irish Freedom, announced that the police had dispersed the meeting.

"Go away quietly," said Mr. Gallagher, when the boos and hisses had died away. "We will fight our fight in the courts."

In commenting on the dispersal, John D. Moore, National Secretary of the organization said that the small number of policemen present was responsible for the congestion.

"I am convinced that there was no possible justification for two things," said Mr. Moore. "First, the absence, in spite of a written request to Commissioner Woods, of even a reasonable number of uniformed policemen. Second, the breaking up of what any fair minded man would consider an admirably ordered gathering."

After the crowd had gone away a woman, who gave her name as Margaret Ryan of 1271 Lexington Avenue, was arrested by Sergeant Mooney of the West Thirtieth Street Station on a charge of disorderly conduct. The woman had caused a disturbance by selling Irish flags at a meeting held by the Militia of Mercy on the spot vacated by the Friends of Irish Freedom.

Cleveland Moffett of the American Defense Society in a statement yesterday afternoon said riots might be avoided in New York if the plan adopted by the methods of the Philadelphia police, who refused to allow street meetings to be held in that city without a permit, and who did not allow under any circumstances (other than at recruiting meetings) discussions on the war or the military policy of the United States.

"New York is holding a lighted match near a powder barrel and trusting to luck," said Mr. Moffett.

The People's Council of America may have to leave its headquarters at 70 Fifth Avenue at the demand of its landlord, George A. Plimpton. Mr. Plimpton recently wrote to the Directors of the organization ordering them to vacate the premises at once.

After the receipt of the letter, however, a conference was held between the Directors and Mr. Plimpton, at which it was decided that the organization would be permitted to remain in the building for the present, upon its agreement to keep out of trouble with the authorities.

The October Grand Jury, of which Alexander Konta, a banker, is foreman, opened its investigation yesterday into the treasonable utterances of soap box orators by listening to the testimony of Deputy Police Commissioner Leon Godley. It was learned that the members of the jury asked for stenographic records of all the meetings at which the police were compelled to interfere. The Deputy Police Commissioner will continue his testimony today.

Also summoned to appear today are Inspector Bolan, whose district includes Broadway and Thirty-seventh Street, and Inspector Sexton, whose district includes Lenox Avenue and 125th Street, another centre for seditious talkers.

The Grand Jury will limit itself, it is understood, to passing upon the question of whether the City Magistrates have been handling the cases against the soap box orators in a proper manner. One Magistrate and several members of the Police Department have doubted whether they had the right to arrest or hold men for alleged seditious remarks. The Grand Jury's investigation, it was said yesterday, was likely to result in a presentment containing suggestions for the Magistrates to follow.

The Grand Jury is following the precedent set by the case against Herr Most, publisher of the Freiheit, a German paper, who was convicted several years ago on a charge of "wilfully and wrongfully committing an act which seriously disturbs or endangers the public peace." Most published a series of inflammatory articles attacking the Government. The Court of Appeals, in affirming the conviction, held that liberty of the press did not mean "licentiousness of the press" and the right "that every citizen may freely speak, write, and publish his sentiments on all subjects, being responsible for the abuse of that right" as guaranteed by the Constitution, did not entitle one to do an act that would injure another or disturb the peace, or "which is injurious to society according to the standard of the common law."

WILL CURB SEDITION IN GERMAN PRESS HERE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—Searching inquiry into the utterances of German language newspapers in the United States, socialistic magazines, and literature of so-called peace societies and associations, regarded as likely to lead to prosecution in some instances, is being conducted by the Department of Justice.

The department considers its position strengthened by the recent decision of Federal Judges Hough of New York and Speer of Georgia in sustaining the action of Postmaster General Burleson in refusing the privileges of the mails to The Masses and The Jeffersonian.

Recent utterances and activities of Mayor Thompson of Chicago and The Republican, a newspaper which supports him in connection with the so-called convention there of the People's Council of America for Democracy and Peace, are also being scrutinized.

The department has held repeatedly that it is not its function to prohibit or to break up pacifist meetings or conventions, but a close scrutiny of the utterances of speakers and others at such meetings is maintained to determine violation of the Espionage act.

Included in the investigation of alleged seditious publications and others of a character regarded as open to question are individual newspapers and magazines published in German in this country and the advertising and other literature of the American Union Against Militarism, the People's Council, the League of Conscientious Objectors, and other organizations affiliated with them or of a similar character.

The time is not far distant, in the opinion of some officials, when the Government will begin prosecutions. Hundreds of newspaper and magazine articles whose propriety is admittedly open to two interpretations have been placed before officials here. In most instances, it is said, these articles have been cleverly worded so as to bring them virtually within the law, while at the same time creating the effect desired.

A large number of the articles and editorials under investigation do not attack the Government, but centre their criticism upon allies of the United States. What proceedings, if any, can be taken in these instances, it was said, depends wholly upon the wording of each article.

TURKS CONTROL OWN NAVY.

German Admiral Recalled at Request of Talaat Bey.

LONDON, Sept. 5.—A Reuter dispatch from Berlin, via Amsterdam, says that Admiral Souchon, Commander-in-Chief of the Mediterranean Division, who has commanded the Turkish naval forces in the Mediterranean during the war, has been recalled.

According to an Exchange telegraph dispatch from Amsterdam, Admiral Souchon's recall was due to Turkish officers objecting to being commanded by an alien officer. The recent visit of Talaat Bey and other Turkish officials to Germany was to obtain the recall of the Admiral and the reorganization of the Turkish fleet under Turkish officers.

WAR OFFICE TAKES NEW YORK QUARTERS

60,000 EMPLOYES ADDED

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—The Ordnance Department of the army has been looking over office buildings in New York with a view to establishing one or more of its branches there. It was said in the Bureau of Ordnance tonight that no arrangements had yet been made. The proposed establishment of a branch of the department in New York arises from the fact that the Government buildings in Washington are overcrowded and space in private office buildings in the Capital has become exhausted on account of the tremendous increase in activities due to the war.

The clerical forces of most of the Government departments have been increased to such an extent that clerks are now working in the corridors of department buildings. The congestion is particularly noticeable in the big granite structure occupied jointly by the Departments of State, War, and Navy. In one room of the War Department which THE TIMES correspondent visited this afternoon there were sixteen desks where before the war activity began there were probably not more than four. Every private office building in the city is crowded. Before the United States entered the war there was much empty space in these buildings.

The Interstate Commerce Commission recently removed into a large new office building, and its old quarters have been taken over by the Shipping Board. The Food Administration, which had temporary quarters in the new Interior Department Building, a huge structure, has leased entire the Gordon Hotel. The Department of Justice had hardly moved into a new building, erected especially for lease to the Government, when its old quarters were occupied by other Government branches. The Ordnance Bureau of the army has overflowed from the War Department, and is occupying buildings all over town, including the mansion of the late Richard Wallack, a former Mayor of Washington, and the large office building that had been used by the Geological Survey.

Tremendous Influx of Employes.

A statement prepared by the Committee on Public Information today says that the number of Ordnance Bureau clerks prior to the war was 96 and that it is now 850. The clerks in the office of the Surgeon General of the army have been increased by 200. In the Quartermaster General's office the additional clerks are 527. The Adjutant General has taken on 375 additional clerks. The Secretary of War, who had 61 clerks before the United States entered the great conflict, now has 132 in his office. These figures do not include the great number of army officers assigned to duty in Washington since the United States joined the Allies.

The Government has taken hundreds of operators from the local telephone company, which is now importing girls from other cities and has leased a big private boarding school and is providing quarters for them in it. Hotels and boarding houses are crowded, and many people are moving from apartment houses because rents have been raised.

It is estimated by members of the District of Columbia Government and local business bodies that the population of Washington has increased between 50,000 and 60,000 since the United States entered the war, which is a large increase in a city of about 380,000 population. Most of these who have come here recently have some connection with the Government, and it is estimated that 15,000 employes have been entered on the Government payrolls for service in Washington alone.

The increase in population is apparent from the unusual crowds on the streets, which are swelled by the thousands of soldiers living in camps and barracks near the city.

The Council of National Defense early saw the difficulty that the Government would have to face in the large number of additional employes that would be required for war work. It had obtained figures showing that in London the number of Government employes added on account of the war was approximately 100,000. Some officials think the population of Washington will be increased by that number before the war ends. How to accommodate all this influx of people is a problem that the council was only able to work out with respect to office space. The matter of obtaining sleeping quarters for the newcomers at reasonable prices is still giving concern. Apartment houses have been turned into hotels and are reaping a harvest at hotel rates. Prices have increased greatly and some of the Government employes have to figure closely to make ends meet.

Big residences that had been idle have been taken by many of the rich men who have come to Washington to serve the Government in the war.

M. and L. Hess, Inc., announced yesterday that they had leased for the Broadway and Twenty-fourth Street Corporation the fifteenth and sixteenth floors, containing 40,000 square feet, in the Albemarle Building, at Twenty-fourth Street and Broadway, for a term of five years and four months to the War Department for use of the inspection Division of the Ordnance Department at a rental aggregating $200,000.

WANT HALLER DEPOSED.

Nebraska Defense Councils Act on Disloyalty Charges Against Him.

LINCOLN, Neb., Sept. 5.—The Council of State and County Councils of Defense, held here, has demanded the immediate removal from the Presidency of the Board of Regents of the University of Nebraska of Frank L. Haller, alleging that he has failed to answer charges of disloyalty.

The conference also protested against the teaching of German in high schools, asked for deportation and confiscation of property for treasonable utterances, and demanded the suppression of the German language press until it shall voluntarily purge itself of "disloyalty and cease its insidious methods of poisoning the minds of its readers against the United States Government."

BAKER ORDERS INQUIRY INTO BAD AMMUNITION

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—Secretary Baker today ordered an investigation by a special committee of the defective ammunition sent to the troops under General Pershing in France. The committee will comprise Dr. H. P. Talbot, Professor of Chemistry at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology; Dr. C. L. Parsons, Chief Chemist in the Bureau of Mines, and an army officer to be named by Major Gen. Hugh L. Scott, Chief of Staff.

Secretary Baker, appearing before the Senate Committee on Military Affairs, testified that one-third of the ammunition supplied to the American expeditionary force in France was defective. Brig. Gen. William Crozier, Chief of the Bureau of Ordnance, told the committee that only about one-hundredth of the supply given the Pershing expeditionary forces was defective, but admitted that progressive deterioration might render as much as 10 per cent. useless.

There was a seeming discrepancy between the testimony of Secretary Baker and that of General Crozier. This was explained by the understanding that Secretary Baker was referring to the amount of ammunition intended for the Pershing expedition, while General Crozier was referring to the entire small-arms ammunition supply of the army.

The first symptom of trouble with the shells, said Secretary Baker, became known to the Navy Department on May 25, when it was reported that small arms ammunition supplied to the Marine Corps was defective. Later on reports began to come in from various units that cartridges were causing "misfires" and "hang-fires."

"These reports were widespread enough to indicate a general character of defect," said the Secretary. "The Frankford Arsenal began an investigation immediately. The defect was an entirely new thing, and as the investigation went on it was blamed first on one thing and then another. The arsenal has now discovered what it believes to be the real cause. A small quantity of potassium bromate has been ground in the potassium chlorate used in the manufacture of the primers. This works against the free sulphur used in the shells. The fault has now been corrected and there is no further trouble."

Chairman Chamberlain asked why it was that although the defect was found in May a warning was not sent to General Pershing's expeditionary force until August. Secretary Baker replied that the first complaint came from the Navy Department and nothing was known regarding the extent of the trouble until an investigation could be made.

"Have you any reason to believe that any outside interference brought about this defect?" asked Chairman Chamberlain.

"I have none," replied the Secretary.

GERMANS PRESS FLEEING RUSSIANS

REACH THE SEA EAST OF CITY

Enemy Craft Which Have Been Shelling the Gulf Coast Turn Out to be U-Boats.

PETROGRAD, Sept. 5.—The Russians, continuing their retreat along the coast of the Gulf of Riga toward the northeast, have crossed the Livonian River Aa, the War Office announces. The forces operating in an easterly direction from Riga have retired to Segevold, Lemburg, and Deteshubrayd. The hostile ships which have been shelling the Riga coast were submarines. Following is the text of the announcement:

Western Front—In the direction of Riga our troops, having crossed the Livonian River Aa, are continuing a further retirement along the coast of the Gulf of Riga in a northeasterly direction. In the region of the Pskov Road and the River Aa the enemy, continuing his offensive, reached the crossings of the River Aa, near Abrant and below Hintzenberg, 50 versts (about 33 miles) from Riga.

Our troops operating in an easterly direction from Riga retired under enemy pressure to Segevold, Lemburg, and Deteshubrayd.

The enemy ships which shelled the Gulf of Riga proved to be submarines. In the direction of Dvinsk there was lively artillery firing. There were fusillades on the remainder of the front.

Russian Front—In the direction of Czernowitz, in the region of Slobodzeia, the enemy continues his attacks. Having occupied two fortified heights, he was driven out by counter-attacks and the position restored. We took more than 200 prisoners.

The military organ of the Riga front is of the opinion that the Germans were able to cross the Dvina because they knew the positions of all the Russian battery emplacements and thus were able to silence the guns.

Military critics say that it is impossible to foresee what line the retiring Russian forces will eventually take up; that everything depends upon arresting the panic in the rear of the army, where there is great disorder.

"At the present time," says one paper, "the braver units alone are sustaining the shock of the German attacks. The bombardment of the coast south of Pernau may be regarded as preparation for a German landing, with the railway junctions connecting Reval, Jacobstadt, and Pskov as the objective."

BERLIN, Sept. 5 (via London.)—Duenamuende, on the Riga front, which was evacuated yesterday by the Russians, has been captured by German forces, the War Office announced today. (Duenamuende lies at the mouth of the Dvina, northwest of Riga.) The heavy coastal guns there fell undamaged into the hands of the Germans. German troops have reached the Baltic northeast of the Dvina and have crossed the sector of the Livonian River Aa, wiping out the Russian rear guards to the south of the river. The Russians are still retreating northeastward. The text of the official statement reads:

Our operations east of Riga have developed further, as anticipated.

Duenamuende has been taken and the heavy coastal guns, some of them as large as 30.5 centimeter calibre, have fallen, undamaged, into our hands.

The Baltic has been reached northeast of the Dvina and the Livonian River Aa sector has been crossed. The Russian rear guards south of the river were wiped out.

The enemy is still in retreat toward the northeast.

Otherwise, from the Dvina to the Danube there have been no military operations on a large scale.

COPENHAGEN, Sept. 5.—The Berlin Tageblatt's correspondent on the Riga front, describing the passage of the Dvina river, says that this was accomplished without the loss of a man, thanks to the effect of the German artillery and mine throwers. The Germans had assembled a greater number of mine throwers than ever before and brought them into action after the regular artillery had bombarded the first and second lines for several hours.

The whole operation was carried out at such little cost that three divisions, which were in the thick of the fighting, had total casualties amounting to only 150 dead or wounded.

and England beaten, on the Eastern front. The Russians must be hammered with all the force at Germany's disposal.

The victory caused tremendous joy among all parties in Germany. It is considered of great importance and the attitude of the press leaves little doubt that the Germans intend to retain it permanently in fulfillment of a long-standing desire. Even the Tageblatt refers to Riga as a town whose character always has been pre-eminently German. The Lokal-Anzeiger says that Riga was German through and through, a majority of the inhabitants being German. The town, it says, has now been given back to itself.

The Tägliche Rundschau says that an old dream has been fulfilled and that the victory is a deed to awaken pride in the heart of every German.

The Deutsche Tageszeitung points out that the fall of Riga must convince the Germans that they are victorious, and that this prize will not be given up at a green table. Economically, it says, Riga is important as a busy port and a flourishing industrial town, but strategically is even more important, as it turns the whole line of the Dvina and opens up a way to an advance on Petrograd. Moreover, it opens up the Gulf of Riga to the German Navy, completing control in the Baltic right up to Finland.

The Tägliche Rundschau asserts there is every hope of Litania and Courland being made autonomous States in the near future.

FIRED GAS SHELLS INTO RIGA.

Germans Also Sent a Zeppelin to Drop Gas Bombs on People.

PETROGRAD, Tuesday, Sept. 4.—The first refugees from Riga arrived here today and give a dramatic description of their last hours in the city before the German occupation. The first shells were fired from the direction of Uxkull and fell early Sunday morning, causing numerous fires and spreading clouds of suffocating gases. The people rushed into the streets, many only partly dressed, and there was a general panic to reach the railroad station, which seemed to be the enemy's chief target. This panic resulted in heavy losses, according to the Vechernee vremya, which declares that several thousand were killed.

The next night after midnight a Zeppelin appeared over the city and in the rays of its searchlight citizens might be seen fleeing. The Zeppelin dropped many bombs, some emitting gases. These bombs were aimed chiefly at Moscow, a suburb of Riga. Shelling with big projectiles from the direction of Uxkull was resumed early in the evening, one shell falling in a moving picture hall, causing losses, and another exploding in the Hotel Suvoroff. The last train which left for Petrograd was heavily shelled.

A great many buildings in Riga, according to the refugees, were destroyed.

BATTLE OF FLEETS IN BALTIC EXPECTED

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—The next important naval engagement in the war may be fought between German and Russian warships in the Baltic Sea following the capture of Riga. This was the indication conveyed in a dispatch received today by the Russian Embassy, which stated that the Russian Baltic Fleet was preparing to meet an expected attack and that the battle was likely to be fought near Kronstadt the fortress port of Petrograd, where the fleet would be aided by the forts as well as by submarines.

Among the units in the Russian Baltic Fleet are the battleships Imperator Pavel I. and Andrei Pervozvanni, each displacing 17,400 tons and completed in 1911; seven dreadnoughts completed in 1914 and 1915, and two older battleships.

Attached to the Baltic fleet are the battle cruisers Navarin, Borodino, Ismail, and Kinburn, each of 32,000 tons displacement. There are also five armored cruisers of 8,000 to 12,000 tons displacement, none of them modern.

Advices received by the embassy stated that Riga was evacuated by the civilian population three weeks ago and so secretly that it was days before the Germans were aware of what was in progress. It was not until after the detonations caused by the Russians blowing up fortifications that the Germans discovered that the city had been abandoned and then they moved forward.

The evacuation of Riga was known here while it was in progress but was suppressed for a time to prevent this fact becoming known to the Germans. However, the fact did become known and was printed in American newspapers several days before Germany reported the capture.

Mme. Merkouloff also testified concerning her relations with Mme. Chervinskaya, who was a witness earlier in the trial for the prosecution. She said that Mme. Chervinskaya was a relative of her first husband, and that he "regarded all of his relatives as scoundrels." The witness said that she lived much abroad with Mme. Chervinskaya, but broke with her because of her relations with Prince Andronikoff.

Prince Andronikoff, on being recalled as a witness, testified that he wrote to the former Emperor Nicholas early in the war recommending Soukhomlinoff's dismissal. He admitted that he also had asked for the dismissal of other Ministers and officials.

GURKO TO BE EXILED.

Ex-Army Commander Accused of Treason Has Been Degraded.

PETROGRAD, Sept. 5.—General Gurko, former commander on the Southwestern front, charged with treasonable conduct toward the revolution, will be exiled from Russia.

General Gurko, according to reports, is the first person against whom such a measure has been taken by the revolutionary Government. He will be permitted to choose the place of his residence and will have three days in which to arrange his affairs.

General Gurko has been degraded and his request for a new inquiry into his acts has been refused. He will be followed into exile by his wife.

QUITS RUSSIAN CABINET.

Lebedoeff Leaves to Raise Volunteer Corps in Interior.

PETROGRAD, Sept. 5.—Lieutenant Lebedoeff, Acting Minister of Marine, has resigned in order to devote himself to the organization of special volunteer corps in the interior of Russia. Boris Savinkoff, Assistant Minister of War, and a member of the War Cabinet, will take charge of the Ministry of Marine.

A commission has been appointed by the Government to draft a law for the summary punishment of treasonable acts "in the rear," which is intended to include all Russia.

our fundamental law, and that we are thus breeding a lawless constitution-ignoring spirit which is a serious menace to our future. Others seek to raise doubts of power in order to embarrass the prosecution of the war. And there seem to be still others who in their zeal impatiently and without thought put the Constitution aside as having no relation to these times.

"While we are at war, we are not in a revolution. We are making war as a nation organized under the Constitution, from which the established national authorities derive all their powers either in war or in peace. The Constitution is as effective today as it ever was, and the oath to support it is just as binding. But the framers of the Constitution did not contrive an imposing spectacle of impotency. One of the objects of 'a more perfect union' was 'To provide for the common defense.' Self-preservation is the first law of national life, and the Constitution itself provides the necessary powers in order to defend and preserve the United States.

"The war powers under the constitution are carefully distributed. To the President was given the direction of war as the Commander in Chief of the army and navy. It was not in the contemplation of the Constitution that the command of forces and the conduct of campaigns should be in charge of a council, or that as to this there should be division of authority or responsibility. The prosecution of war demands in the highest degree the promptness, directness, and unity of action in military operations which alone can proceed from the Executive. The exclusive power to command the army and navy and thus to direct and control campaigns exhibits not autocracy, but democracy, fighting effectively through its chosen instruments, and in accordance with the established organic law."

Legality of the Draft.

Then, defending Congress' power to pass conscription laws, Mr. Hughes said:

"Upon every citizen lies the duty of aiding in the common defense. In exercising its constitutional power to raise armies the Congress may enforce this duty. The Congress may call any one to service who is able to serve. The question who may be called, or in what order, is simply one for the judgment of the National Legislature. The power vested in Congress is not to raise armies simply by calling for volunteers, but to raise armies by whatever method Congress deems best, and hence must be deemed to embrace conscription. To the framers of the Constitution the draft was a familiar mode of raising armies, as it had been resorted to by the colonies to fill up their quotas in the Revolutionary War. The draft was put in force both by the Union and by the Confederacy during the civil war, and its validity was sustained by the courts in both North and South."

Mr. Hughes, who is Chairman of the New York City District Exemption Board, said that while the constitutional authority thus vested in Congress was not limited by any qualification arising from religious beliefs or conscientious objections, it was, in his judgment, "a sound policy on the part of Congress to provide for the discharge from the draft of conscientious objectors. Nothing, I believe, is gained for the country by overriding the claims of conscience in such cases; but it is obviously necessary that there should be such definitions and restrictions as will prevent imposture and evasion by those who have as little conscience as they have stomach for war."

The speaker then made the point that the militia, as such, could not be used for service outside the country.

"This, however," he said, "is apart from the power of Congress to raise and support a Federal army. Congress can equip an army in preparation for war, and of course it may furnish what ever army is required for the prosecution of war. The organization and service of an army raised by Congress are not subject to the limitations governing its control of the militia. The power to use an army is co-extensive with the power to make war, and the army may be used wherever the war is carried on, here or elsewhere. There is no limitation upon the authority of Congress to create an army, and it is for the President as Commander in Chief to direct the campaigns of that army wherever he may think they should be carried on.

"We employed our army in Canada in the War of 1812; our troops were again sent to foreign soil in the Mexican war and in the war with Spain, and more recently have been employed in China and Mexico. There is no doubt of the constitutional authority to employ our forces on the battlefields of Europe in the war that we are now waging for the safety of the United States and to conquer an enduring peace that the liberties of free peoples throughout the world may forever be secured from the aggression of an unscrupulous military power.

War Power of Executive.

"The power of the National Government to carry on war is explicit and supreme, and the authority thus resides in Congress to make all laws which are needed for that purpose; that is, to Congress in the event of war is confided the power to enact whatever legislation is necessary to prosecute the war with vigor and success, and this power is to be exercised without impairment of the authority committed to the President as Commander in Chief to direct military operations.

"Each of these powers—that of Congress and of the President—is the subject of a distinct grant, each is the complement of the other, and together they furnish the adequate equipment of authority for war. There is no more impressive spectacle than that of the President of the Republic in time of war, when in addition to the other great powers of his office he acts in supreme command of the armed forces of the nation and conducts its military campaigns. It was under this power that President Lincoln defended the Proclamation of Emancipation.

"It is also to be observed that the power exercised by the President in time of war is greatly augmented, outside of his functions as Commander in Chief, through legislation of Congress increasing his administrative authority. War demands the highest degree of efficient organization, and Congress in the nature of things cannot prescribe many important details as it legislates for the purpose of meeting the exigencies of war. Never is adaptation of legislation to practical ends so urgently required, and hence Congress naturally in very large measure confers upon the President the authority to ascertain and determine various states of fact to which legislative measures are addressed. Further, a wide range of provision relating to the organization and government of the army and navy, which Congress might enact if it saw fit, it authorizes the President to prescribe.

"The principles governing the delegation of legislative power are clear, and while they are of the utmost importance when properly applied, they are not such as to make the appropriate exercise of legislative power impracticable. Congress cannot be permitted to abandon to others its proper legislative functions; but in time of war when legislation must be adapted to many situations of the utmost complexity, which must be dealt with effectively and promptly, there is special need for flexibility and for every resource of practicality; and, of course, whether the limits of permissible delegation are in any case overstepped always remains a judicial question. We thus not only find these great war powers conferred upon the Congress and the President, respectively, but also a vast increase of administrative authority through legislative action springing from the necessities of war."

This afternoon 500 of the delegates went for an excursion on Lake George.

Germany Violating All Laws.

An important action of today's session was emphatic approval of the report of the Committee on International Law condemning Germany's gross violation of practically all the basic concepts of the code of nations. It was the sense of the convention that the survival of international law depended upon the defeat of Germany.

The chairman of the Committee, Charles Noble Gregory of Washington, D. C., presented the report. There was applause when he quoted President Wilson as saying:

"The minimum of right the German Government has set aside." Mr. Gregory reviewed the expounding of international law by the President in his war message to Congress, and said:

"Your committee desire to express its hearty and unanimous concurrence in the views of international right, of human obligations, and national duty so powerfully presented by the President, and so justly supported by the Congress."

The convention adopted unanimously this protest in the name of the lawyers of America, which was ordered sent to the Committee on Public Information in Washington for wide distribution:

They protest as a gross violation of the settled rules of international law and of the usages of war between civilized nations:

First—The sinking of merchant ships without summons, and without placing non-combatants on board in safety.

Second—The assuming to exclude by proclamation our ships and cargoes from many thousands of miles of the high seas where our ships and cargoes have passed and repassed, and have had the right to pass and repass ever since this nation had birth.

Third—Grave and homicidal conspiracies against the domestic peace, trade, and manufactures of this country, and against peace upon its borders, conducted by agents of the German Government while still assuming the guise of and received as friends.

Fourth—They denounce the wanton and illegal murder of great numbers of civilians and non-combatants, including women and children and aged persons, and the unrestrained assaults to which women have been subjected, even those shielded by the garb and vows of religion.

Fifth—They denounce the wanton devastation of occupied regions, when abandoned,—by the destruction of houses, churches, schools, fields, roads and orchards, where no military necessity warranted the same and where it subjected to great suffering and to death a great part of the population.

Sixth—They denounce the looting of occupied territory, the levy of contributions and requisitions beyond the means of occupied territory and for unlawful purposes, and the general appropriation of private property to satisfy the same, or the plunder of officers and men, encouraged unlawfully to appropriate the same, by the German Government.

Seventh—They denounce the claim of right to put to death any mariner wherever and whenever captured who has dared to defend his vessel and cargo against the wholly unwarranted and lawless attacks of German submarines, and they denounce especially the wholly unwarranted claim that the law as to franctireurs on land applies to mariners at sea, and the illegal and inhuman execution, pursuant to such claim, of Captain Fryatt, a merchant Captain, "whose rights at the worst were those of a prisoner of war."

Eighth—They denounce the deportation of the civil population from occupied territory by thousands, including women and young girls, to be employed in forced labor against their country.

Ninth—They denounce the sinking of hospital ships and supply ships sailing under safe conducts from the German authorities themselves.

Tenth—They welcome the entry of the United States into the war in conjunction with the Entente Allies for the purpose of checking such lawless excesses and overthrowing those forms of autocracy which menace the peace, security, and civilization of the whole world. They recognize with the President that our country is privileged to spend her blood and her might for the principles that gave her birth and happiness and the peace which she has treasured, and they say with him, God helping her, she can do no other.

In supplying to the convention the instances of German action upon which it based its report the committee quoted eighty-seven times from news dispatches published in THE NEW YORK TIMES and a dozen or more times from the Current History published by THE TIMES.

The organization of the Conference of Delegates, a body formed to promote closer co-operation between State and local bar associations, has been completed. It is made up of three delegates from each State association and two from each local association. Elihu Root was elected Chairman of the permanent organization, Moorefield Storey of Boston Vice President, and Julius Henry Cohen of New York Secretary.

The courts were asked in a memorial adopted by the association body to make their decisions shorter, because the bulk of the accumulated reports with which lawyers are supposed to be familiar was assuming gigantic proportions. The action was taken in accord with the recommendations of the Committee on Reports and Digests.

DANGER IN EXCESSIVE LEVY

Special to The New York Times.

CHATHAM, N. Y., Sept. 5.—Colonel Theodore Roosevelt delivered an address on war issues before an audience of more than 8,000 persons at the Columbia County Fair here today.

The ex-President arrived here at 12:40 P. M., and nearly 100 business men in automobiles escorted him to the home of Louis F. Payn for luncheon. Captain Albert S. Callan, President of the Columbia County Agricultural Society, introduced him at the fair. Lemuel E. Quigg and Mr. Payn occupied seats on the platform. Mr. Roosevelt said in part:

"We are at war. Every man and woman in this nation is, therefore, bound to serve the country in whatever way is necessary. What we and our allies at this time most need is maximum production and quick distribution of food, munitions, clothing—in short, everything. Any such restriction of profits as would reduce production would be a calamity. Moreover, in many of the most important industries labor is the largest element of cost; in view of the high cost of living a reduction in wages would be a calamity; and, therefore, profits must not be kept down so as to injure the ability to pay this rate of wages.

"Again, nothing should be done to upset the general financial situation, for the United States is the last financial reservoir of the world, and it would be a grave calamity to upset the financial situation by upsetting the economic basis of our business. As regards certain necessities of life the Government must certainly prevent owners, and especially speculators, from charging excessively high prices; but it is equally important that the Government should be cautious not to enforce unreasonably low prices, especially as regards what the Government itself uses, and as regards exports.

"Heavily graduated inheritance and income taxes are necessary; they should follow the English and German models. But at present what is most needed is a heavily—a very heavily—graduated tax on the excess profits due to war conditions, a tax as heavy as Great Britain has now imposed. In the purchases made by the Government it ought to pay prices high enough to enable not merely the big manufacturers, but their smaller and less advantageously situated rivals, to secure a generous living profit. This means that the big manufacturers would have excess profits; and the proper way to reach these is by taxing them heavily.

"The war has clearly raised two problems: The problem of the present, which is to help our allies to win this war by endeavoring in every way now to offset the effect of our utter failure to prepare in advance; and the permanent problem, the problem of defense against a future—perhaps a distant, perhaps an immediately impending future—attack upon us when we have no allies; the problem of preparing our strength as a permanent policy so that never again shall we be caught as shamefully unprepared as now, so that never again shall we be forced as at present to owe our safety purely to the valor of our allies and not to our own courage and strength.

"Now and then we read in the papers boastful accounts of how much money we have appropriated, of how many men have been registered for the draft, of what wonderful plans we intend to develop for an airplane fleet, of how many cargo ships and big guns we intend to build. All of this would be excellent if we meant to prepare for a war three years hence; but it is all of it, every particle of it, just exactly what we ought to have done three years ago, or at the very least two years and a half ago, when the Lusitania was sunk—for we had exactly the same cause for action then that we have now.

"Seven months have passed since the German note of Jan. 31 last, which was in effect a declaration of war. And when you read anything boastful about what we have done during these seven months, remember what our accomplishment—not belated preparation, but actual accomplishment—really is. We have put a few anti-submarine craft into European waters under Admiral Sims; and that is all. We have in training camps in France gallant General Pershing and his fine divisions of infantry, his engineers, and his artillery regiments without guns. We have several hundred thousand National Guardsmen about to begin training in camp; and several hundred thousand drafted men are preparing to go to camp.

"We have not yet been able to put in France any heavy field guns fit to match the German artillery. We have not yet a single airplane fit to send over the German lines. We have not put a single man into the firing line. We have only what is relatively, to the size of the armies engaged, a small body of infantry without artillery who will be fit to go to the firing line in the immediate future. As for the rest, after seven months, this nation of a hundred millions of people, the wealthiest nation in the world, able to work without any danger behind the shield of the British fleet and the French and British Armies, has neither the trained troops nor the guns nor the aircraft to meet even a single small German army if it could get at us. After these seven months we are still nothing like as formidable as Belgium or Rumania.

"Under such conditions boasters would do well to remember the remark of Thangbrand, the priest, about the boastful Icelanders, in the Norse saga:

> What's the use
> Of all this bragging up and down,
> When three women and one goose
> Make a market in your town?

"There is but one way thus to prepare and that is by introducing as a permanent policy the policy of universal obligatory military training for all our young men in time of peace, and of universal service in time of war, so that every man and woman in this country shall be fitted in advance to render, and at need required to render, whatever service the nation demands. Then we won't have to begin to train for a fight after the fight has itself begun. The law of service should be the law of life; and in every real democracy universal suffrage will be based on universal service."

COLER ANSWERS McCOOEY.

Denies That His Candidacy Seeks Mitchel's Re-election.

Bird S. Coler, an independent Democratic candidate for Borough President of Brooklyn, who has the support of the followers of Charles R. Ward and United States Marshal James M. Power, replied yesterday to the charge made by Leader John H. McCooey that Ward and Power were working for the election of Mayor Mitchel and Borough President Pounds. In a formal statement Mr. Coler said:

"The taxpayers, who are now paying a tax of $2.00 on every $100 of a shamefully inflated assessed valuation of real estate, are, I think, as little desirous of the re-election of Mayor Mitchel and Borough President Pounds as I am. No taxpayer in Brooklyn can vote for him without an apology to his tax bill."

GEN. PERSHING REACHES FIELD HEADQUARTERS

Remarkable Transformation in Town Where American Uniforms Were Little Known.

AMERICAN TRAINING CAMP IN FRANCE, Sept. 5, (by The Associated Press.)—General Pershing has arrived at his field headquarters where his staff had preceded him several days and where the French Government had turned over quarters for the Americans' occupancy.

The transformation in the picturesque French town has been most remarkable. Up to three weeks ago American uniforms had been seen but once or twice and the passing of an American automobile through the place was a signal for great excitement among the people. Today khaki was the predominant color on the streets, with here and there a touch of white and blue—costumes of American nurses, who have taken over a French hospital and are caring for French patients pending the activity of the American forces.

French and American sentries guard all approaches to the town and no one is allowed to enter without proper passes. American flags mingle with the French Tricolor from scores of flagstaffs on both public and private buildings.

Various divisional and corps schools for the instruction of officers are being organized and class work will begin within a short time. These schools are patterned after both the French and British instruction camps, and special instructors will be brought from both of these fronts to lecture upon the most modern phases of warfare. The instruction will include artillery, aviation and infantry tactics, machine gun, trench mortar, rifle and grenade fire, and trench fighting, including night patrol work between the lines.

The American officers also will be instructed in the latest methods of fighting from shell holes and on new theories of counterattacks. These schools will give the final touch to the training of the officers and men of the first expeditionary force.

SOLDIERS STRIP OFF THOMPSON BANNERS

Demonstration Against Mayor in Chicago — Grand Jury Begins Disloyalty Inquiry.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Sept. 5.—Investigation of Mayor Thompson's utterances and actions, branded by patriotic bodies as disloyal, was reported under way today by the Federal Grand Jury here, as well as by the Department of Justice in Washington. United States District Attorney Charles F. Clyne said:

"The present session of the Grand Jury may result in indictments of German plotters in new plots hitherto not revealed to the public. Men whose names have not yet been dragged into the question of German plots may come up for investigation."

The reference to new names aroused interest. The general belief prevailed that the Federal Grand Jury would take action on the instructions of Judge Evan Evans to return indictments, when justified, against those who are traitors, those who are false to the Government, and those who are obstructing the law. That the Mayor would be a subject of investigation by both the Federal and the Cook County Grand Juries was considered a foregone conclusion.

Mayor Thompson's anti-American activities were responsible for the bursting of the "Thompson for United States Senator" bubble which was to have been set afloat at the Kankakee Fair today. The day started badly when fifty automobiles, loaded with the Mayor's backers, en route to the fair, were set upon by soldiers along Michigan Avenue and stripped of their banners. The Mayor was heading the procession, but he dropped out and did not make the trip. Of the fifty cars that started only eighteen arrived at the fair, and their occupants were booed and jeered by the big crowds there.

The Thompsonites were said to have sent advance agents along the route of the auto procession as early as last week, asking Mayors and village boards to turn out en masse to greet the autoists and their chief, Mayor Thompson. Only one village—Beecher, a German settlement—turned out several score of persons bidding the Thompson boomers godspeed. At Momence a huge sign stretched across the road read:

"All Americans here. Thompsonites not wanted. This way out."

Announcement was made that Governor Lowden would maintain, until the termination of the war, ample military forces in Chicago to meet any emergency. Particularly, troops will prevent any further meetings of pacifists. Recent legal decisions on the Illinois law give the Governor absolute control over all the police forces of the State.

CALLS OUR ARMY 'BLUFF.'

German Paper Says the Rough Riders Were Chiefly Negroes.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, Sept. 5.—The Weser Zeitung's sarcastic article about America's army, saying that the American and Allied press is still talking about the forthcoming help of 1,000,000 soldiers.

The paper ridicules the statement that at first 50,000 men have arrived, and later a full million are coming, and adds that in the repetition of this bluff the question of who is to ship the army is forgotten, likewise the 3,000,000 tons of shipping necessary. It adds that the fact that the present fighting troops are veterans of three years is apparently also forgotten.

Reverting to America's military history, the Zeitung proceeds to give a resumé of the Spanish-American war, to the detriment of America, stating that even the much talked of Rough Riders were chiefly negroes. It says that "long afterward these conditions were subjects of American humor," and that dishonesty in American army contracts has taken on "almost Russian proportions."

It is learned here that the view is prevalent in Germany that even if the army lands America can never feed it.

The Lokal-Anzeiger comments sarcastically on the way the American public are "informed" about conditions in Germany. It says that at the time of the Reichstag crisis in July Washington received confidential information that the majority party had broken with the Admiralty over the U-boat question on account of Erzberger's stormy attack on von Capelle, and that this was only a symptom of the general unrest in Germany. The paper argues that this shows what an unfortunate effect such events have on Germany's enemies and how they are used to keep up the war spirit.

LABOR DELEGATES ASSAIL PACIFISM

GOMPERS DEFENDS CAUSE

Frank P. Walsh Charges That All Who Oppose Prosecution of the War Are Guilty of Treason.

Special to The New York Times.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Sept. 5.—Labor was called to the colors today by Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor, at the meeting of the National Alliance for Labor and Democracy. Without mincing words, Mr. Gompers, issuing a message which was intended for an international audience, voiced the purpose of labor in this war and declared there could be no arrangement between humanity and autocracy.

Organizations and individuals who are working to embarrass the Government, who are urging a premature declaration of peace, were termed the "conscious or unconscious tools of Germany."

The meeting today witnessed the organization of the alliance, saw the appointment of committees, listened to the open address of the temporary Chairman, Frank P. Walsh of Kansas City; the address of Samuel Gompers, and in the evening listened to patriotic addresses by Mr. Gompers, John Spargo, and Rose Pastor Stokes.

The purpose of the alliance was indicated in the appointment of the committees, which included trade unionists and former Socialists who have placed Americanism above partisanship.

The movement to organize a new national party was soft pedaled during the day, but it was made clear that a plan was on foot to bring together the federation forces and those Socialists who represent the intellectual and patriotic elements of their party into a working arrangement for the future. Their present and immediate purpose is to "win the war" and to stand by the Administration so long as there are snipers firing from the rear.

While words were uttered with amazing frankness relative to the ramifications of the secret workings of German influence in this country, there was much in Mr. Gompers's address which subtly suggested even wider ramifications than were directly charged. Mr. Gompers said that the effort to place labor in a false position was part of a plan which had been on foot for the past twenty-five years to disrupt the American Federation of Labor, and which did not hesitate to attack the United States in the accomplishment of this end.

Calls Pacifists Traitors.

All anti-war propagandists were assailed by Mr. Walsh and Governor Burnquist, who were the principal speakers at the morning session.

"Let me say to the man opposing successful prosecution of the war that if he is unmeaningly doing wrong, he is, nevertheless guilty of treason," Mr. Walsh declared.

"A moment's thought will decide that there never was in all the world a great country that was so altruistic in purpose and idealistic in its practices as is the republic of the United States," said Mr. Gompers. "With thinking men and women I count myself honored as one of the critics of the shortcomings of our government and our country. I am not given to hiding or to glossing over the wrongs which are committed against our people.

"Under all circumstances I have protested against a wrong committed against the meanest and humblest of our people in the United States and have tried to be helpful, so that the wrong should be righted and the right conceded and guaranteed, because I realized that we in the United States have not yet reached the acme of perfection industrially, politically, judicially, or socially. Is that a reason that I should lack in appreciation of that which has been done and that which has been accomplished?

"Take country for country, take the countries at war against each other and see where liberty and a conscience and freedom prevail. Beyond question it will be admitted by those who are fair enough to see the right and dare to utter the right that the democracies of the world are now engaged in one titanic struggle to free the world from autocracy, imperialism and militarism with one fell stroke."

Mr. Gompers said he had not believed the war possible, "and," he continued, "I doubt if there were many who were so thoroughly shocked as I was with the breaking out of the European war. But it had come. And I have asked myself, as I would ask those other men who have not yet awakened from their delusion, Is it not time to recognize when your country and your home is being ravaged and overridden?"

The speaker detailed the causes of the war and said:

"The United States has declared that she can no longer live in safety when there is, stalking throughout the earth, this thunderous machine of murder. She has cast her lot with the allied countries fighting against the greatest military machine ever erected in the history of the world. To ask the Government of the United States now to state specifically the terms of peace is to play, consciously or unconsciously, into the hands of the enemy. At this time the military machine of Germany and Austria is upon foreign soil. A peace at this time must necessarily be predicated, in part at least, upon Germany's conquest of these countries and territories."

Referring to reports of German defeats in Flanders, the speaker shouted amid applause:

"Back, back, back from Flanders; back from Serbia and back, back from France, and then perhaps we must determine the conditions of peace, but not until then.

"In the midst of war there can be no discussion with those who have the guns trained upon us."

Referring to the People's Council of America for democracy and peace terms, Mr. Gompers said:

"I am confident that, had the conference of the so-called People's Council been held in the City of Minneapolis and completed its work and we followed it, we would have matched brains with brains, heart with heart, service with service, and loyalty against disloyalty, and show the world the stuff of which we are made."

At the morning session Governor Burnquist welcomed the delegates.

In the afternoon John Lind, recently special envoy to Mexico, stated the case of America in the war with Germany.

John Spargo, recently expelled from the Socialist party, paid his compliments to the People's Peace Council. He said he was so sorry it had not been allowed to meet in Minneapolis, but charged them with being the tools of the German cause and with conspiring against the interests of humanity itself.

Rose Pastor Stokes said she had not been a good American in the past. She had looked upon America as a land of oppression. But with the reading of President Wilson's war message she had seen things in a new light and admitted her complete conversion.

FIRST ELEVATOR GIRLS.

Greenhut's Thus Fills the Places of Men Called to War.

Greenhut's, at Sixth Avenue and Eighteenth Street, is the first department store to install elevator girls. Yesterday morning twenty young women clutched the levers of as many elevators and conveyed the patrons of the store up and down without a hitch.

The girls will take the places of elevator men called away by the war, and they have been in training for several months for the service. The girls will wear uniforms of khaki as soon as they come from the tailor.

MacCracken Quits Defense Council.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., Sept. 5.—Dr. Henry Noble MacCracken, President of Vassar College, today wired to Governor Whitman his resignation as Chief of the Division of Instruction in Reserve Mobilization Bureaus, State Council of Defense. Dr. MacCracken announced that his resignation was made necessary because of his appointment as National Director of the School of Activities in the American Red Cross.

Bulgars Report Two Victories.

LONDON, Sept. 5.—A Bulgarian official statement, received today, reports that the French on the Macedonian front were repulsed Monday near Bratondol with very heavy sanguinary losses. It also asserts that on the Dobropolje the Serbians delivered an attack which ended in a sanguinary defeat for them.

PRESS AGENCY FOR EACH BERLIN BUREAU

AMSTERDAM, Sept. 5.—Hereafter every Government department in Germany is to have its own press bureau. The North German Gazette of Berlin, the semi-official organ, in announcing the plan, says the object is to establish close collaboration on a larger scale between the Government and the newspapers.

The press, however, says the semi-official organ, "notwithstanding the new scheme for its enlightenment, is to maintain its right of free judgment, which will be far greater in the new Germany—the Germany of world politics and internal reconstruction."

COPENHAGEN, Sept. 5.—Apparently to add point to the ultimatum of the Reichstag majority to Chancellor Michaelis that steps must be taken before the Reichstag reassembles this month toward abolishing the political censorship, the military commander for the Seventh Army Corps district, at Hanover, has just issued an order instituting a preventive censorship on all brochures, pamphlets, leaflets, &c., touching upon subjects of public interest.

The order applies to mimeographed and typewritten publications and those intended only for private circulation. Violators of the order may be imprisoned for a year.

British Drop Bombs on Adrianople.

LONDON, Sept. 5.—British naval airplanes penetrated far inland in Turkish territory Sunday night, dropping bombs on Adrianople, about 137 miles northwest of Constantinople, says an official statement today. The bulletin reads: "Naval airplanes dropped bombs with good effect on the railway station and bridge at Adrianople Sunday night."

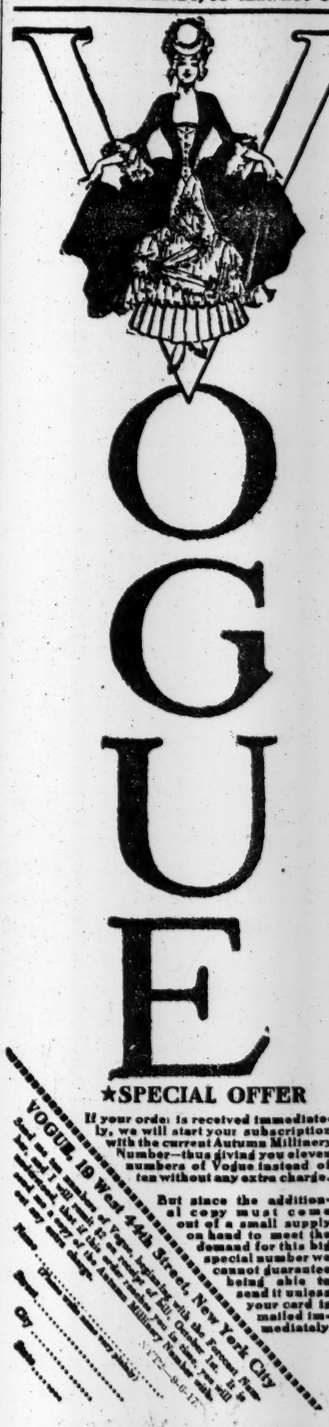
THIS year, above all others, when extravagance and waste are to be avoided, you should have Vogue at hand. For, now every woman must devote even more than her customary care to the selection of her wardrobe, so that not one hat, gown or wrap may remain unworn and its price wasted.



$2 Invested in Vogue

Will Save You $200

The gown you buy and never wear is the really expensive gown. Hats, suits, negligees, that miss being exactly what you want, are the ones that cost you more than you can afford.

Why take chances again this year when—by simply sending in the coupon and at your convenience paying $2—you can insure the correctness and economy of nearly a whole year's wardrobe.

VOGUE suggests that before you spend a single penny on new clothes, before you even plan your wardrobe, you consult its great Autumn and Winter Fashion numbers:

★Autumn Millinery — September 1
The best one hundred model hats Paris has produced for the Autumn of 1917. Model gowns from the openings, and the newest models in veils and coiffures.

Forecast of Autumn Fashions — September 15
The earliest and most trustworthy forecast of the Winter mode. An authentic tip on the correct fashions for the coming season. An insurance against the most costly of all wardrobe errors—a wrong start.

Paris Openings — October 1
A complete story of the Paris openings. The successful creations of each couturier, which taken collectively, establish the mode. This number includes the best models culled from the best collections.

Smart Fashions for Limited Incomes — October 15
First aid to the fashionable woman of not unlimited means. Even a limited dress allowance can be made to turn out a "Vogueish" woman, if she knows what is, and what is not smart economy.

Winter Fashions — November 1

Vanity Number — November 15
Those graceful little touches that make the smart woman smart, where to get them and how to use them.

Christmas Gifts — December 1

Holiday Number — December 15

Lingerie Number — January 1
Fine linen for personal use and for the household.

Motor and Southern — January 15

Forecast of Spring Fashions — February 1
Earliest authentic news of Spring styles. Fully illustrated.

In the next few months, during the very period in which Vogue's special Fashion Numbers appear, you will be selecting your entire wardrobe for the coming Winter, and spending hundreds of dollars for the suits, hats, gowns and accessories that you select.

Consider then, that for $2, a tiny fraction of your loss on one ill-chosen hat or gown, you may secure Vogue for six months—an assurance of valuable and new ideas and an insurance against costly failures.

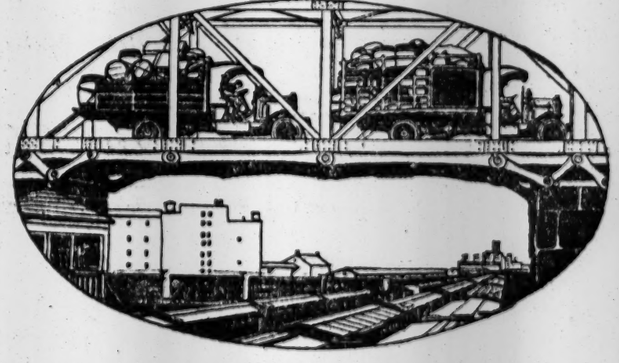
★SPECIAL OFFER

If your order is received immediately, we will start your subscription with the current Autumn Millinery Number—thus giving you eleven numbers of Vogue instead of ten without any extra charge.

But since the additional copy must come out of a small supply on hand to meet the demand for this big special number we cannot guarantee being able to send it unless your card is mailed immediately

Don't Send Money

You need not bother to enclose a cheque or even to write a letter. The coupon opposite will do, and is easier and quicker. With one stroke of the pen, you will solve your entire clothes problem.

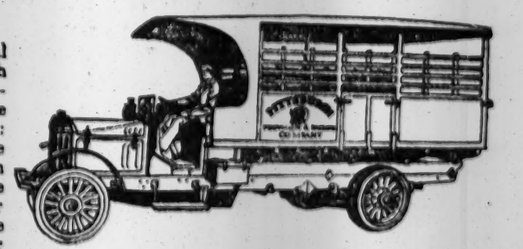


Adaptability

An outstanding feature of Pierce-Arrow truck performance is adaptability. In the widest variety of haulage problems, the Pierce-Arrow fleets have proved their ability to meet the most difficult conditions of service. Owners will tell you the details. If you have a transportation problem, tell us about it, and we will put you in touch with a Pierce-Arrow owner who has solved a similar one.

for example:

Mr. C. H. Ogden, General Manager of the Pittsburgh Provision & Packing Company, operating twenty-one Pierce-Arrow trucks, writes: "Our experience with the Pierce-Arrow truck has been very satisfactory. Upkeep, we think, is less than on any other truck, for the reason that we believe more care and better material is put in these trucks than in any other truck we have had experience with."



Great commercial successes are built upon sound economies like those effected by Pierce-Arrow trucks. A smaller business should not deny itself the advantages on which big business thrives.

CITY WILL HONOR DAY OF LAFAYETTE

SHARE FOR MARNE BATTLE

Officers of France, Great Britain, Italy, and Russia Will Be Guests of Municipality.

Lafayette Day, anniversary of the birth of the friend of American and French freedom, and also of the battle of the Marne, will be celebrated today, with officers of the armies and navies of France, Great Britain, Italy, Russia, and the United States and French civilian officials as the city's guests of honor. At 11 o'clock in the morning there will be exercises at the Lafayette Monument in Union Square, including an address by John Quinn. At 3 o'clock the guests will be received at the City Hall. There will be addresses by Mayor Mitchel, ex-Judge Willard Bartlett, Dr. Henry Van Dyke, and André Tardieu, French High Commissioner, a poem by Dr. John H. Finley, and the reading of messages from President Poincaré, Ambassadors Jusserand and Sharp, Admiral Beatty, and Major Gen. Pershing.

The Mayor will be assisted in welcoming the guests by James Stillman, honorary President of the Lafayette Day Committee; William Curtis Demorest, Chairman; Frank A. Vanderlip, Samuel McRoberts, Abram I. Elkus, Charles Stewart Davison, August Belmont, J. P. Morgan, Frederick H. Allen, William G. Willcox, William F. Van Ingen and Victor W. Cutting.

The guests of honor will be the following: France—Andre Tardieu, High Commissioner of the French Republic; Franklin Bouillon, member of the French Chamber of Deputies; Colonel Claudon of the French General Staff; Lieutenant Legastelois, Commander de Blanpre, Gaston Liebert, Consul General of France; Mr. Nettement, Consul of France; S. D. Halewyn, Vice Consul of France; Lieutenant de Latouche, and Daniel Blumenthal, former Mayor of Colmar, Alsace. Belgium—Lieut. Gen. Leclercq and Major Osterreith of the Belgian Military Mission. Great Britain—Commander Arthur T. Blackwood, R. N., and Lieut. Col. Campbell Stuart of the Canadian army. Italy—Colonel Bindo Binda. Lieutenant Mario Pasquali, Lieutenant Elmo de Paoli, Lieutenant Giuseppe Coppola, and Lieutenant Ugo Spinola of the Italian Military Mission. Russia—Colonel V. V. Oranovsky, Captain V. M. Zaikovsky, and Lieutenant N. N. Smirnoff of the Russian Military Mission. United States—Brig. Gen. Eli D. Hoyle, U. S. A., commanding Department of the East; Rear Admiral N. R. Usher, U. S. N., commandant Brooklyn Navy Yard; Colonel W. A. Simpson, U. S. A.; Lieut. Commander John W. Wilcox, Jr., U. S. N.

At night the Franco-American Society, of which Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler is President, will entertain guests at dinner at the Waldorf-Astoria. Sir Cecil Spring-Rice, the British Ambassador; Baron Moncheur, head of the special Belgian mission, and Lieut. Gen. Vladimir Roop, chief of the military section of the Russian Ministers, have accepted invitations to the exercises at the City Hall. The response for France on this occasion will be made by M. Franklin Bouillon, who is President of the French Radical Party. He is a graduate of Cambridge University, and will speak in English. Lafayette Day tricolor buttons will be sold by women and girls on the streets for the benefit of the Lafayette Fund.

MRS. DE SAULLES'S KIN ON WAY TO NEW YORK

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

HAVANA, Cuba, Sept. 5.—Mrs. Blanca Verrara Errazuris, her daughter, Miss Amalia, and her son, Guillermo Errazuris, mother, sister, and brother of Mrs. Jack De Saulles, in jail at Mineola on the charge of killing her husband, arrived here today on the way to New York.

Guillermo Errazuris is in the Chilean diplomatic service and will be connected with the Chilean Legation at Washington.

Mrs. Blanca De Saulles, who is accused of shooting her husband "Jack" De Saulles, when she called at his Summer home at Westbury, L. I., on Aug. 3, to get possession of their son, heard for the first time yesterday afternoon of the legal proceeding afoot to have the boy placed under the guardianship of his uncle, Charles De Saulles. Henry A. Uterhart, attorney for Mrs. De Saulles, informed her of the move when he visited her at the jail in Mineola, L. I. The attorney feared that the service of papers without some such warning might cause his client to break down.

"Mrs. De Saulles took the matter very hard, but had recovered somewhat before I left her at 6 o'clock," said Mr. Uterhart. "My client will insist that I oppose this application for the physical custody of Little Jack, and I shall do so, on the ground that such a proceeding is unnecessary at this time. If it were a question only of a business matter, it would not be necessary, as it would only require the appointment of a trust company to look after the boy's financial interests.

"There is less reason for changing the guardianship of the boy at this time, as he is being well cared for by his father's other relatives."

The health of Mrs. De Saulles does not show much improvement, it is said, although recently she has shown interest in the drilling of some soldiers on the Hempstead plains, of which she occasionally gets a glimpse from her room in the jail.

Arms Prices Cut to Government.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—General Crosier, the Chief of Ordnance of the army, tonight authorized the statement that the Government had been able to save money in buying arms and ammunition as a result of large purchases. A saving of $750,000 has been made in the purchase of bandoleers and $95,000 has been saved in the purchase of clips.

NEW TYPHOID CASES ON STATEN ISLAND

Three Reported to Health Board Head and Five Others Suspected.

FOUND IN TRAIL OF MILK

New Jersey Offers Aid in Search for Infected Cows and Contaminated Supply.

Three new cases of typhoid fever and five new suspected cases were reported yesterday to Dr. Edgar Wisely, head of the Richmond Health Board, by special physicians appointed to follow the West New Brighton route of a milk dealer who had been buying contaminated milk from a farmer in Delaware, N. J. Thirty-five cases of typhoid are now being treated in the hospitals, while about forty suspected cases are under observation.

"The situation is not alarming, but it is serious enough to cause some anxiety," said Dr. Haven Emerson, Health Commissioner, yesterday. "Typhoid is a disease that is with us always. Under normal conditions Richmond would have about forty cases a year, and as long as that normal stage is maintained we pay no more than ordinary attention to it, but when this number of cases is reported in a few days we take quick steps to warn the public that the sanitary regulations must be observed strictly and the utmost care in the selection of food and milk must be taken."

The New Jersey State Board of Health has offered its aid in finding the source of contamination of the milk supply, and experts have carried the search to Delaware, N. J., and will find the farm and perhaps the infected cows today. It was found that one New Jersey dealer had served about 800 families, although his milk reached more than 2,000 persons because of the size of the families and because he sold to two ice cream dealers and one bakery. In one family seven cases are under observation.

One death was reported to Dr. Wisely yesterday, but he would not give the name of the child. Most of the cases have been reported from one of the best residential districts of West New Brighton. The Richmond Board of Health is insisting upon giving all persons the anti-typhoid vaccine and upon sending special nurses and physicians to study all suspected cases. The Seaside Hospital for Babies has not been taken over yet for the treatment of patients, but if the number of cases increases rapidly the institution will be used for typhoid patients. Most of them are now in the Staten Island and St. Vincent Hospitals.

Special sanitary officers and physicians, as well as nurses, are at work in the district where the cases were found, and the Richmond Medical Association is co-operating. A warning was sent out to the 4,000 residents not to eat raw food and to be careful in selecting a milk supply. Officials of the State Board of Health have also offered their assistance, and experts are studying the cases. It is pointed out that cases may appear for several days, since it takes from nine to fourteen days for a person to become ill after he has eaten contaminated food.

AMERICANS GET WAR CROSS.

Decorated for Bravery in Ambulance Work—Women Honored.

PARIS, Sept. 5.—The Cross of War has just been awarded a number of members of the American Red Cross Ambulance Service by General Grainter for bravery in removing wounded under a heavy bombardment of high explosive and gas shells. The awards, which cover the period of service from Aug. 17 to Aug. 20, were made to the following:

F. Singer, Paris; Paul Hughes, Montclair, N. J.; F. Carleton, Minneapolis; Edward Colledge and Thomas Woodell, both of Jacksonville, Fla.; Obadiah Armstrong, Newton, N. J., and Herbert Salvorson.

The War Cross also was awarded to Donald Belcher of Newtonville, Mass., of the American Field Service.

A silver medal was awarded to Mrs. Amelia Gassette of Chicago, and a bronze medal to Mrs. Mary Tiffany. Both of them are identified with the work of the American Hospital at Neuilly.

Atlantic City's Golden Harvest.

ATLANTIC CITY, Sept. 5.—Bank deposits on Tuesday amounted to $1,736,000. It is estimated that the visiting host spent $1,000,000 on Labor Day and an equal amount on the two preceding days. Bank Directors say that deposits have averaged almost $1,000,000 a day since July 1.

The "Lansdowne"
For FALL 1917

New Blocks $3.24 New Shades

This hat needs little introduction. Hundreds of New Yorkers, having made its acquaintance, come back each season for the newest models.

This Fall it comes with a slightly increased price—necessitated by the increased cost of materials and labor. We could have had one made to sell at the old price, but it would not have compared in appearance and service with the Lansdowne of seasons past. Therefore we chose to maintain the high quality and to add a little to the price.

THE LANSDOWNE, in a variety of new shades of gray, brown and olive green, is made exclusively for Macy's and bears the stamp of our own merchandise.

AN INNOVATION

For Your Protection we offer the Sanitcap—to be worn when trying on a hat—so you may be sure you are the first to wear the hat you buy.

CONGRESS CORDIAL TO VISCOUNT ISHII

WARNS AGAINST TREACHERY

Declares That for the Last Ten Years It Has Sown Seeds of Discord Between Us.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5. — Viscount Ishii, at the head of the Imperial Japanese mission to the United States, spoke to the House of Representatives today, pledging "the assurance of the comradeship and the co-operation of Japan" in the war against Germany. In splendid English, which was commented on for its scholarly tone by members of the House, he said that Japan was doing and would do everything that the resources of the country would allow. These sentiments won vigorous applause. He also warned the House to be on guard against the insidious treachery "that has found hiding places in our midst and which for the last ten years has sown the seeds of discord between us."

This note of friendliness had been preceded by similar cordiality in the welcome extended to Viscount Ishii and the members of the mission in the brief speech made by Speaker Clark, who said that "every right-thinking man in the Empire of Japan and the Republic of the United States hopes that peace an amity and friendly relations will always prevail between these two great powers."

The members of the mission, accompanied by officials of the Japanese Embassy and representatives of the United States Government, arrived at the House at 12:30. They were escorted to the floor of the House by a special committee.

Their appearance in the House was the signal for a burst of applause from the members and from the galleries, crowded with women. Viscount Ishii and Admiral Takeshita were escorted to the Speaker's rostrum, while the other visitors were grouped in chairs at the foot.

"I thank you most sincerely for this gracious reception. The rare opportunity thus afforded to me is deeply appreciated throughout the nation I have the honor to represent. I bring a message, borne by us across an ocean and a continent from the Emperor and the people of our beloved island set in the Far Eastern Pacific, to the President of the United States and to you, the representatives of the greatest republic on earth today, a potent factor in the most stupendous and, we must believe, the final struggle for liberty throughout the world.

"Our message reiterates an assurance of unchanged sincerity of friendship well understood by the people of the United States, but it is a message which has never found opportunity such as this for delivery. Your courteous permission for us to occupy a place on this historic rostrum and to speak within the hearing, in fact, of the hundred millions of people of the United States of America, carries with it a forceful manifestation of the sentiment which we believe the United States entertains toward my country.

"We would not have traveled ten thousand miles merely to repeat what must have sufficiently impressed itself upon you, but that within the last few months a new day has dawned—a day welcomed indeed by us. It follows upon another when, with magnificent forbearance, you endured great wrongs and outrages in the hope that recourse to the sword might be avoided. It was a day in which you bore the pitiless cruelty of the willful aggressor of all human rights—bore it bravely and with fortitude until the star of hope vanished and toleration ceased to be a virtue. Then, in the dawning of this day, you arose and threw your mighty forces into the balance against the wrong in favor of the right.

"In this dawning the Stars and Stripes flung across the skies were entwined with the emblem of the Rising Sun and so commenced the brighter day. That is why we are here. We come to bring to you the message of our Emperor which gives you assurance of the comradeship and the co-operation of Japan throughout this day. We are here to say that, with the other allies, we heartily welcome the advent of the United States in the fields of France and elsewhere. We recognize the great uplift given to humanity and the promise of a physical victory doubly insured by the most momentous of decision you have taken.

"We bring to you assurance of support, unselfish, without a motive other than the common force that drives us all today. We of Japan face the task seriously and with determination. We recognize the grim and unrelenting order we all must obey. We know that the desperate foe of civilization must be met by self-sacrifice, counsel, and unsleeping watchfulness. We are here to say that Japan has done and will do what may be demanded of her to the utmost of her resources and to the best of her ability.

"Yours are vast resources, ours may be small, but we can say to you that the spirit of Japan burns as ardently and will last as long as may be demanded in this war. We are eager for counsel with you. We come to find out how these two nations can best co-ordinate their energies and their resources; how best they can co-operate in the conduct and the winning of this war. We come to say to you that we are proud on this day to stand shoulder to shoulder with the soldiers of America. In the field and in the household, in the mine and in the shop, the men, the women of Japan are working and will work with a greater confidence and a higher sense of moral obligation.

"Japan has exerted herself with the spirit of loyalty to her allies, her Emperor, and to her homes, following the ideals of our national life, to which I alluded when I had the honor of addressing your Senate a few days ago. Japan will continue to add her quota to the sacrifice which alone can insure a victory. Like the people of America, those of Japan have remained permanently independent because of a real patriotism which, when the occasion demands, never fails. We, like you, protect ourselves against aggression from without and treachery from within. We, like you, know nothing of tyranny and despotism, and we, like you, stand determined that malfeasance and oppression from the conqueror, imposed upon the conquered, shall not become the lot of our people. Neither shall our families and our homes be violated and desecrated by the licentious and brutal forces of evil now trampling upon the helpless women and children of the countries they have overrun.

"Mr. Speaker and Gentlemen of the House of Representatives—We have been climbing a mountain toward the stars by sometimes defferent and devious pathways, but near the summit our roads shall join, and together we shall win into the full sunlight above the clouds. We shall pass safely through the dangerous places. Our blood shall not have been shed, our sacrifice shall not have been made in vain, for we shall be among the nations of a world living in a brotherhood of peace. Will it not then be a source of intense national pride to each of us to remember this day, which must insure a permanent maintenance of these renewed pledges of comradship and of co-operation?

"I again wish to express my sincere appreciation of the honor you have done us."

GERMANS DISOBEYED ORDER

Sailors from Destroyed Trawlers Refused to Join Warship.

LONDON, Sept. 5.—An Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Copenhagen gives the story of German sailors who escaped from the armed trawlers run ashore last week on the Jutland coast near Ringkjobing and destroyed by British vessels.

The Germans say that four trawlers left early Friday morning in pairs, with great steel nets between them, for catching British mines. Two submarines accompanied them. The sailors assert that they made several trips successfully, enabling the submarines to pass through the British mine field.

While the German sailors were standing on the Danish shore after their rescue a German warship appeared and signaled orders to them to embark in Danish fishing boats and proceed to the warship. They refused, and the commander of the warship sent a motor boat to fetch them. This boat capsized. Its crew was saved by fishermen.

HUDSON ADOPTS CONTROLLITE AS STANDARD EQUIPMENT FOR 1918

THAT'S PROOF—for you—from one of the biggest automobile companies in existence. That's expert opinion—for you—on how these lenses meet all State laws and mark a new era in headlights.

Controllite lenses throw short, wide beams on the road and the fences directly before the car—and long, straight beams down the road for distance illumination. It's the famous bifocal principle now first applied to headlights. The white pattern shown above, clear and bright on the road, is the Controllite sign of safety.

No dimming necessary—no glare—no loss of light as in colored lenses—no doubt about your safety and comfort.

National Medley—One Step
Columbia Record A5975, $1.25

It rings in six other "befoh de wah" tune-gems, winding up with "Dixie," played with a dash that would make a Vermonter give a Rebel Yell. Prince's Band (under the supervision of G. Hepburn Wilson) renders this music in a way to set the gouty and the rheumatic ringing the doorbells of dancing masters. A two-part record.

Night Time in Little Italy—Fox Trot
Columbia Record A2282, 75c.

There's something about the roll and staccato beat of a drum that stirs every human and sets the feet into rhythmic involuntary motion.

With just a piano to help, "Night Time in Little Italy" pours a cascade of meter into a room and gives the weariest trotter a second-wind of energy. "Hezekiah" on the reverse side is a splendid one-step.

Memories—Waltz Columbia Record A5974, $1.25

"Memories" is a new waltz and a good one. Most pleasant memories seem to move through our thoughts in the soft, stately tempo of the waltz, and the waltz itself is an awakener of memories. On the reverse side is a beautiful orchestral playing of a tuneful waltz, "Hawaiian Nights."

Add to these George Cohan's "You're a Grand Old Flag" One-Step, the "Mele Hula" Fox-Trot by the favorite Jockers Brothers, the "Cold Turkey One-Step" by Rector's Orchestra and "Indiana" One-Step by the Dixieland Jazz Band—and you have records the Columbia dealer likes to be asked to play. The Cheero Spirit

The world is whirling faster than it ever whirled before. If you want to keep up with a double-quick winter, you must read a double-quick magazine.

Vanity Fair is the look-liveliest, step-liveliest periodical in America. It prints stimulating humor—lots and lots of it—by the best of our younger and more unconventional writers and artists. It epitomizes the cheero spirit. It views the stage, the arts, the sports, the gaieties and all the enlivening and highly vitalized sides of modern life bravely and cheerfully.

Let Vanity Fair wake you up. Let it show you—from month to month—the magical and revolving kaleidoscope of New York life.

For Exactly $1

In order that you may become one of America's intellectual advance guards, and so keep up with all the surprises and entanglements of modern life, and at a minimum of expense, we—here and now—make you a special war-time offer of an entire winter of Vanity Fair for one green dollar—just half the money you throw away on a single ill-chosen theatre ticket.

One little 3x7 dollar will bring you the next five issues of Vanity Fair—and even six, if you fill out and mail the coupon at the bottom of this page promptly.

Theatre Fans Wake Up!

Read Vanity Fair and you can see all the plays and be a first-nighter without even stirring from home. You can keep in touch with all the latest gossip of the plays and players.

Every Issue of it Contains

THE STAGE: Reviews of all that's going on—and coming off—in the theatre; and portraits of who's really who in the New York dramatic spotlight.

THE ARTS: Painless criticisms and peerless illustrations of all the newest and most discussed happenings in painting, literature, sculpture and architecture.

HUMOR: Not the custard-pie school, nor even the Sunday supplement vein, but the most amusing work of our younger and more restrained writers and artists.

ASSORTED NUTS: Portraits and revelations of all the best-known and most carefully assorted nuts, writers, dancers, dramatists, wits and half-wits, beaux—and all the other mad hatters in our great social wonderland.

SPORTS: Every known species of sports; indoor and outdoor, heroically masculine and politely ladylike.

ESSAYS AND REVIEWS: The enlivening and unconventional output of our most wakeful essayists, critics, and authors.

THE OPERA AND MUSIC: Operatic stars, composers and conductors—their portraits, plans, quarrels and personalities.

DANCING: All varieties of dances—both wild and hot-house—and their indoor, outdoor, rhythmic and ball-room exponents.

FASHIONS: The last word—pronounced with a Parisian accent—on the smartest clothes for the smartest men and the smartest women.

DOGS AND MOTORS: Photographs and life histories of the most successful 1918 models of well-bred dogs and well-built motors.

SHOPPING: The heart of the blue list shopping district; a pageant of its riches; and the shortest and easiest way to acquire their contents.

IN SHORT: Vanity Fair is a mirror of the whirling life of New York. Look in it and you will invariably see only the sunny side of the silver lining of even the blackest of Life's thunderclouds.

KAUFF'S BAT PUTS GINGER IN GIANTS

SECOND FRAY EASY THEN

Revivified Polo Grounders Corral Latter Half of Double Bill by 5 to 1—Herzog Back Again.

That fond hope which the flying Phils have been entertaining to embarrass the pennant ambitions of the Giants was crushed early yesterday afternoon when Benny Kauf sent 15,000 fans into a frenzy of joy by poling a home run to the right field stand, which lifted McGraw's club from the depths of despondency and shot over the two runs which won the first game of a double-header by a score of 3 to 2.

That jubilant jab by Benny marked the turning point of the Giants' slump, for following the first victory, they easily won the second game by a score of 5 to 1, after driving Eppa Rixey from the box. Benny's luscious home run, coming at just the time when the Giants looked as if they were cracking, had an electrifying effect on McGraw's troupe, and their old confidence returned. The double victory yesterday puts the Giants ten games ahead of the Phillies, with four more games coming in the next few days.

Not in three weeks have the Giants played as they gamboled all around the Phillies yesterday. In the first game Chief Bender, pitching just as well as he ever pitched in his long career, had the Giants beaten for seven innings. The tall, gaunt Chippewa three times turned the Giant runners back when they lounged on third and second ready to score. His control was uncanny during those first seven innings, and it appeared as if the Giants were going to crack in this all-important series.

Giants Glum in Eighth.

The Giants looked like a pretty thoroughly beaten team when they ambled up to the bat in the eighth. The score was 2 to 0 against them, and Bender wore a smile of confidence which only spreads over the redman's face when he feels that he has his opponents under his spell. Burns, who was the only one of the Giants who up to that time was able to do anything at all with Bender's benders, slashed a rousing double to left field. Herzog cudgeled a single to center and sent Burns over the plate. Then came Kauf with his big bat in his hands and fight in his eye.

Twice before that when Benny had come to the bat there were Giant runners on the bases, and both times Benjamin struck out. So when he faced Bender in the eighth he was mad clear through. Benny gave the ball a terrific smash and it soared high toward the grandstand, hitting the front of the upper-tier boxes, he and Herzog nonchalantly trotting home with the victory.

While the crowd took on something scandalous in their cheering and noisemaking, the Giants all of a sudden threw off the lethargy which has had them in its throes. They threw their caps in the air and danced around like a lot of jumping jacks. The players rushed from the bench and slapped Kauff on the back until he begged for mercy. The Giants had come back to life, and no mistake.

Herzog was back in that first game, as full of life as ever, while for a few innings behind the bat was Lew McCarty, catching for the first time since June when he broke his leg in Cincinnati. Ferdie Schupp pitched seven innings of the first game and was taken out for Wilhoit's entrance as a pinch hitter. Fred Anderson finished the game in fine style.

Giants Right on Their Toes.

In the second game the Giants went at Eppa Rixey hammer and tongs in the very first inning. The Giants were on their toes now and there was no stopping them. After Burns went down at first and Herzog had fanned, Kauff amid another peal of thunderous applause slapped a single to left and stole second. The great Zimmerman whaled a tremendous drive to left center for three bases, sending Benny home. Pfeter then rapped a single to right, scoring the Bronx idol.

The shock of having that first game snatched right out of their very grasp at the eleventh hour had the Phillies badly rattled, and in the second inning of this last tilt their defense became as loose as ashes. Jim Thorpe beat out a hit to Stock and went to third when the Phillies' third baseman made a wild throw to first.

Rixey lost control when Holke was at the bat and one of his slants hit the first baseman in the head, dropping him in his tracks. It was several minutes before the stars were all wiped out of Holke's eyes, and the injury had much to do with Rixey's early retirement, for the Virginian was plainly nervous over the accident.

Rariden bunted down the first base line and Luderus made a wild throw to second to force Holke, Thorpe racing home on the miscue, while Holke went to third and Rariden to second. After Sallee fanned, Burns rolled to Rixey, and while Holke was being run up and down between the bases Rariden came along and occupied third base, something he had no right to do as Holke had already taken out a lease on that pier. Consequently Rariden was out. Herzog was walked purposely and filled the bases. Again came little Benny Kauff into the picture. He laid a bunt down along the third base line for a single and Holke scored.

SERIES MAY START OCT. 6.

CHICAGO, Sept. 5.—Details for the world's series are to be worked out at a special meeting of the National Baseball Commission to be held in Cincinnati Sept. 20, President Johnson of the American League said tonight. The spirited race between Chicago and Boston for the American League pennant will have been definitely enough settled by that time, President Johnson said, to assure going ahead with the plans.

Although Charles A. Comiskey, President of the Chicago club, declines to make any statement claiming the American League championship, orders for world's series seats are beginning to pour in from Middle West cities. One Chicago enthusiast placed an order reserving thirty-two box seats today. These orders are being held up, however, until Chicago is certain of beating Boston.

There is a strong possibility that the series, if Chicago is the American League contender, will start in Chicago on Saturday, Oct. 6, President Johnson said, although the place for playing the first game is decided by the toss of a coin. President Johnson said the National League might waive this formality and agree to start the games in the West so a Sunday game could be played.

NO SERIES TICKETS YET.

Giants' Management Will Make No Reservations Until Flag is Sure.

Because the offices of the Giants have already been swamped with applications for tickets for the world's series the club officials made the announcement yesterday that no reservations would be made and nothing done in regard to the world's series until the proper time arrived when it would be possible to issue an announcement covering all the details.

The club officials want to be absolutely sure first that the Giants have the flag clinched before any plans are announced. It is a certainty, however, that when the time does arrive for the ticket distribution an unusual effort will be made to keep the tickets out of the hands of speculators because of the many ticket scandals of former years.

It will be the policy of the New York club this year to do away as much as possible with the mail order system and place every ticket possible on public sale at the grounds.

Canadian Cricketers Win.

Turning the tables upon their victors of the day before, the Canadian cricketers, representing the Church and Mercantile League of Toronto, notched a well-earned triumph over the All-New York eleven on the grounds of the New York Veteran Cricketers Association at West New Brighton, Staten Island, yesterday, the margin being 42 runs in favor of the men from across the border.

STATESMEN CHECK SPURT BY YANKEES

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—The Yankees today failed to live up to the promise of a spurt occasioned by their work against the Red Sox at Boston and the Senators took the opener of a six-game series by the score of 3 to 0. Failure to take advantage of opportunities that loomed up in eight of the nine innings kept the Yanks scoreless and some loose work in the field by Gilhooley helped the Senators to pick up their runs.

It was a sorry exhibition of offensive play that the Yankees gave today. Not until the ninth inning was the home team able to set down the New Yorkers in order. High opened the sixth with a triple and was doubled at the plate when Gilhooley flied to Menosky. In another inning two passes were received and in the eighth Caldwell, High, and Gilhooley singled in succession. The Yanks got nine hits off Ayers, drew two passes, and got a runner to first on an error, but could not score a run.

Gilhooley had a particularly bad day. In the first inning he fumbled a hit by Menosky, when perfect play might have made a close play or got the runner at second base. The hit went for a double, the scorer giving Menosky the benefit of the doubt. In the sixth Gilhooley overran Rice's hit, and it went for a triple instead of a single.

Later he put another runner on third by dropping Leonard's fly in deep right field. Two fly balls to the outfield sent these two runs across, adding to the runs which Leonard had carried over in the first inning.

Double plays by the Senators helped considerably in keeping the Yankees runless. Gedeon hit into one in the second inning after Pipp had opened the inning with a single. In the third Shocker bunted into another double killing after Nunamaker had started with a hit. In the sixth High ran into a double play at the plate when Gilhooley hit a fly after his triple.

The Senators started the scoring in the first frame. Menosky hit to right and got a double when Gilhooley's momentary fumble prevented any chance for a play. He went to third on Shanks's sacrifice, Milan walked, and while Gedeon was throwing Rice out at first Menosky counted.

Rice opened the seventh with a drive to right and the ball bounded past Gilhooley for a triple when he overran it. Foster's fly to Hendryx sent Rice home. Morgan followed with a single past third, and when Gilhooley dropped Lonard's hoist to right field, Morgan romped around to third. Ainsmith followed with a fly to Hendryx and Morgan registered.

WHITE SOX SWEEP SERIES.

Take Final Game with St. Louis by 4 to 1 in Eleventh Session.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 5.—By taking today's game 4 to 1 in eleven innings Chicago made a clean sweep of the series and strengthened its hold on first place. A batting rally after two were out in the eleventh won for the visitors.

McMullin singled and took third on a single by E. Collins. Jackson was purposely passed, filling the bases. Felsch singled, scoring McMullin and E. Collins, and while Felsch was being run down between first and second Jackson scored.

Chicago's run in the seventh was the result of successive singles by Jackson, Felsch and Gandil. St. Louis tied the score in the eighth on Johnson's double, Lavan's sacrifice hit, and a sacrifice fly by Sothoron.

VOSHELL IS VICTOR AT NET.

Defeats Throckmorton in Patriotic Exhibition Tennis Play.

SCRANTON, Penn., Sept. 5.—Several of the touring ranking tennis players of the country appeared in exhibition matches at the patriotic tournament of the Scranton Country Club, which opened here today. W. T. Tilden of Philadelphia defeated Charles Garland of Pittsburgh 7—5 and 6—3, while George Voshell of Brooklyn won from Harold Throckmorton, Elizabeth, N. Y., 7—5 and 7—5.

In the mixed doubles Miss Mary Browne of California and Charles Garland of Pittsburgh won from Mrs. Robert Williams of California and W. T. Tilden, Philadelphia.

MRS. PRITCHARD IN FINAL.

Will Meet Miss Lowerre for Yonkers Tennis Honors.

Mrs. W. H. Pritchard yesterday won the right to oppose Miss Madeline Lowerre in the final for the women's singles tennis championship of Yonkers when she defeated Mrs. A. L. Bailey in the semi-final round at the Park Hill Country Club 6—4, 8—10, 6—4. The match was one of the closest and most interesting that has been furnished in the women's part of the tournament since its beginning.

In the second set Mrs. Pritchard several times was within one point of gaining the honors and victory over her rival. Throughout Mrs. Pritchard showed superior in steadiness, but Mrs. Bailey's stronger drives gave her the honors of the set.

In the men's competition, semi-final round, Herbert Forster, winner of the tournament last year, scored a convincing victory in straight sets over Henry Kaltenbach, by scores of 6—1 and 6—3.

EVEN BREAK FOR DODGERS.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., Sept. 5.—The Brooklyns had a batfest against the pitching of big Ed Walsh of the Braves in the first game of today's double header, pounding him safely sixteen times for eight runs and winning, 8 to 1. The Braves escaped a shutout only because Cadore let up in the ninth, when, after three hits, he forced in Boston's only run by issuing a base on balls.

The first game, however, served to eliminate practically all the hits from the Dodgers' systems, for in the afterpiece, in which they faced the former Brooklynite, Allen, they made only three hits and were beaten, 3 to 1. Young Miljus pitched the second game for Wilbert Robinson's club, and tossed the game away himself in the eighth inning, when, after passing Allen, he made a wild pitch and then a wild throw to second base, so that Kelly's sacrifice fly was sufficient to make things even for the Braves for the day.

Cadore pitched great ball in the first game, the Braves getting only two far separated singles until the final inning. Walsh's pitching was not bewildering, although the Braves fielded wretchedly behind him.

Early in the afternoon the Dodgers scored in five different innings, leading 3 to 0 until the sixth, when O'Rourke, Krueger, Myers, and Stengel laid out four hits for three runs. Boston, until the ninth, did not reach second base, but finally counted on hits by Walsh, Bailey, and Rehg, after which Cadore ticketed Tyler.

In the second game Brooklyn made two of the three hits against Allen in the second inning, negotiating its only run. The combination was a hit by Johnston, an out at first, and a scratch two-bagger for O'Rourke on a ball that Kelly misjudged in left field. Smith's single, Rawlings's sacrifice, and Allen's single tied the score for Boston in the fourth, the teams then fighting at evens until the Braves' eighth, when, after passing Allen, Miljus made a wild pitch, and then threw wild to Olson in trying to catch Allen napping. This set the stage for Kelly's sacrifice fly to Johnston to win the game.

APPEAL BY MISS MORGAN

Refugees in Desperate Need and War Ruins Must Be Rebuilt, She Says.

The War Council of the American Red Cross, of which Henry P. Davison is the Chairman, announced last night the appropriation of $500,000 for the establishment of a Hospital Supply Service in France, the service to be under the direction of the Red Cross Commission in France, of which Major Grayson M. P. Murphy is the head.

"This step," the Red Cross statement reads, "marks the further centralization of relief activities in France under the Red Cross. How to co-ordinate all the military hospitals maintained by American and other foreign societies and individuals and to provide them with the supplies and materials they needed at a minimum cost was one of the first problems undertaken by Major Murphy on his arrival in Paris.

"Several warehouses are now being established by the Red Cross Commission throughout France as a part of the new Hospital Supply Service. Here drugs, medicines, and surgical instruments will be available for all hospitals in the department in which the warehouse is located. Orders can be filled promptly without even awaiting approval from Paris.

"As Director of the new Hospital Supply Service the War Council is sending to France Stanley Field of Chicago, a son of the late Marshall Field. Assisting Mr. Field and in charge of the various warehouses will be business or professional men volunteering their services for the period of the war. Five of these have already been selected and are now on their way to report to Major Murphy.

"These men are John Woodward of the Cycle Publishing Company, New York City; Todd T. Lewis, a broker, of Minneapolis, Minn.; Kennard Windsor, a member of the Stock Exchange of Boston, Mass.; J. Sheldon Tilney of New York, and Russell Armstrong, also of New York.

"As an operating force for these warehouses Major Murphy has asked the Red Cross to recruit in the United States a force of 300 men over military age. Men of experience in the building of warehouses and the handling of stores are preferred. What this hospital supply service will mean in increasing the effectiveness of many of the war hospitals in France is shown in a message received from Major Harvey Cushing, in command of Red Cross Base Hospital 5, now in service behind the British lines in France.

"'I cannot tell you how cheered I was,' Major Cushing reported, 'when I found how well organized the Red Cross was in Paris and what a great start you had made.

"'When an American officer could actually walk into the warehouse you had taken over and get Squibb and Mallinckrodt ether, bathrobes, adhesive plaster, aspirin, surgical instruments, aspirating needles, and many other things which our camps happen to need, for the first time began to realize what the Red Cross might be able to do for waifs like ourselves over here.

"'It all goes to show what an enormously important part the Red Cross will undoubtedly come to play as more people come over and our affairs overseas get more and more complicated.'

"The American Fund for French Wounded, 20 West Twenty-third Street, which is one of the principal relief organizations co-operating with the Red Cross, received yesterday the following cablegram from Miss Anne Morgan, the Chairman of the organization, who is in France:

"The repatriated French refugees are now returning to the villages in our district, enduring desitute of shelter or means of livelihood. The movement in order to insure the cultivation of the soil is making every effort to supply movable houses; furniture, agricultural implements, and tools are vital immediately.

"This week we are establishing ten families in a small village, making them capable of self-support under decent conditions for the Winter. With this help they soon acquire new courage to start rebuilding their own ruins on a permanent basis. Meanwhile we have countless demands for others which we are unable to meet. They are congested in those villages which are only partially destroyed—as many as eleven in one room, sleeping on the floor.

"In one case a former farmyard now shelters three families, living in a piggery and a corner of a stable. Our gift of believe to a blacksmith makes one family self-supporting, and insures the mending of the wantonly destroyed agricultural implements of the district. The horribly insanitary conditions make it impossible to conserve youth under such circumstances.

"Now, when the need is greatest, an invested capital of $125 per family is worth ten times that amount at the end of the war.

The fund appeals for contributions in money or clothing for men, women, and children, farming implements, &c., to be applied to this work in the devastated sections of northern France. One of the special needs at this time, it is stated, is money to buy fruit trees for the destroyed orchards. All gifts should be sent to 20 West Twenty-third Street.

$300,000 FOR SYRIAN RELIEF.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—The Red Cross War Council today announced that it had made a second appropriation of $300,000 for relief work in the Near East through the American Committee for Armenian and Syrian Relief. Estimates furnished by the committee show that there are more than 2,000,000 persons in Western Asia whose lives can be saved by direct and continued help from America.

The committee since its organization nearly two years ago has distributed about $8,700,000, practically all of which has been raised in America by subscription. One of the main branches of its activities is the training of women and children among the refugees to be self-supporting.

GIRLS AND BOAT DISAPPEAR.

The police of Fort Lee, N. J., are investigating the disappearance of two girls in a row boat. Captain Stowe of the Undercliff Motor Boat Company at Edgewater yesterday afternoon saw two girls jump into a boat and leave the shore close to the office in which he was. It was an unusual occurrences and he watched them until they were fairly well out in the stream. He lost sight of them when they passed behind one of the freighters that is moored in the river and they did not appear again. The police started an investigation last night. One theory that was advanced was that the girls were held aboard the freighter.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

"Oh, Justine!" by Phillip Bartholomae, will go into rehearsal next week and be produced at the Forty-fourth Street Theatre in October, with Miss Justine Johnstone as the star.

Allen Doone, the Australian actor-manager, has invited American actors and actresses who have played in Australia to see his performance of "Lucky O'Shea" at the Thirty-ninth Street Theatre on Monday night.

The Shuberts announced yesterday that Frank Tinney had been engaged for the Fall production at the Winter Garden. This will be his second appearance at that house.

Dillingham and Ziegfeld have engaged the dancers, Fred Nice and Ada May Weeks, for their production, "Taming the Satyr," at the Century Theatre.

Oliver Morosco has engaged Marion Abbott, Judy Lewis, H. J. Carthi, and Ina Horks for parts in the cast of "Lombardi, Ltd.," the new comedy by Frederic and Fanny Locke Hatton, which will open on Sept. 17 at the Morosco Theatre.

The Belasco Theatre screens opens tonight with "Polly With a Past," a comedy by Frances Middleton and Guy Bolton. The cast includes Ina Claire, Cyril Scott, Lester Dailey, William Sampson, Winifred Fraser, and Thomas Reynolds.

Helen Westley is to remain with the Washington Square Players despite rumors that she is to continue in the cast of "The Lucas," in which she is now appearing by courtesy of The Players.

Cecil Keighley is to play the leading role in William Brevet Wilkes's play, "Broken Threads," which will go into rehearsal next week.

ITALIAN WAR FUND GROWS.

Many Contributions Received by Posts Toward $100,000 Charity.

Robert Underwood Johnson, Chairman of the Committee of American Poets, who are endeavorin gto raise $100,000 for the American Ambulance in Italy, announced yesterday that within the last two days the contributions to the fund have amounted to $4,773. Of this sum, two large individual gifts of $2,000 each for the purchase and equipment of an ambulance were received from Mrs. J. E. Platt Stone of Baltimore and Mrs. Mary Emery of Cincinnati.

The committee in charge will purchase the two ambulances by cable today and have them put into the field at once. Mrs. Stone not only made a gift of an ambulance, but she also gave the services of two volunteers, one of them her nephew, William Davenport Platt, and the other Lawrence M. Simmonds of Baltimore. Both men are ready to go to Italy, paying their own expenses.

Scores of men active in art, literature, and music, prompted by their attachment for Italy as a cradle of artistic inspiration, are offering their services to the committee. Mr. Johnson said that within a week he expected to have about 1,000 writers engaged in the work of raising by Oct. 1 the fund of $100,000 for the American Ambulance in Italy.

SIX MORE GERMANS SEIZED.

Prisoners Made in Trenton Are Sent to Ellis Island.

TRENTON, N. J., Sept. 5.—Six Germans, said to have been formerly on interned steamers in the Port of New York, were arrested by Federal officers at a hotel near this city today and removed to Ellis Island. The charge on which the men were arrested could not be learned, and their names were not made public.

The proprietor of the hotel said the men had been at his place for more than two years, one of them having been in his employ and the others working in local manufacturing plants. He also said they had made application for citizenship some time ago.

Backus Estate More Than a Million.

The estate of Charles De Witt Backus, Vice President of the First National Bank, who died on Feb. 15 last at his home at Montclair, N. J., was appraised yesterday at more than $1,000,000, but only $8,444 of the estate was taxable in New York. Nearly the entire estate was in securities. He gave $5,000 each to the Montclair Hospital, the Children's Home Association, and the Y. M. C. A., all of Montclair, and divided his residuary estate equally between his nephew, Charles B. Thomas, his sisters, Clara B. Wright, Grace E. Backus, and Julia M. Backus, and his brothers, Morris and Carl M. Backus.

NEW CARMEN APPEARS.

The San Carlo Grand Opera singers, the Italian company which is appearing in its first two weeks' engagement here, appeared in "Carmen" at the Forty-fourth Street Theatre last night, and, as in its previous performances, were well received by an intensely appreciative audience consisting in large part of their countrymen.

Ester Ferrabini sang Carmen in French and with a dramatic fire and vigor of action seldom equaled here. Manuel Salazar took the part of a very youthful Don José; Joseph Royer, who also sang in French, that of Escamillo, and Louisa Darclee that of Michaela.

The company will give "Rigoletto" tonight, "La Gioconda" on Friday evening, "Traviata" at the Saturday matinée, and "Il Trovatore" on Saturday night.

KKK "Keep Kolynos in Your Kit"

There is a tremendous amount of human interest in putting up a "comfy kit" for a soldier.

Every woman working on a Red Cross kit pictures to herself the soldier at the front using the various articles included.

The letter opposite furnishes a vivid picture of the unusual emergencies in which these "parcels" from tender hands at home may figure.

It will remind every American soldier to "Keep Kolynos in His Kit" and every woman preparing a "comfy kit" to include in it a tube of this soldiers' dental cream.

NEW YORK, THURSDAY, SEPT. 6, 1917.

AS HE MOVES ON RUSSIA.

This time there is a hollow, forced, perfunctory tang to the Kaiser's congratulations. The resonant, full-throated roar, swelling with conviction, gives place to a half-mechanical toying with the old phrases. Where are "old FRITZ up there" and "our good old GOD" and "the good German sword" and "we shall not relent" and the rest of them?

On the occasion of the capture of Riga I express to you and the Eighth Army my and the Fatherland's congratulations and thanks. Farseeing leadership and steel-hard will to victory guaranteed this fine success. Onward with God!

The Kaiser responds to the usual demand for an inspiring telegram, words that shall be half-battles, but this time he responds like a weary horse under an insistent spur. Riga would once have been a great conquest, but he is not half so enthusiastic over it as he was over Bucharest. The reason is that the campaign against Riga and Petrograd is insincere. It is a political campaign, not a military one. He could have had Riga long ago. He did not want it. His troops have been lying cynically before it all through the days of the revolution. Now the word has gone forth to take it, and they have taken it, and they are advancing perhaps to Reval, perhaps to Dvinsk, perhaps to Petrograd; but the campaign is not against an enemy in the field, it is against the people at home.

There must be a success that will at least sound large to still the voice of discontent and hearten the German people to stand through another Winter of war. That is the meaning of this advance, that and the need for more territory to bargain with in the bargaining day which the Kaiser still believes will end the war, though he is wrong and it will not end in a horse trade. See, we have not only conquered little countries like Serbia, we have taken the capital of one of the great Allies, or are in a position to take it; hold out for a few months longer, stand the agony of another Winter, and you will see them all fall. That is the will-of-the-wisp with which he hopes to dazzle the eyes of his long-suffering subjects, that is the trumpet to still the murmurs.

Yet it is a desperate expedient, which he must be undertaking with misgivings. The capture of Petrograd, even the serious menace of its capture, may be the one thing needed to stir the vast forces of nationalism in Russia into rising and crushing the centrifugal forces of anarchy and socialism and unifying themselves. It took the capture of the capital in 1812 to rouse the nation, the same thing may have the same result in 1917. The Kaiser and his lieutenants are playing with dynamite, but their need at home is great. Whether they will carry their expedient to the point of really moving over hundreds of miles of frozen swamp in Winter is doubtful, but they may have to do it if the initial success, the capture of Riga, fails to evoke reverberations from the sounding board at home. If successful, the German advance into Russia will be a dangerous success; if it fails to silence the home voices and reconcile the people to another Winter of war, it will have failed utterly in its real object, whatever happens in the field. And therefore it is that the old phrases no longer rush from the Kaiser's throat in a stentorian shout, but drop mechanically from him in the voice of a tired man performing a task.

UNNECESSARY RAILWAY WORK.

Our railroads, stimulated by the demand for war work and by the appeals of prominent railway officers connected with the Council of National Defense, have recently been carrying 26 per cent. more freight than was transported a year ago, and are doing this with an addition of only 3 per cent. to the number of their cars. But the war, while it requires more work, is now reducing their supply of labor. For example, 2,549 employés of the Pennsylvania Company are serving with the colors, and the first draft will soon take about 3,000 more. This is the record for only one company.

It can be foreseen that the demand for railway service will be greater in the near future, with the growth of our new army and the movement of troops and supplies. The railroads should be relieved of work that is not absolutely necessary. Employment of their engineers, clerks, and trackmen under the valuation law should be discontinued, or suspended until the return of peace. All who are engaged in this work should be released. They are needed for other kinds of labor. Valuation can wait. When it is completed, at heavy cost to the companies and the Government, it may not be worth much. Parts of the statute's requirements can be satisfied only by very great expenditure of money and labor. The Government officer directing this work, who was formerly a member of the Interstate Commerce Commission, some time ago said that the cost of doing what these parts seemed to demand might equal the value of the entire railway system, which is capitalized at $20,000,000,000. Employés who are giving their time and energies to valuation service should be free to take up again the railway work that calls for them.

THE UNITED STATES.

In that Washington demonstration Tuesday in honor of the District of Columbia recruits to the national army it is not the Commander in Chief marching at the head, it is not the other figures, famous or distinguished, it is not even the continuous patriotic cheers along the way, that most impress, perhaps, the thoughtful spectator. It is rather the man in gray and the man in blue, who bear between them a standard with the legend, "The United States." For the independence and the liberty of the United States the men of the national army are to fight.

So from the marching recruits in Manhattan, Brooklyn, the Bronx, one carried away the remembrance of men of many origins and strains of blood, men of many race-names, welded together as citizens and soldiers of the United States. We see not only a union of "sections," if sections have now other than a geographical life, but a union of America, of Americans, of patriots, ready to defend the United States.

"Freedom," said CHARLES JAMES FOX, "is order, freedom is strength, freedom is unity." In and for that unity of freedom, which is the United States, our soldiers are to fight. These States, not only in name, but in heart and purpose, are the United States.

STEEL FOR JAPAN'S SHIPYARDS.

Our Government's embargo on exports of the plates used in making steel ships has seriously affected the shipbuilding industry in Japan, where thousands of workmen are idle because several construction yards have been closed. Stimulated by subsidies to builders, as well as to shipping companies, the growth of this industry since the beginning of the war has been remarkable. Orders have exceeded the capacity of more than twenty yards, and four new ones are approaching completion. Demand for ships there is so great that sales of new ones were made at Kobe a few weeks ago at $340 a ton. Many orders have come from Europe, and the builders were recently at work on $50,000,000 worth of vessels for Great Britain. But activity at the yards has been due largely to the expansion of Japan's export trade. The builders in conference have urged their Government to ask that in enforcing our embargo an exception be made in favor of Japan, saying that only by such action can the ruin of their industry be prevented. They add that we should promote construction of ships ordered by our allies. Their supply of ship plates has come from this country. When we entered the war they were taking more than one-third of our output, and it is said that 400,000 tons ordered before the embargo was imposed have not been delivered. The subject will be considered in the conferences between our Government and Japan's Commission.

In any inquiry about this embargo the reasons which caused it to be imposed must first be taken into account. Careful conservation of material for steel ships became necessary after we entered the war. Our construction plans call for 1,270 new ships and an expenditure of $1,934,000,000. A majority of these will be made of steel, and plates are needed also for the partly built vessels commandeered at private yards. Demands for other war material may so tax the productive capacity of our mills that it will be difficult to maintain the present output rate for ship plates. The embargo was not aimed at Japan, but was required on account of our own needs. A part of the work which the steel mills are doing is for Russia. Her railroad system is in a most deplorable condition. In the last six months 700,000 cars have been wrecked and 52,000 locomotives disabled. Unless help comes from this country, the railway service may be discontinued within a few months and the army thus deprived of supplies. We are making locomotives and cars for Russia, but we have no ships to carry them across the Pacific, and there are few British vessels now in that ocean, where Japan has a great number. All the steel ship plates we can produce should be used in making, here or elsewhere, with the least possible delay, ships for war transportation service.

Carriers ordered by our European allies in Japan's yards should be completed because they are to do war work. For these the builders should be permitted to receive ship steel, if we can spare it. But Japan must see that we may reasonably decline to furnish such steel for ships to be used only in ordinary trade, or for those ordered by Norwegian companies. If Japan would undertake to supply, from her great and growing merchant marine, ships to carry the locomotives and cars for Russia across the ocean to Vladivostok, we might allow the shipment of a quantity of steel for her own new merchant vessels on account of this service. It will not be difficult to reach an agreement with the Commission for a solution of the problem. We desire to serve the interests of Japan, but it will be admitted that our supply of ship steel, like our wheat, must be controlled and carefully awarded.

INCOME TAX RECEIPTS.

The American Protective Tariff League will regard with dismay the figures just made public by Commissioner of Internal Revenue OSBORN showing individual and corporation income tax receipts for the fiscal year ended June 30 last of $359,481,228. In the days when they were in power the Republicans felt it necessary to keep the internal revenue receipts of the Treasury at a low figure in order that a pretext might be found for high and always higher duties on imports. It was a maxim of Protectionist policy. For the first time in recent years the internal revenue taxes exceeded the customs collections in 1911, when the internal revenue yield was $322,529,201, the duties paid $314,497,071. That was under the Tariff act of Aug. 5, 1909, a Republican tariff professedly a reform measure, although it failed to satisfy the country. Beginning with the year 1914 the addition of the income tax to other internal revenue receipts has in every year increased the disparity between internal revenue collections and receipts from customs duties. For the fiscal year 1916 internal revenue receipts amounted to $512,702,028, customs receipts were $213,185,845. It reflects a great and permanent change in national policy. We look now to gains of individuals and of corporations rather than to custom houses as the chief source of Federal revenue.

In his last annual report Internal Revenue Commissioner OSBORN estimated the receipts from the corporation income tax for the fiscal year ended June 30 last at $133,000,000, tax on individual incomes at $111,750,000. The figures he now makes public show that the corporations paid incomes amounting to $179,372,888, while individuals paid $180,108,340, making the total yield of the income tax $359,481,228. New York, of course, makes the largest contribution to the income tax total, $46,566,952 in corporation taxes, $81,495,783 in taxes on individual incomes, a total of $128,062,735, or more than one-third of the income tax yield of the entire Union. While in nearly all of the less populous States the corporation tax very much exceeds the individual income tax, in New York the figures are reversed, individuals contributing nearly twice as much as corporations. Also in California, in Delaware, in Maryland, in Massachusetts, in New Jersey, curiously enough in Oklahoma, in Rhode Island, and in Texas the individual payments exceeded those of the corporations. Illinois, where, because of the great accumulation of wealth in Chicago, a similar showing might have been expected, returns, on the contrary, $2,500,000 more from corporations than from individual taxes.

THE BROADWAY SUBWAY.

The opening of the Broadway subway to Fourteenth Street is a long-awaited convenience to thousands of persons. It will save them two extra fares a day, a big sum in a year. It strikes right into the heart of the crowded loft region. It reaches at Fourteenth Street the great crosstown traffic. It will be a particular blessing to the workers whose homes are in Brooklyn. To them it means not only money but a half hour or so of leisure gained every weekday. Before the year is out the Broadway subway trains should be running to Times Square, and in 1918 they should arrive at their destination in Queens.

It is a pretty penny, or was before the war made us contemptuous of meaner sums than billions, the $500,000,000 or so that the city and the companies together have put or are going to put into the subways, but it is money usefully and necessarily spent that adds immensely to the facilities of transportation and will come back in real estate values and the development of the city. New York grows so fast that every completed effort to "relieve congestion" leaves new congestions to relieve, and sometimes it seems as if the streets of New York would have to be many-storied, like its heaven-hitting buildings; but if new millions of people come, new territory is constantly being tapped by the passenger lines and new settlements moderate of rent are built up.

We complain and grumble, often with cause enough, but one doesn't need a long memory to recall a New York primitive of transportation, a New York that put up meekly with horse-cars strewn with straw, with irritating, much-bouncing "jiggers," a New York mostly innocent of transfers. Looking back twenty-five years or so, it seems as if one now gets for a nickel what would have been at least 50 cents' worth of transportation, where it was to be had, in the brave days of old.

The finishing of the short end of the Broadway subway does a good deal more than mitigate for a little way the rigors of the interborough jam in the "rush hours." It restores a fine part of Broadway to the public.

How many years is it that great reaches of Broadway below Fourteenth Street have been barricaded, cluttered up, an eyesore, a rubbish heap, a dust heap, shut off from the world? With no disposition to look a gift horse in the mouth, and fully remembering the importance of the subway, it does seem as if the Public Service Commission had been too tender to the contractors, hardened street obstructionists over whom the city authorities were powerless or failed to exercise their power. A great piece of Broadway comes back to us, and it is welcome. Where it has been deserted during the construction it will revive. It will be easy of access. It will be convenient for trade. It remains to be seen what businesses it will be most congenial to and will specialize in. Its temporary troubles are over. Its new prosperity is before it.

NO FOOD NOW FOR NEUTRALS.

The just decision of the Export Council's Administrative Board concerning shipments of grain to Holland shows that Mr. MCCORMICK and his associates are thoroughly familiar with all the facts upon which their policy should be based. Licenses for exports of foodstuffs to the Northern European neutral countries have not been granted since July 15, but negotiations were pending for the release of thirty Dutch ships now in our ports, upon condition that two-thirds of the wheat which they have on board should be delivered to the Relief Commission in Belgium. And it was required that the fodder grain and mealcake in their cargoes should be unloaded. The Administrative Board has now decided that no American grain shall go to Holland or any other European neutral country before December, and that if shipment is permitted in that month there must be absolute proof that the supplies are needed by the neutrals themselves and will not help Germany in any way. Holland has grain enough for the next three months, and any addition now to what she has would probably aid our enemies indirectly by supporting her cattle, whose number has been largely increased for the benefit of Germany. Corn in the Dutch ships has so deteriorated while on board that it can be used only for live stock.

Holland was asked by the board to unload the ships and use them in bringing to this country the stocks of wheat in Australia and Java's accumulated surplus of sugar. It is understood that the reply from representatives of the Dutch Government was a refusal, and that they preferred to let the grain rot in the ships' holds. If this is their final decision, no exports of foodstuffs to Holland should be permitted in December or before the end of the war. In Australia there is a stored surplus of more than 150,000,000 bushels of wheat. Lack of ocean carriers has prevented shipment of it to our allies in Europe. If these Dutch ships would move it, Holland might have a part of the grain for her own people. We have not enough wheat for ourselves and our war partners.

Supplies of grain are lower in other northern neutral countries than in Holland, and their new crops are small. But they would now have much more food on hand if they had not sold to Germany what they should have retained for their own use. And now, while their people show their need by food riots, they are still selling to our enemy. It is estimated that Germany has obtained nearly one-fourth of her food supply from these neutrals, or more than enough to support her entire western army. This new Administrative Board has taken the right course. While ships are carrying our soldiers across the sea to the battlefield they must not be followed by other ships with loads of foodstuffs that may be used in some way to help the foe.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Canada Is Troubled No Longer.

As the Canadian anti-conscriptionists have made little more than a pretense of loyalty, and, if not openly pro-German, with no concealment at all they have denounced the policies and determinations of their own Government and threatened armed resistance, the mere fact that a number of them have been disclosed as taking part in a plot combining treason with murder will not appreciably change loyal Canadian opinions as to their deserts. The disclosure of the conspiracy, however, will have its effect in the way of providing the good citizens of the Dominion with concrete illustrations of what anti-conscription really means.

It is not surprising, therefore, that it is believed little more will be heard of the "revolution" of which so much has hitherto been said by the soapbox orators in Montreal and Quebec. The employment of professional criminals to advance a "cause" so thoroughly condemns it in the eyes of decent people that even if it had any merits or excuses in the beginning they need no longer be discussed, or at any rate will not be. From the beginning the anti-conscription crusade in Canada has been handicapped by the fact that its originators were unable clearly to state their real motives and objects. Conscription was not what they really opposed, but the helping of the Allies to defeat Germany, or, if that be not quite the correct way to put the case, it can be stated that the opposition was to the winning of a great victory by countries which included one thought to be deserving not of triumph but of punishment.

There is no great likelihood that our own antagonists of the carrying out of national plans will be caught in just this trap, but it is significant that one group of them are of exactly the same sort and class as the men who assaulted American bluejackets in the streets of Cork this week, while another section of these strangely assorted partners in denunciation of war in general, and of the sending of our troops abroad in particular, are in their hearts more scornful of pacifism and pacifists than any other people on earth. They, too, are obliged to conceal their purposes, and naturally their efficiency suffers from the necessity to apply their energies obliquely. There is always a terrible waste of force in that.

Its Word Seems Misplaced.

German newspapers in the United States having been, hitherto, rather more German than those in Germany, there is a special significance, even a prophetic significance, in the fact that several of them are making at last the enormous admission that to be longer tolerable certain rather important changes must be made in the spirit as well as the form of the German Government. Hitherto we have always been told by those papers that the German Government was as nearly perfect as a human institution could be, and that its acts, like its head, were above criticism. Now we learn not only that absolutism does have its faults, but that they must be corrected as a means of ending the war and of making peace permanent.

In an editorial article already quoted on this page the Staats-Zeitung declared that Germans at home and abroad should pray for such changes "as will bring Germany into harmony with the political convictions of other advanced nations." One cannot help noting with something of doubt as to its propriety the presence in that phrase of the word "other." If the political convictions of Germany are at present out of harmony with those of nations deserving to be called "advanced," then by logical necessity—which is quite as coercive as the military sort—it follows that, with respect to its political convictions at least, Germany is still in what might be called a state of arrested or delayed development.

That being the case, the word under consideration was, to say the best of it, superfluous, and, to treat it sternly, wrong. But of course a nation may be advanced in some respects and a laggard in the national procession otherwise. In just how many and what respects she may be behind other nations of generally admitted advancement and still deserve to be ranked among them—these are delicate and difficult questions, and nobody's opinion on the subject has much chance of passing wholly unchallenged. When the difference, however, is that between real parliamentary rule and the irresponsible control of a man whose only right to power comes from birth, then the room for argument is decidedly small and the opponents of autocracy will not listen either long or patiently.

All Goes Well Down in Spartanburg.

Late reports from the Spartanburg training camp disclose the not very surprising fact that the site is not in every way ideal and that in a good many parts of it much work will have to be done before the men there will be both safe and comfortable. Instead of treating this news as a reason for disquietude, however, its prompt arrival should be highly reassuring to the friends of the recruits.

If we heard that everything was already perfect, then indeed would the judicious have cause to grieve, for they would realize the disharmony of such a claim with terrestrial conditions anywhere, and they would see in it a disposition on the part of the military authorities to conceal or deny the inevitable "outs" of the situation rather than to remedy them. Frankly to admit that a thing is not right is the first and necessary and very promising step toward curing what is wrong. And that step has been taken without delay or hesitation at Spartanburg.

Conditions there are excellent, on the whole, and energetic measures to improve them have been taken. That is all that could reasonably be expected anywhere, and not a fault has been ascribed to the site that cannot be cured by intelligent work and expenditure.

Not the least encouraging element of the Spartanburg situation is the spirit that has been manifested by the people of the town. They are not exploiting the strangers by a sudden elevation of prices—a temptation that has not been resisted in some other places—and they are showing full appreciation of their duty as patriots to be friendly and helpful to men about to risk their lives in the country's service.

Soukhomlinoff.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I read with interest your article in the issue of Sept. 4 entitled "Soukhomlinoff." This is the Russian General whose statements the German reptile press put forth as their authority for claiming that the war was started by Russia!

What is the objection to the good English of "chosen" as the name of those chosen by Uncle Sam out of a number to do the work? EDWARD SIMMONS.

PORTENTS.

Why did the whippoorwill come
That never sang here before?
And why one night did a bird
Fly in at the open door?

The sparks of fire from the South—
The warblers—were flying low,
And often we found one dead
Or numbed by a cruel blow.

I held the mites in my hand,
Beneath the thrush on her nest—
The wild wood-singer—so close
We counted the spots of her breast.

Sparrow and robin and wren,
The augurs of old would say
Such omens were not in vain.

But who are the augurs now—
The wise ones—our riddles to read?
The secrets of war are plain.
For sibyls we have no need.

At every house is a sign—
In a wife's, in a mother's breast—
A fear, a longing, a flame,

HOW GERMAN AGENTS GET THEIR FUNDS.

Some American Banks Not Yet Observing Strictly All the Laws Against Trading with the Enemy.

By JOHN QUINN.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It has come to my attention that bankers generally throughout the country have a rather surprising lack of knowledge of the legal effect of a declaration of war. This appears from their continuing in many cases to honor orders from German institutions and branches or agencies of German banks and commercial concerns doing business in Central and South America and other parts of the world, and in continuing to make payments out of German funds held by them in this country. They seem to regard banking transactions as in a different class from ordinary trade with the enemy.

This lack of knowledge and the actions based upon it are of the utmost concern to the speedy success of the nation and its allies in the present war. A large part of the support which America is thus far giving to its allies in this war is financial. All of the belligerents are directly concerned with maintaining their credit and the parity of exchange, not only in Europe, but in South America and the Orient. It should not be necessary to say that anything which promotes the business and financial interests of enemy countries or citizens or subjects of enemy countries, or which expedites payments or business ventures of citizens or subjects of enemy countries, including the maintenance of their credit, and which gives them the use of banking facilities in neutral countries, is a military advantage, and that anything which hinders the freedom of their exchange, deprives them of the use of banking facilities, and lowers their credit is a military disadvantage.

In a war of the present world-wide dimensions the old forms of trading with the enemy, involving the physical transfer of tangible goods, are largely obsolete. Germany's one attempt to imitate the blockade runners of the civil war with the submarine Deutschland was abruptly abandoned. The entry of America into the war, followed by President Wilson's embargo, has, we all sincerely hope, put a stop to the surreptitious smuggling of American goods into Germany through the territories of contiguous neutrals. The chief form of trade, therefore, in which Germany can engage to her advantage is that within the limit of banking transactions.

It is well known that one of Germany's methods of capturing world trade was the establishment of strong banks with subsidiaries in Central and South America and the Orient. It is by manipulations through these banks that German exchange is to be maintained and German credit bolstered, if at all, during the present struggle. This war is being fought with money as well as with men. It is a great advantage to Germany to keep up the purchasing power of the mark. Anything which would tend to beat down the value of the mark is of advantage to the Allies. It would therefore seem to be a patriotic duty on the part of bankers to refrain from any dealings whatever with German banks or their South American or Oriental subsidiaries.

It is not only the patriotic duty of bankers to refrain from such dealings, but it is a strict legal duty. After a declaration of war all dealings with an enemy are strictly illegal.

In many cases American banks had received orders before the war to make continuing payments at stated intervals to persons resident in this country, some of them undoubtedly subjects of the German Kaiser. For banks to continue to make such payments after the declaration of war places them, in view of United States Supreme Court decisions, in this position: that the payments are without authority and may be repudiated by German banks after the end of the war.

In a great many cases, undoubtedly, American banks have honored drafts sent for collection by South American banks which are either subsidiaries or sub-agents or branches of German corporations. It is a well-known principle of law that one who deals with an agent is held to deal with his principal, and in these cases also American banks honoring such drafts not merely do business with alien enemies, which is contrary to law and illegal, but run the danger of having the transactions repudiated.

It is a mistake to suppose that banking transactions with German banks or their subsidiaries in neutral countries are, as assumed by many bankers, not illegal until the passage of the proposed "Trading With the Enemy Act," which is now pending in the Senate. This act in its present form provides:

> Nothing in this act contained shall render valid or legal or be construed to recognize as valid or legal any act or transaction constituting trading with, to, from, for, or on account of, or on behalf of, or for the benefit of, an enemy, performed or engaged in since the beginning of the war and prior to the passage of this act.

It is a great error also to suppose that it is the purpose of Congress to license in any way under the Trading With the Enemy act transactions of the general nature which I have just discussed. The act as now drawn provides specifically that the following shall not be licensed:

> Any act or attempted act of transmission or transfer of money or other property out of the United States, and the use or attempted use of such money or property as the basis for the establishment of any credit within or outside of the United States, to, or for the benefit of, or on behalf of, or on account of, an enemy or ally of an enemy.

The only payments which the proposed act will permit to be licensed are where the payments are to be made

(a) to a person within the United States;
(b) not to an enemy or ally of an enemy as defined in the act;
(c) where the funds so to be paid have been received prior to the declaration of war; and
(d) where the payments arise out of transactions entered into prior to the beginning of the war and not in contemplation thereof.

Where payments have been made prior to the passage of the act and drafts honored, &c., banks having so transgressed the law may find themselves in difficulties when called upon by the Custodian of Enemy Property, an office created under the proposed act,) to turn over all the moneys of the alien enemy or ally of enemy in their hands as of the date of the beginning of the war.

The proposed Trading With the Enemy act itself is stated by both the House and Senate Committee reports to be declaratory of the existing common law of the United States.

Good faith in dealings with alien enemies or their agents or branches is immaterial. All such dealings and trading as I have described are illegal. Assumed bona fides on behalf of the alien or his agent is immaterial, assumed innocence is equally immaterial, even where the assumption of good faith on the part of such an alien enemy appears to be a very charitable one, in view of the wide use of German money in this country during the last two or three years, to bribe, to subsidize pro-German propaganda, to incite labor disputes, and to bring about explosions and the burning of property, involving in many cases wholesale murder.

With these facts in mind, I am glad to know that the proposed Trading With the Enemy act, which has passed the House, and the amendments to which in the Senate are very admirable, will shortly be put upon the Senate calendar for consideration and passage. Then bankers and other business men will have a perfectly definite law to follow.

DUTCH COMMISSION HERE.

Brings Statistics of Exports Asked For by Our Government.

AN ATLANTIC PORT, Sept. 5.—Holland's special commission to plead the cause of the Netherlands in connection with American food exports arrived here today and will proceed to Washington tomorrow. In the party are Van Elde, former head of the Dutch Grain Bureau; J. B. Van Der Houven Van Cordt, former President of the Council of India; Joost Van Vollenhoven and a staff of clerks.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—The special Dutch mission is bringing information as to the food situation in Holland and statistics covering Dutch exports and imports of the last three years requested by the American Government in a recent note handed to Minister Van Rappard.

Negotiations looking to the shipment of foodstuffs to Holland will be taken up by the mission where broken off a week ago, when the Exports Board declined to permit the sailing of nearly 100 Dutch ships loaded with food and cattle feed.

The American and Dutch Governments reached a virtual impasse when the Exports Board refused to recognize an agreement made by Mr. Van Rappard with the Belgian Relief Commission calling for a division of the cargoes between Holland and Belgium. The Minister has declined flatly to order the vessels to unload unless some of the grain goes to Holland, and meanwhile the cereals are spoiling.

The special mission is expected to amplify a recent offer by the Dutch Government to turn over a large number of merchant ships to the United States in exchange for the release of foodstuffs. These vessels were to have been put in the American and coastwise service to release American ships for transatlantic trade.

The Exports Board has informed the State Department that its information shows Holland is in no immediate danger of a food shortage and that no food shipments should be permitted to go through for at least two months, during which time the United States can ascertain just what its export surplus will be.

CASTRO LEAVES VERA CRUZ.

Ex-Dictator Bound from Mexico for the United States.

VERA CRUZ, Mexico, Sept. 5.—Cipriano Castro, former President of Venezuela, is on his way on board a Spanish liner bound for a United States Atlantic port. He is still accompanied by men of the American Secret Service.

CAMBRIDGE, England, Sept. 5.—A large party of American college men has begun a course in training here for the aviation service.

French Minister Will Regulate Dealing in Beans and Potatoes.

PARIS, Sept. 5.—The Minister of Provisions has announced that beginning on Sept. 15 he will assume control over the prices of all potatoes and beans grown in France, and will determine for each region raising these products the prices which may be charged for them.

All trade prices will be decided by him on the basis of recommendations from departmental committees, composed of the prefects and directors of agricultural services in each department, and three tradesmen and three representatives of agricultural organizations.

The prices established will be revised every two months, and no exportation of these vegetables from the department of origin will be permitted except on certificate. Heavy penalties will be imposed for infractions of the order, including confiscation of the goods.

The official Journal publishes a decree under the civil requisition law ordering every producer, owner, and holder of any kind of oily seed, fruits, vegetables, and animal fats, oils, glycerine matters, soaps, and candles in quantities of 2,000 pounds to make a declaration thereof by Sept. 15.

Representations having been made to Maurice Violette, Minister of Subsistence, by the Restaurant Keepers' Association that the successive decrees enforcing restrictions in the consumption of food were irritating the public and resulting in attempts at evasion, permission has been granted to make an appeal to public spirit.

Placards will be posted in all restaurants of France reminding those behind the front that they have not yet suffered privations. They are asked not to exact more sugar than is allowed at restaurants, to be satisfied with the bread served, and not to waste it there or at home.

ROCKAWAY INQUIRY GOES ON

Frederick Lancaster, one of several real estate operators who made an appraisal of the Rockaway tract and who represented Edward Hatch, owner of the land in 1906, when it was offered to the city for $1,000,000, held a long conference with District Attorney Swann yesterday. At the close of the visit Mr. Swann said the operator had furnished him with information in regard to 400 acres which were included in Mr. Hatch's offer. This, Mr. Swann said, showed the city was overcharged as in 1911, he contended, only 248 acres were included in the tract for which the city paid the Neponsit Company $1,341,000.

Frank Bailey, Vice President of the Title Guarantee and Trust Company, was again a witness before the special Grand Jury impanneled by direction of Governor Whitman to investigate the deals. Agnes Farrell, a stenographer in the employ of the city, was also a witness. It was said that she identified a paper which showed that the city could have purchased the Seaside Park land for $25,000 less than was paid for it. The document, it is understood, was an option dictated by Tilden Adamson of the Bureau of Municipal Investigation.

EFFORTS TO MODIFY BOND BILL FUTILE

RULE OUT WAR BOARD MOVE

Amendments to Make Interest Rate 4 Per Cent. and Forbid Conversion Are Defeated.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—Every move made in the House of Representatives today to change the Administration's $11,000,000,000 bond bill was forestalled, but a little group of Republican members were so persistent in their attempts to modify the authority given to the Secretary of the Treasury to administer the bond issue and the proposed loans to the Allies that little progress was made.

Amendments offered by Representative Gillett of Massachusetts and Representative Moore of Pennsylvania to create a Congressional committee on the conduct of the war were promptly ruled out of consideration on points of orders made against them by Representative Kitchin of North Carolina, Chairman of the Ways and Means Committee.

The same fate befell an amendment offered by Representative Stafford of Wisconsin, who proposed a committee of four Cabinet members and the Chairman of the Federal Reserve Board to act in an advisory capacity to the President in connection with the loans to be made to the Allies.

Representatives Sloan of Nebraska and Morgan of Oklahoma offered amendments to fix the interest on all bonds at 4 per cent. and take from the Secretary of the Treasury all discretion in the matter. These were voted down, also Representative Sloan's amendment to take out of the bill the section authorizing the Secretary of the Treasury to use his discretion as to converting bonds from 3½ to 4 per cent.

It seems certain that the small group of Republicans endeavoring to modify the bill will force a separate record vote on the Moore or Gillett amendment to create a Congressional War Committee, but there will be no partisan division of the House on the vote. This was evidenced today when "Uncle Joe" Cannon took the floor in argument against the Stafford amendment for an Advisory Committee of Cabinet officers.

"I know no partisanship," he said, "in making appropriations for this great contest."

Representative Moore of Pennsylvania took every opportunity to criticize the authority given to the Secretary of the Treasury to use his discretion broadly, after conferring with the President, in the matter of lending money to the Allies. He complained bitterly that the "public is given no information as to how these colossal sums are to be used."

Representative Stafford's amendment provided for an advisory committee composed of the Secretary of the Treasury, the Secretary of State, the Secretary of Commerce, the Secretary of the Interior, and the Chairman of the Federal Reserve Board. Representative Ben Johnson of Kentucky, acting as chairman of the Committee of the Whole, promptly ruled it out as not germane, which precipitated a torrent of criticism of the power conferred on the Administration to make loans to the Allies without consulting Congress or any advisory board.

Representative Kitchin called attention to the fact that while the bill was being discussed in the Ways and Means Committee Secretary McAdoo apparently had convinced every member that each loan already made was wise; and that no man on the committee would have changed the loans in any particular.

Representative Cooper of Wisconsin endeavored to get information as to the loans made to Russia, but Representative Kitchin advised the House that it would be better not to go into that question.

Representative Cooper went into the manner of applying for loans. He was told by Representative Kitchin that when a duly accredited representative of one of the Allies went to the Secretary and made the proper representations as to the need for the money, the Secretary, after conferring with the President, made the loan.

Representative Sloan's amendment to knock out the conversion feature, which was defeated, was accompanied by the argument that to increase the interest on the existing Liberty bonds would cost $300,000,000 in interest in thirty years. He also said that further conversions to higher interest rates would be proportionately expensive.

Representative Kitchin took the floor again just before adjournment to say that no high interest rates could be authorized in the future except by Congress and that he had no idea any Congress would ever authorize bonds at a greater rate than 4 per cent.

TO LIFT BAN ON SMOKING.

Industrial Board Likely to Relax Restrictions in Factories.

The State Industrial Commission held the last of a series of four public hearings at 230 Fifth Avenue yesterday on applications to revise the industrial code with reference to smoking in factories. The proposed rules recently formulated by the Industrial Commission to permit smoking in protected parts of factories or in special classes of occupancies have received so much approval that their adoption by the commission within a month's time was said yesterday to be a certainty. Smoking has been prohibited in factories by law since 1913.

Under the proposed rules smoking may be permitted only upon written application by an employer, and after the issuance of a permit by the Industrial Commission. Smoking under these rules would also become permissible in cigar and cigarette factories, for sampling, testing, and experimental purposes, provided the factory building is fireproof or equipped with an approved automatic sprinkler system.

Among those at yesterday's hearing who were in favor of more stringent rules against smoking in factories was Mark A. Daly, general secretary of the Association of Manufacturers and Merchants of New York State, who urged that the regulations prohibiting smoking in factories be extended to twenty-four hours a day, so that under no circumstances could an employe of a factory smoke until he had left the building. He pointed out that great danger resulted from the lighting of cigarettes and cigars just as employes were leaving the building.

Charles Dushkind, counsel and secretary for the Tobacconist Merchants' Association, advocated protection for small tobacco manufacturers and dealers, and urged that no regulations should be put into force interfering with the successful conduct of their industry. Suggestions were also made to the commission to permit smoking in boiler rooms as well as in the foundries and forges so long as the conditions of fire protection were properly fulfilled. P. J. Gillespie, supervising inspector of the Bureau of Fire Prevention, who represented the Fire Department, advocated the use of signs indicating in which portions of a factory building smoking was permitted or prohibited as the case might be.

TELEPHONE GUESTS FOR WAR WEDDING

LIEUT. HUNTINGTON WEDS

Several war-hastened weddings were celebrated yesterday, one of them being so hurried that the guests were invited over the telephone.

A group of soldiers from the Seventh Regiment attended the wedding yesterday afternoon of Corporal Sloan Young, a member of Company G and son of the late Thomas Sloan Young, who was President of the Southern Oil Company, and Miss Elizabeth S. Weil, daughter of J. J. Weil, a banker of this city, which took place at the little Worthing Church at Elmsford, White Plains, N. Y.

The young couple had been engaged for some time, but it was not until Tuesday night that they decided to get married yesterday. So they made their plans quickly and sent out invitations to their relatives and friends over the telephone.

Miss Margaret Van Dusen of this city was the maid of honor for Miss Weil, and Cassela Young acted as his brother's best man.

Corporal Young is a graduate of Cornell University.

The marriage was quietly celebrated yesterday of Miss Margaret A. Riley and Lieutenant Edgar I. Huntington, U. S. N. A., at the Church of the Ascension, the Rev. Charles W. Naumann officiating. The bride is an English girl. Mr. Huntington is a brother of Mrs. Lindsley Tappin of this city, and received his commission at Plattsburg. Only the immediate families were represented at the hastened ceremony.

Miss Margery Middleton Aman, daughter of Mrs. Ambrose Aman of Philadelphia, and Joseph Dixon Walsh, son of Mrs. Charles Harper Walsh of 71 East Ninety-first Street, were married yesterday at the Chapel of St. Ignatius Loyola. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. J. Havens Richards. Mr. Walsh is a Color Sergeant in the Seventh Regiment. The couple's engagement was announced last February.

MISS BULL'S BRIDAL PARTY.

Plans have been completed for the wedding of Miss Frederica Bull, daughter of Captain and Mrs. Frederic Bull of Peapack, N. J., and Edward Welch Clucas, which is to take place in Grace Church on Tuesday, Sept. 18, at noon. The Rev. Dr. Charles L. Slattery is to officiate, assisted by Dr. John Harper of Peapack.

Miss Helen Bull is to be her sister's maid of honor, and Mrs. James Cox Brady, who was formerly Lady Victoria May Pery, matron of honor. The other attendants will include Mrs. Richard G. Wood, Jr., of Philadelphia, and Miss Emily W. Ford of Morristown, N. J.

James Cox Brady has been selected as best man. The ushers will include Elton Parks, Lowell M. Clucas, and Joseph Gilman of this city; George S. Munson and Richard G. Wood, Jr., of Philadelphia; Lord Glenesk of Limerick, Ireland, a brother of Mrs. Brady, the matron of honor; David Boies of Scranton, Penn.; E. T. Buckley of Fairfield, Conn.; Justice Wilson of Toledo, Ohio; F. Wilder Pollard of Boston, W. L. Mitchell of Cincinnati, and Burnside Winslow of New Haven, Conn.

There will be no formal reception following the wedding ceremony.

The bride is a member of the Junior League. Mr. Clucas is a graduate of Yale, class of '04, and a member of the Yale, University and Racquet and Tennis Clubs.

Pitt-Mackay Engagement.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Pitt of Brooklyn, now at their Summer home on Lucas Point, Sound Beach, Conn., announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Laura Humphreys Pitt, to John Stewart Mackay, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Mackay of Brooklyn. No date has been set for the wedding.

Miss Dunlap to Wed Lieut. Spence.

John R. Dunlap announces the engagement of his daughter, Miss La Belle Boyce Dunlap, to Kenneth M. Spence. The wedding is to be celebrated on Saturday at the bride's home, 55 East Fifty-third Street. Mr. Spence is a Lieutenant in the Officers' Reserve Corps, and is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis H. Spence of this city.

The War-The Machine-The Man

Germany Knew! England Learned! What?

THE extraordinary house-building operations of the British Government as vital to war winning are among the remarkable activities of this colossal struggle. Without houses, men cannot work.

The October number will illustrate "Eastriggs."

These should be studied by every person interested in the immediate building of homes for workmen as a vital primary factor in war-time industrial expansion and production. Our shortage in small houses is now limiting output, increasing costs and menacing our cause.

DISPUTE CREDIT FOR "IRON HINDENBURG"

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 5.—A dispatch to the Daily Chronicle from Amsterdam says:

"The famous iron Hindenburg in the Thiergarten at Berlin has been the subject of a curious lawsuit. It will be remembered that about a year ago a vast wooden statue of the Field Marshal was erected and for months afterward Berliners for small sums were allowed to drive iron nails into it until the hero was garbed in a rough coat of mail. Even Berliners, however, hardly took the statue seriously, and countless jokes were and are made about it.

"It appears, nevertheless, that two persons looked upon it as no matter for rough wit. One is Herr Georg Marschall, sculptor of no particular fame, who is declared to have originated and carried out the idea. The second is Herr Schimmelpfennig, who describes himself as a wood sculptor and who acted as Marschall's assistant.

"This second artist wanted all the glory of the achievement and began declaring right and left that it was he to whom Berlin owed this quaint curiosity. Angry letters passed between the sculptors and in the end the matter was taken before a court.

"After lengthy proceedings the twenty-first chamber of the First Royal Provincial Court at Berlin has solemnly decided that what there is of honor and glory in connection with the grotesque iron Hindenburg must be now and henceforward awarded solely to Marschall and that Schimmelpfennig may only inform his admiring friends that he lent aid in a secondary degree."

MISS ALICE HOYT WEDS.

The wedding of Bayard Dominick, a son of Mrs. E. M. Babcock Dominick of 22 West Fifty-first Street and the late Bayard Dominick, and Miss Alice Hoyt, a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Huested Hoyt, was quietly solemnized at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon in the chantry of Grace Church, Broadway and Tenth Street. Masses of white hydrangeas banked the walls and chancel, and the ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. M. George Thompson of Chrust Church, Greenwich, Conn., and the Rev. Howard R. Weir, an assistant at Grace Church.

The bride wore a soft white satin gown having a court train and draped with old family lace, and her tulle veil was held with orange blossoms. She carried lilies and star jasmine and had no attendants.

Andrew Varick Stout, a brother-in-law of the bridegroom, was his best man, and the four ushers were C. Arthur Comstock, Lamont Dominick, a cousin, Stanley McGraw and John Sargent, the last a brother-in-law of the bride. There was no reception other than an informal one in the chantry at the conclusion of the ceremony, there being about 100 present. Mr. Dominick has taken an apartment at 555 Park Avenue where they will live on their return from their honeymoon.

The engagement was announced several months ago. Mr. Dominick was graduated from Yale in 1894. He is a member of the firm of Dominick & Dominick, brokers, and belongs to the University, Union, Racquet, Union League, and Rumson Country Clubs. He is a brother of Gayer G. Dominick, who married Miss Cordelia E. Hoyt; of Mrs. Andrew Varick Stout, and of Mrs. H. Alexander Smith of Colorado Springs.

GEN. LYMAN B. FRIEZE DIES.

Ex-Quartermaster General of Rhode Island Was in His 94th Year

General Lyman B. Frieze, former Quartermaster General of Rhode Island and a veteran of the civil war, died yesterday at his home in New Brighton, S. I., in his ninety-fourth year.

He was born in Marlborough, Mass., and his grandfather on his mother's side was a Captain of Minute Men in the Revolutionary War. He saw service as a Lieutenant Colonel with Rhode Island troops in the civil war, and after the battle of Bull Run was appointed on the staff of Governor Sprague of Rhode Island, and was Quartermaster General and later Collector of Revenue of Rhode Island.

From 1882 to quite recently General Frieze was Treasurer of the Cranston Print Works at Cranston, R. I. He was for some years with the Spragues in the cotton mill industry in Providence, R. I., and with them founded the first three national banks in that city. He left three grandsons and two granddaughters.

CONGRESSMAN NELSON DEFENDS HIS SON

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—Representative Nelson of Wisconsin called on Attorney General Gregory today to investigate the action of the United States Attorney at Madison in issuing a warrant for the Congressman's son Byron on a charge of evading registration under the draft law.

In a letter to the Attorney General, Representative Nelson shows that his son was in Canada before the draft law was enacted. He then presents statements from the Provost Marshal General, the Secretary of War, and the Secretary of State to show that Americans in a foreign country are not compelled under the law to register until within five days after their return to the United States, and that their registration while outside the United States is entirely voluntary. Mr. Nelson also states that the nearest American Consul to where his son was located in Canada had none of the facilities for voluntary registration.

Unless there is some charge brought against young Nelson other than failing to register while in Canada, officials here do not see how he is to be extradited and prosecuted as the United States Attorney proposes. The case is puzzling officials. Representative Nelson voted against the war resolution.

MADISON, Wis., Sept. 5.—United States District Attorney A. C. Wolfe announced late today that a warrant has been issued for the arrest of Byron Nelson, and that unless negotiations now in progress for the young man to register voluntarily succeed, Mr. Wolfe will try to get him back into the United States either through extradition or by some other means.

Explaining his view of the law in this case, Mr. Wolfe said: "It is his duty to register, and the rule that Congressman Nelson quotes is applied to those cases which were abroad and could not register in time—namely, by June 5."

It was pointed out to Mr. Wolfe that Congressman Nelson had said that his son had no facilities for voluntary registration, and was not compelled to register abroad.

"He could have registered some time after June 5," said Mr. Wolfe, "by asking for a registration card from his local board by mail."

Mr. Wolfe said that a complaint is on file in the Federal District Court here, and that the warrant is in the hands of the United States Marshal.

"No steps have been taken yet to serve this warrant," said Mr. Wolfe. "I am awaiting action by relatives who have agreed that the young man will come here voluntarily, as soon as it is determined whether it is his duty to register. If he does not return voluntarily, I will try to get him over the line any way I can."

800 MORE RECRUITS OBTAINED FOR ARMY

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—New York had a banner day in regular army recruiting Tuesday and furnished 175 recruits, despite the fact that the army is now more than 10,000 above its war strength. It was easily the leader among the States in the day's work. Pennsylvania, which ranked second, furnished eighty-seven men yesterday, and Illinois was third with eighty-four. The daily statement issued by Adjutant General McCain follows:

FIRST QUOTAS AT CAMP DIX.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMP DIX, WRIGHTSTOWN, N. J., Sept. 5.—The first call for service in the new national army brought quotas here today from New Jersey and parts of the States of New York and Delaware. These men, who are going to fight for the ideal of democracy, will find this one of the most democratic camps in the country, perhaps. An indication of this was apparent before the arrival of the vanguard of the citizen soldiers when officers were seen assisting in making ready the interior of the quarters to have everything comfortable and inviting for their men.

The first man to register at Camp Dix was George M. Aluens, 29 years old, of Mount Holly, N. J. Clarence Brown of Parkertown was ahead of him at the camp headquarters, but Brown was unable to have his name placed on the books because he had forgotten his papers. At the headquarters of Major Gen. Charles W. Kennedy the names of the brigade commanders at Camp Dix were announced as follows: J. S. Malloy, Depot; J. T. Dean and M. L. Hersey, Infantry, and C. S. Hearn, Artillery.

There were two men only in the quota sent from Harrison, N. J. They are Frank Monahan and Michael Murphy, who were escorted to the train by Mayor Daly and others, with guards of honor from the Police, Fire Department, and the Home Guard. Ernest R. Lewis was the only man to come from Orange. He was escorted by the Mayor and many citizens, while all the factories closed for a holiday.

PACIFISTS DISTURB COURT.

Pacifists who gathered in the Plaza Police Court, Brooklyn, yesterday morning were hurried out of the room by the attendants and detectives when they started a demonstration on hearing John Frachtner, 24 years old, of 29 Stuyvesant Avenue, sentenced to six months in the workhouse for speaking on a street corner against the draft. Outside the building they waited for the police to take Frachtner to Blackwell's Island. The patrol wagon was backed up to the steps finally, and Frachtner was hurried out. His friends crowded against the police, and the prisoner himself clung to the rail of the patrol wagon and tried to make a speech. The police, however, pushed him in, and the wagon started full speed through the crowd.

Frachtner, a Russian, has been in the country five years. The testimony showed that he had urged mothers not to allow their sons to go to camp, and had advised his hearers to "get" the officials responsible for the draft law.

WILL ARREST SCORES OF DRAFT DODGERS

MANY ERRED INNOCENTLY

Men Already in the Service Reported as Delinquents—Conscientious Objector Arrested.

Scores of men who are alleged to have ignored willfully the Government's call to service under the provisions of the selective draft law are being sought by the Federal secret service agencies in New York. For several weeks past the Department of Justice agents have been investigating the cases of several thousand men. The investigation is now about completed. It was announced yesterday that the investigation had shown that less than 5 per cent. of those reported as delinquents had violated the law knowingly, and that when they were informed of the predicament they were in they lost no time in undergoing the required examination. The roundup of those who are said to be wilful violators of the law is now under way.

One of the men brought in late yesterday afternoon was Albert Herbert. At the same time Department of Justice agents arrested May Herbert, the man's sister. Both are charged with violating the selective draft law. Herbert was drawn for the first draft and, according to the Department of Justice agents, after he had been examined and passed for service, he appeared before his local board and filed an application for exemption on the ground that he was the sole support of a wife and child. Herbert is married but does not live with his wife, and the agents allege that he persuaded his sister to pose as his wife and sign the exemption claim. Herbert's child was produced before the board, which is Board 153, in Manhattan.

The agents found Mrs. Herbert and they say that when questioned she informed them that she did not care to make any claim on behalf of her husband. The sister said that she had written her sister-in-law's name on the affidavit and that in doing so she did not realize that she was violating the law. The United States Commissioner held Herbert and his sister in $250 bail each for examination next Wednesday.

For ignoring three calls to appear before his local board for examination Louis Rosenberg, 334 New Lots Avenue, Brooklyn, was arrested by Deputy United States Marshals in Brooklyn yesterday, and subsequently held in $5,000 bail for examination. Rosenberg was summoned to appear before Board 180 on Aug. 7, and when he did not respond a second and then a third summons was issued for him to appear. Finally a member of the board went to the young man's home and tried to examine him there. He refused to submit on the ground that he was a conscientious objector to war.

Antonio Goliani, an Italian barber of 110th Street and Amsterdam Avenue, was arrested yesterday morning on the complaint of Alexander Plavnick, Chairman of Local Exemption Board 155. Mr. Plavnick in his complaint says that Goliani was examined on Aug. 24 and that he was passed as physically fit for service. He then filed a claim for exemption on the ground that he was the sole support of a wife and two children. He was exempted by the board and the case was ready for certification to the district board when Mrs. Goliani told the members of the board that her husband had made a false claim. She said that she had not lived with him for four years and that she supported herself as forewoman in a shirtwaist factory, where she earned $15 a week.

Goliani was taken to the Federal Building, where he was questioned by Assistant United States District Attorney Content. He appeared very penitent, and said that if the Government would give him the chance he would waive all claims of exemption and would join the national army. Mr. Content decided to give him that last chance and he was released.

"The activities of the Government agents," said Captain William M. Offley, Chief of the Department of Justice Bureau of Investigation, yesterday, "have developed the fact that there are comparatively few willful violators of the selective draft law in New York City. Fully 95 per cent. of those reported as having failed to comply with the law can be accounted for. A great many of those reported to us among the willful violators of the law were found serving in the army or navy. There were many sailors who were at sea and did not know they had been called, while a great many proved to be foreigners who cannot read English, and as a matter of fact knew nothing about the law."

The District Board yesterday afternoon handed down a decision reversing a former finding which had exempted, because of Government employment, one Irving Levy, an appellant from Board 164. Levy, after he was passed by his board, appealed to the District Board for exemption on the ground that he should have been disqualified as physically unfit. The District Board denied the appeal and a few days later Levy filed a claim for exemption on the ground of employment. He has a job in the customs service and accordingly received exemption. Max J. Kohler, the lawyer, who is representing the Government before Board 164, investigated the case and found out that Levy had not entered the Government service until last May, and that his place in the service was not one which made his services indispensable to the Government in time of war. The case was reported to the District Board and the withdrawal of the exemption yesterday was the result. Levy will be certified for the national army.

The District Board handed down decisions yesterday in 521 appeals from local boards, and in seventy-one cases in which application was made for discharge from service for industrial or agricultural reasons. Of the appeals from local boards 361 were denied and 160 granted, while twenty-five of the industrial applications were granted and the rest denied. To date the board has handed down decisions in 3,633 cases, and in 2,626 cases the appeals were denied. The board yesterday also disposed of 237 of the provost marshal appeal cases, affirming the decisions of local boards in 223 cases and reversing them in fourteen instances.

One of the cases in which exemption was denied yesterday was that of Harry Reiman of 541 East Sixth Street, who asked for exemption as the sole support of an aged father. The father, who walks with the aid of a cane, was in the room when the decision was announced denying exemption. Some time ago he was placed in an institution on Ward's Island.

One of the Provost Marshal General's appeals that came to the District Board concerned Harry Glenn Ross of Tompkinsville, S. I., who is in the Sixty-ninth Regiment, which is now at Camp Mills. Ross had been exempted by Local Board 186 on the ground that he had enlisted in the National Guard. It was found that he had enlisted in the Sixty-ninth two days after he was called. The exemption was reversed and Ross will have to join the new national army.

The local boards are sending out daily the "pink slips" which contain the names of men who have not appeared for examination. These slips are sent out in triplicate, one to the Adjutant General in Albany, another to the Department of Justice, while the third is posted in the headquarters of the board.

BANDHOLZ REMAKING THE 27TH DIVISION

Special to The New York Times.

SPARTANBURG, S. C., Sept. 5.—The first step toward reorganizing the Twenty-seventh Division to conform to the new War Department plans was begun today by Colonel Harry H. Bandholtz, U. S. Army, Chief of Staff. When he finishes his task the infantry regiments will have 3,500 fighting men instead of 2,002, two infantry regiments will comprise a brigade instead of three, and the division will total 14,000 infantry, about 4,000 less than at present. This infantry reduction will be more than counterbalanced by the creation of machine gun units from Squadron A and other cavalry.

Colonel Bandholtz is likely to complete this work in two days or so, and then the Southward movement of New York troops will start.

The routine of camp organization is rapidly developing. Today Major Kincaid, intelligence officer, announced that Major Harvey Garrison, Twenty-second Engineers, had been appointed summary court officer for the camp. He will pass upon all minor infractions of rules.

Today was Colonel Cornelius Vanderbilt's forty-fourth birthday, and he celebrated it by working in long hours in the sun as "boss" of negro convicts straightening the road from camp to city. The Colonel told the crew just what he wanted them to do, and they started right in, but for some time did not get much work done. They heard that the "boss" was "sum kin to that yar man" what owns that yar place up to Biltmore, No'th Ca'lina," and they kept stealing long looks at him.

More than 200 recently commissioned reserve officers, Captain Robert Goelet among them, reported today for duty at the camp. They were assigned for the most part to the ordnance and quartermaster's branches. Whether they are to be assigned to former guard regiments or are taking a post graduate course in military matters could not be ascertained.

2,000 MEN OF 27TH OFF TO CAMP TODAY

MAIN BODY TO MOVE SOON

Troops Are Jubilant at Prospect of Leaving Armories and Quarters in Parks.

Twelve of the smaller units of the Twenty-seventh Division of the New York federalized National Guard will entrain today for Camp Wadsworth, at Spartanburg, S. C., where Major Gen. John F. O'Ryan with his staff and the headquarters troop and the Twenty-second Regiment of Engineers have been busy for several days getting quarters ready for them. It is understood that the main body of the division is to move as rapidly as railway facilities and camp accommodations may be provided.

Majors Edward Olmsted and J. T. Loree, in charge of division staff work here, received the orders from the War Department through Governors Island yesterday and transmitted them to Brig. Gen. Lester, acting divisional commander at Van Cortlandt Park. The units comprise about 2,000 men and include the headquarters force and military police, in the armory at Ninety-fourth Street and Park Avenue; a field bakery, four field hospital companies, four ambulance companies, and two sections of ammunition trains, all of which are at Van Cortlandt and Pelham Bay Parks.

Colonel Charles L. De Bevoise, commander of the First Cavalry of Brooklyn, who has been acting Commander of the military trains and police, will not accompany these units. His command will be taken over for the camp by Lieut. Col. C. C. Lansing and Major T. Harry Shanton. The military police will march from the armory to the Third Avenue elevated road to reach their train. The ammunition trains for small arms and artillery, consisting of twelve companies, divided in two sections under the commands of Majors L. S. Sherry and Walter L. Bell, will embark on barges near the Pelham Park encampment to go to the trains.

The other units from the two encampments include the field bakery, with headquarters at Peekskill; First, Second, and Fourth Ambulance Companies of Binghamton, Rochester and Syracuse, and the Third of Manhattan, and the First, Second, Third, and Fourth Field Hospitals.

All of the men in the armories were jubilant last night at the prospect of early departure for the Southern training camp. Because of the confinement and unpleasant housing conditions of the armories it was expected that these troops would be the first to go, but the orders from th eWar Department yesterday gave no intimation of the regiments or units that are next to move to Spartanburg.

Brig. Gen. James W. Lester, acting commander of the division and of all other units of the former State troops, has received no order regarding the disposal of three regiments not included in the tactical division. These are the Fifteenth Regiment, (colored,) which is on guard duty, with a battalion at each of the draft camps, Yaphank, L. I., and Wrightsville, N. J., and the Forty-seventh and Tenth Regiments.

Major Gen. W. A. Mann, with a staff of more than twenty-five officers, including twelve members of his personal staff, formally took command of Camp Mills, at Mineola, L. I., yesterday, relieving Brig. Gen. R. A. Brown, who is to command the Eighty-fourth Infantry Brigade, consisting of the 151st Machine Gun Batalion of Georgia, and the 167th and 168th Regiments of infantry of Alabama and Iowa. Colonel Douglas MacArthur, U. S. A., is chief of staff for Major Gen. Mann. Captain Oscar Underwood, Jr., son of United States Senator Underwood of Alabama, is to be a member of the staff. Brig. Gen. C. P. Sommerall was assigned to Camp Mills yesterday to command the Sixty-seventh Artillery Brigade.

New arrivals at Camp Mills yesterday were the 149th Field Artillery, Illinois; Fourth Ambulance Company, Oklahoma, and

A local manufacturer of novelty raincoats for women has recently designed and put on the market a particularly attractive garment, made from rubberized English woolen-silk of two-tone color effect. It has a new style novelty cape collar, the belted effect in front, and is made along straight lines with a wide flare at the bottom. The coat in question already has attracted considerable attention from out-of-town buyers and is proving to be very popular.

Drug Purchases Not Large.

Drug and Chemical Markets will say today that purchases of these articles have been restricted of late to immediate requirements. Export inquiries, particularly for explosive materials, continue active, but the scarcity of ocean freight space and the new export license regulations are hampering business and creating more or less confusion. There have been few important price fluctuations in the last week. One of the interesting changes was a drop in the price of quinine in second hands.

Consumers Are Provided For.

"With the opening of the Fall season," The Coal Trade Journal will say today, "there is probably as much anthracite above ground as in normal years, if not more, but the bulk of it is in consumers' cellars instead of in retail yards and company stock piles. This will reduce the pressure for tonnage later on, when cold weather arrives, but in the meantime dealers with large storage plants who have been unable to accumulate their usual reserve supply are badly worried over the outlook. The Government will have to modify its present price-fixing arrangement on bituminous coal or manufacturing plants will soon by closing by the dozen for lack of coal."

Like New Collar Prices.

Retailers of men's furnishings are not apt to complain of the new collar prices noted in yesterday's TIMES. The reason is that, under the old dozen price of $1.20, they got their laundered collars at 10 cents each and retailed them at 15 cents. Under the new dozen price of $1.30, the retailers get their collars at slightly less than 11 cents each and retail them singly at 20 cents. Not only this, but the selling of two for 35 cents and three for 50 cents will again make it financially worth while for a man to buy more than one collar at a time, which was not the case when collars sold at 15 cents "straight." As a result, larger sales are looked for.

Buying Sparingly Just Now.

Satin, botany worsted and taffeta dresses for afternoon and evening wear are said by local manufacturers to be in fair demand by retail buyers in town now from various parts of the country. There are said to be thus far no marked style changes over last year. Skirts may be, in some instances, a trifle longer and there are a few evening dresses appearing with sleeves of net, but outside of a few such details the styles of last year are still in vogue. A little later in the season, however, it is expected that some very attractive new designs will appear. For this reason, quite a few buyers are only taking their immediate requirements, holding up their large orders until there is more certainty as to just what "milady" will lavish her approval on and wear during the coming season.

Demand for Waists.

The entrance of women into business to replace men who have been drawn for the national army, according to reports from manufacturers of waists, already has begun to make itself felt in the trade. A number of retailers, evidently anticipating a large demand for waists due to many women having more money to spend for clothes, have been placing much larger orders than formerly for this season of the year, and in not a few cases, for a much higher grade of merchandise. Local manufacturers, many of them, claim to be in the rather unique position of worrying, not over how to sell their output, but rather how to keep their mills running at full capacity so as to fill their orders. The labor situation is said to be, with them as with others, a source of continual worry.

Want Fur-Trimmed Garments.

Fur-trimmed coats and suits and evening wraps are making tremendous gains in popularity for Fall and Winter wear, according to reports from a number of local wholesalers in the trade. Buyers for outside retail stores are said to be showing a very marked preference for these fur-trimmed garments, while at the same time displaying a healthy eagerness for other attractive new designs, particularly in the higher grade merchandise. The feeling is very strong throughout the trade that the stories circulated by the "professional pessimists" about bad business are being discounted at their true value, and, that, when the Fall buying season ends, it will prove to have been an unusually good one.

They Had Their Troubles.

"Before buyers start saying hard things about the hosiery manufacturers, concerning the increases they have made in the prices on Spring goods," said a veteran of the knit goods trade yesterday, "they should take into consideration the difficulties with which the mills have had to contend. It is no secret that wages have been raised several times since the last prices on light-weight goods were made, somewhat more than a year ago, and the cost of yarns has in many cases almost trebled. Only recently I was at a mill figuring on a deal, when, right in the middle of the transaction, we got word that the yarn going into the goods had been increased 18 cents a pound. Is it any wonder, under conditions like that, overlooking what Government requirements are going to do to the market, that the mills are none too keen about doing advance business? If the buyers controlled the mills themselves they could get little better prices and no better deliveries than they are getting now."

Not Much Snap to Gray Goods.

While the slight recovery in cotton yesterday tended to encourage sellers a bit, buyers showed little interest in the offerings in the local gray goods market. Quite a little business was done on odds and ends, short lengths, &c., but sales of A1 goods were limited. Reports were in the market telling of sales of 38½-inch 64-60s from first hands at 9¾ cents for contracts and at 9½ cents for spots from the same sources. Aside from this there was not much of interest. Sheetings continued quiet and relatively firmer than printcloths, which closed this way for first-hand spots:

BUSINESS NOTES.

The account of the Bry-Block Mercantile Company, Memphis, Tenn., is now being handled in this city by Kirby, Block & Fischer, Inc., resident buyers, 1,150 Broadway.

The Fall sale of the New York Fur Auction Sales Corporation will begin in this city on Oct. 15 and continue for four days. Judging from the present strong position of the fur market, it is anticipated that the offerings at the sale will bring full prices.

A letter has been sent to members of the National Canners' Association by its President, Henry Burden, calling attention to the fact that in instances where army and navy requirements do not absorb their entire pack, they are obligated to deliver in full future contracts made with the civilian trade.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

After an irregular opening and a brief period of uncertainty over the course of the money market stocks began to move forward yesterday under the influence of a vigorous demand which forced a considerable amount of covering by traders who had looked to see Tuesday's decline carried much further. The recovery was aided materially by the discovery that the Government had come to the rescue of the banks by making further advances to Great Britain and France, resulting in transfers of deposits in the member banks. The flurry in call money proved short lived, for the highest rate touched yesterday was 5 per cent., and renewals were made at 4 per cent.

An impetus was given the recovery in the steel and copper stocks by publication of a report from Washington to the effect that the Government had decided upon a price of $68 a ton for steel and 25 cents a pound for copper. While this report was unofficial and soon brought forth a disclaimer, it fitted in so nicely with the expectations which the financial district has held as to the prices which will be decided upon that it was generally credited. Those prices would be accepted as proving that the authorities at Washington have no desire to take advantage of their power to fix unreasonably low terms for the Government's buying and would reconcile stockholders to the infliction of heavy excess profits taxes.

Transactions yesterday again ran to more than a million shares, and there was evidence of scattered liquidation, but the slump which gained such headway in the previous session was abruptly halted by the improvement in sentiment. The professional element, which played a prominent part in depressing prices, was forced to change sides, and large purchases to cover their commitments on the bear side helped bring about a sharp upturn in the most active issues. Steel common early equaled its low price of Tuesday by selling at 104⅝, but from that point rose to 109¼, and closed the day at 107⅞, with a net advance of 3¼. Lackawanna Steel gained 3½, Republic 3½, and Midvale 1⅝. Crucible was an exception among the steel issues, closing an eighth under its final price of the previous day. Most of the rails shared in the advances, and the close of the market saw a striking reversal of form.

To what an extent the severe liquidation of Tuesday was due to technical conditions rather than an estimate of changes in the economic or war situation was evidenced by the fact that with the fundamental factors unchanged by any developments overnight the market nearly righted itself yesterday. It will be interesting to see if the level established by the recovery automatically shuts off outside buying orders again. Cotton shared in the improved sentiment yesterday, gains running from 10 to 20 points taking the place of the decline of $5 a bale shown at the close on Tuesday.

LONDON MARKET IS FIRM.

LONDON, Sept. 5.—Although the Russian situation was a somewhat unsettling factor on the Stock Exchange today, the tone of the market was generally well maintained with less business in the recent speculative favorites, but no weakness in prices. Rubber stocks, silver mines and Egyptian oils were the firmest, and gilt edge securities were steady, but Russian issues were easier and Americans declined in sympathy with Wall Street.

Money was plentiful and discount rates were quiet. The sales of Treasury bills last week amounted to £53,000,000, making the total outstanding £846,000,000.

Prices Weak on Paris Bourse.

PARIS, Sept. 5.—Prices were weak on the Bourse today. Three per cent. rentes, 62 francs 30 centimes for cash. Exchange on London, 27 francs 18 centimes. Five per cent. loan, 87, francs 95 centimes.

Convenience

The merchant who selects for his bank one that is located near his business gains three advantages: time is saved; risk of loss by messenger is minimized; he can more easily confer personally with the Officers of his bank.

In addition to its central location in the up-town wholesale district the Garfield National Bank,—a mercantile bank, strictly—offers to merchants a service especially adapted to mercantile needs.

FINANCIERS CONFER ON NEXT WAR LOAN

LEADING BANKERS ATTEND

Bond Issue Division Distributes 1,141,988 Certificates for First Loan to Value of $533,840,050.

The Liberty Loan Committee of the New York Federal Reserve District, which will have charge of the flotation of the second war loan, held its first meeting yesterday at the offices of the Federal Reserve Bank. It considered definite plans of organization for the next campaign, which is expected to begin on Oct. 1, and approved of the preliminary work done by the Sub-Committees on Distribution and Publicity. The general plan of organization contemplates the appointment of several main committees and several hundred subsidiary committees, the latter to be formed throughout New York State and parts of New Jersey and Connecticut.

To make room for the work connected with the flotation of the next Liberty Loan the transit, bookkeeping, and other departments of the bank, which have heretofore been quartered on the fifth floor of the Equitable Building, have been removed to 50 Wall Street, a vacant bank building which was used by the Liberty Loan Committee during the last campaign.

Yesterday's meeting was attended by Governor Strong of the Federal Reserve Bank, J. S. Alexander of the National Bank of Commerce, George F. Baker of the First National Bank, A. B. Forbes of Harris, Forbes & Co., G. W. McGarrah of the Mechanics and Metals National Bank, J. P. Morgan, Charles H. Sabin of the Guaranty Trust Company, F. A. Vanderlip of the National City Bank, and William Woodward of the Hanover National Bank. The only members of the committee absent were Jacob H. Schiff of Kuhn, Loeb & Co., who was represented by J. J. Hanauer; Seward Prosser of the Bankers Trust Company, who was represented by A. H. Markwald, and Albert H. Wiggin of the Chase National Bank.

Governor Strong Issues Statement.

At the close of the meeting Governor Strong, the Chairman, made the following statement:

"The object of the meeting of the Liberty Loan Committee held today was to ratify the work of preliminary organization which has been carried on under the direction of the Federal Reserve Bank during the past six weeks. It has been necessary to do a considerable amount of work along the lines of outlining distribution policies and reaching various sections of the district with a view to obtaining the best possible help in the next loan. It has been necessary to reach the magazines which are now about to appear with material emphasizing the need of saving for the next loan.

"While the exact date of the beginning of the campaign has not been announced, and we are not familiar with the amount to be raised and various other details, we feel that the announcement by Secretary McAdoo last week was the first gun in the new campaign. We know that the campaign will begin within a few weeks, and we know the amount to be raised will require the best efforts of all our committees and of the public who have generously offered to work with them.

"Our distribution and publicity organizations will be hard at work during the next few weeks, and any members of the public who are desirous of offering their services or who have any suggestions to make with regard to the next campaign are urged to communicate in writing with the Liberty Loan Committee immediately."

The bond issue division of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York has completed the issuance of interim certificates for the first Liberty Loan bonds to all subscribers who paid in full prior to Aug. 30, the date fixed for the payment of the last installment. This work was begun about the first of July and has run over a period of six weeks. The magnitude of the operation was indicated yesterday by the figures given out by the bank. These showed that more than 2,000 deliveries had been made up to the close of business on Aug. 23 and that the certificates issued amounted to $533,840,050. This included approximately 4,000 individual subscriptions filed with the bank.

Certificates.
362,703	100	36,270,300

In addition to distributing the full paid interim certificates, the Bond Issue Division of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York has countersigned and issued, to those desiring them, interim certificates showing the 20 per cent. and 40 per cent. installments paid, and has in turn received back these part paid certificates on the installment dates.

The delivery of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York's allotment of Liberty Loan interim certificates aggregating approximately $617,000,000 will be completed, as soon as the full paid interim certificates have been delivered to those subscribers who completed their installment payments on Aug. 30.

Under arrangements made some time ago, it has been possible for holders of full paid interim certificates, issued in other districts, to effect an exchange of their certificates for New York certificates through the Federal Reserve Bank here. To Aug. 28 there had been exchanged for New York certificates $33,231,500 par value of certificates issued in other districts. This exchange has necessitated an issuance of approximately 30,000 New York certificates in various denominations.

COMMODITIES MARKETS

WHEAT.

Little new development is expected in the wheat market, as prices are now fixed by the Government, which has also taken control of the distribution both for domestic milling use and for export. In the local cash market No. 2 red Winter wheat was quoted at $2.28; No. 2 hard $2.28, and No. 1 Northern Duluth $2.30, cost, insurance, and freight, New York.

The corn market was firmer, closing with net gains of 1⅛ to 2c. The rally in the stock market removed what had been a depressing influence, and Tuesday and prices responded to a more bullish feeling regarding the crop situation. In the local cash market No. 2 yellow corn was quoted at $2.24 and No. 2 mixed at $2.20, cost, insurance, and freight, New York.

OATS.

The movement of new oats from the country has so far been much smaller than had been anticipated, and consequently many who had taken the bear side in anticipation of pressure have been forced to cover. Furthermore, a steady export demand and liberal clearances have furnished a strong bull feature, and the market yesterday was firm, closing with net gains of ⅝ to ¾c. The local cash market was barely steady. Standard quoted at 69c; No. 2 white, 70½c; No. 3 white, 69 to 69¼c; No. 4 white, 68 to 69c; fancy clipped white, 72 to 74c; ordinary clipped white, 70 to 72c, all elevator.

PROVISIONS.

The market for hog products was again under considerable pressure, and prices were weak and lower. An early decline of 15 points in the hog market seemed to be responsible for the selling, and the trade was more or less exercised over the question of exports. Some strong interests bought on the decline, and, together with firmness in corn, brought about a partial rally, although final prices were still considerably below the previous close. Receipts of hogs at Chicago were 9,000; estimated for Thursday, 12,000. Kansas City received 4,000 and Omaha 6,000.

SUGAR.

The market for refined sugar was dull and unchanged at 8.40c to 8.50c for fine granulated. Raw sugar was quiet and without feature, the trade awaiting some definite developments at Washington. A press dispatch said: "Control of the sugar industry of the United States was placed voluntarily in the hands of the Food Administration by refiners' representatives, who agreed to import all raw sugars through a committee to be named by Herbert C. Hoover." At the close of the day Cuban raw sugar was available at 6c cost and freight, for prompt positions, but refiners held off awaiting further information as to just what the Government intended to do regarding control of the general sugar situation. Spot quotations were nominally steady at 7.02c for centrifugals; molasses, 6.14c, and cost and freight 6c.

COFFEE.

The coffee market was quiet again yesterday, with prices sagging off under comparatively small offerings. The market opened at a decline of 1 to 2 points and closed 3 to 4 points net lower. Sales were reported of 24,500 bags. The local spot market was comparatively quiet, with prices unchanged on the basis of 9¼ for Rio 7s and 10¼ for Santos 4s. Range of prices:

COTTONSEED OIL.

The market for cottonseed oil was nervous, with feverish fluctuations, which exemplified the mixed sentiment in regard to values. The action of lard seemed to be the principal dominating factor, however, and the easier tone of that market brought about a lower level of prices. Final prices were irregular, ranging from 5 points higher to 12 points net lower. Total sales for the day were 35,000 barrels. Range of prices:

EGGS.—Receipts yesterday, 24,295 cases. Receipts as reported include a good deal of stock received earlier in the week. There is a fair trade for prime to fancy qualities and for good value cheap eggs, but medium grades are slow and the offerings of all sorts appear to be sufficient for current needs. Tone of the market is steady and without quotable change. THE COTTON MARKET

Prices Make Net Gain of 10 to 29 Points in Sharp Rallies —Close Very Steady.

Although still lower prices were reached in the cotton market yesterday, the selling was not so active or aggressive as on Tuesday, and there were sharp rallies in the late trading. December contracts sold up from 20.57 to 21 cents and closed at 20.97, with the general list closing very steady at a net advance of 10 to 29 points. September contracts showed the maximum advance, with other months 10 to 13 points above Tuesday's final figures.

Reactionary sentiment was more or less in evidence from the start, owing to the extent of the recent decline, and there seemed to be comparatively few sellers after the break during the middle of the day. Weather and crop advices were considered generally favorable, including the weekly report of the Weather Bureau, but there were numerous reports from the South that farmers would not sell freely below the 20-cent level at interior points, and the rally was also influenced by the firmer tone of the stock market.

The market opened steady at a decline of 1 to 11 points under overnight selling orders brought in by the sensational weakness of the previous day. There was also Liverpool selling of December and later months. This was believed to be partly against further spot purchases in the South, but as houses with English connections were also buyers of October, part of it probably reflected a transfer of hedges from near to later deliveries. This directed attention to the fact that stocks of cotton here available for delivery on contract are showing little or no increase and after the first batch of selling orders had been absorbed the market steadied up several points on covering. It broke again after the publication of the weekly weather report, selling into new low ground during the early afternoon, with October touching 20.76 and January 20.45, or about 25 to 34 points under Tuesday's closing figure. Immediate selling pressure then appeared to have been pretty well exhausted, however, and the market advanced rapidly late in the afternoon on covering. The stock market was very closely watched during the day, but there was no confirmation of Tuesday's disturbing rumors, and the better feeling noted in stocks had a sympathetic influence on cotton, particularly as it was accompanied by rumors that the Government would fix liberal prices for the commodities which are now under consideration by the committees.

Exports for the day were 29,391 bales, making 396,275 so far this season, against 433,244 last year.

Market Continues to Drift Because of Delay in Fixing Prices.

Commenting upon the long delay in settling the steel price question, The Iron Age, in its number published today, remarks that this shows the magnitude of the Government's task. "The markets for pig iron, semi-finished steel and rolled products continue to drift," it says. "Indications of coming readjustments are chiefly those given by resale transactions, which are but meager basis for conclusions.

"The August pig iron statistics emphasize again the little success of blast furnace operators in the face of coke scarcity. The output was 3,247,041 tons, or 104,722 tons a day, against 3,342,438 tons in July, or 107,820 tons a day. New modern blast furnaces were started last month at five steel plants, yet with all this reinforcement production declines. Many furnaces were banked for days at a time for lack of coke.

"The course of the market in the interval of waiting for the heavy requisitions of ship steel for the Government is the immediate concern of makers and buyers. Some light is thrown on the proposal at Washington that the Entente Allies be given the same price on American steel as the Government by British market prices on hematite pig iron. Recently the British maximum home trade price was 122s. 6d., while the export price for France was 137s. 6d., f. o. b., and for Italy, 142s. 6d."

"Steel bars have been sold in large tonnages for shipment over the first half of 1918 on the basis of 3.50c Pittsburgh," The Iron Trade Review reports. "Plates are easier, as also are sheet bars, forging, and re-rolling billets and other semi-finished steel. The easier tendency in prices also is reflected to some extent in pig iron."

Lead Mining Industry Reports Gain.

The midyear report on the lead mining industry in the United States, issued by the United States Geological Survey, shows a slight decrease in domestic production of desilverized lead, but a slight increase in domestic production of soft lead, and a sufficient increase in production from foreign ores and bullion more than to offset the decrease in domestic production. The output of domestic desilverized lead other than soft lead was 152,231 short tons for the first six months of 1917, against 158,285 tons for six months of 1916, while soft lead production for the same period increased from 117,879 tons to 124,202 tons, and production from imported ores and bullion from 9,453 tons to 29,539. Most of the increase came from Mexico.

NO DEPOSIT WITH MORGANS.

Bolo Pacha, Said to be German Propagandist, Has Closed Account.

In reference to the cabled report that Bolo Pacha, who has figured in the German propaganda inquiry now being conducted in Paris, had a deposit with J. P. Morgan & Co. in New York, it was said yesterday at the offices of the banking house that a man of the name of Bolo Pacha had had an account there, but that it had been closed out some time ago, Mr. Pacha having drawn a check against it, which was duly paid.

According to the cabled reports, Bolo Pacha is connected with the former Khédive of Egypt, now in Switzerland, as head of the German propaganda.

PLANS TO CUT PRICES OF COAL FOR PUBLIC

Garfield Will Enforce Drastic Regulations—Supply to be Distributed Equitably.

MUST INCREASE OUTPUT

Warns Operators That We Must Supply Our Allies and at the Same Time Keep Factories Going.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—Drastic regulations of prices which the consumer will pay for coal will be the important feature of the program to be put into force by Dr. Harry A. Garfield, Fuel Administrator. In a formal announcement tonight he said that he would exert every effort to see that the public benefited directly, and that the coal supply of the country was distributed equitably.

Under the food control legislation Dr. Garfield is vested with full power to license retail dealers as well as operators, jobbers, and wholesalers, and he will follow that course, if conditions warrant it. His present plan is to appoint local committees throughout the country to investigate conditions. On the reports of these committees the retail price of coal will be fixed in all sections, and the committees will be asked to superintend its enforcement.

Dr. Garfield opened up large offices today and is getting his organization started. Pending a complete organization, he said, the prices fixed by the President both for bituminous and anthracite coal at the mines would be retained, and he suggested that contracts be made subject to revision. Operators who have protested against the price fixed by the White House are invited to submit their arguments in writing.

Claims by operators, miners, dealers and consumers are all to be given careful attention, Dr. Garfield asserts. He made no reference to the likelihood of adopting drastic measures, such as the commandeering of output, for the purpose of pooling and reselling, and it is understood that such a course will not be adopted unless efforts toward a voluntary agreement prove a failure.

Here is Dr. Garfield's statement:

"The task of the fuel administration is to secure the largest possible production of fuel at prices just to the producer and reasonable to the consumer.

"The coal situation is briefly this: The demand has vastly increased. It comes from factories and railroads, not from domestic consumers whose use is normal. Factories and railroads must be kept going and households must be kept warm and well fed, if the country is to be fit for its great task. We dare not forget that we are at war, and that the cause we have at heart depends, in large measure, upon abundant production and wide distribution of coal. We must produce all we can and distribute according to need.

"In addition to meeting the situation at home we must supply coal to our army and navy abroad and consider the needs of our neighbors, especially Canada, Cuba, and South America, and some of the Allies whose supply is inadequate.

"It is the purpose of the fuel administration to encourage production, to utilize, as far as possible, all existing agencies, to seek the advice of experts, and the co-operation of operators and miners, of industrial and domestic consumers, and of all who perform useful service in the production and distribution of coal.

"Until further direction, the following rulings will be observed:

"1. The President's order fixing prices became effective for bituminous coal Tuesday evening, Aug. 21, 1917, for anthracite coal Saturday, Sept. 1, 1917. The President's order includes export and bunker coal.

"2. The prices fixed are provisional. They will stand unless changed by order of the President for good cause shown. The fuel administration will examine all applications for revision of prices accompanied by cost statements, presented in writing. These statements should be verified and cover at least the years 1913, 1916 and 1917.

"If further explanation is needed, the fuel administration will ask complainants to appear in person.

"It is not proposed to require efficiently operated mines to produce coal at a loss, but the burden rests upon applicants to show that the prices fixed in particular cases are unfair.

"3. It will greatly expedite the work of the Fuel Administrator if associations, whether of operators, miners or industries affected, would postpone the holding of meetings for the appointment of committees to confer with the Fuel Administrator, or for the purpose of taking action concerning prices and wages, until he has had opportunity to select his advisers and heard from those who believe themselves likely to be adversely affected. Prompt attention will be given to all communications.

"4. Plans are under consideration and will soon be announced whereby production may continue without affecting adversely either the producer or the purchaser pending the examination of applications for revision of prices. Until this plan is announced, it is suggested that sales and deliveries be made at the prices fixed, with a stipulation to the effect that if prices are readjusted settlements shall be made accordingly.

"5. For the purpose of determining a proper basis for sales by retail dealers, local committees will be organized throughout the country. Each committee will investigate and report upon the local situation and advise concerning the regulations to be established. When the price is fixed, the local committee will be asked to superintend its enforcement.

"6. The Fuel Administration is preparing a plan of apportionment which will secure to domestic consumers their fair share of the coal supply and at prices which will reflect the prices heretofore promulgated by the President.

"Contracts relating to bituminous coal made before the proclamation of the President on Aug. 21, and contracts relating to anthracite coal made before the President's proclamation of Aug. 23, are not affected by these proclamations, provided the contracts are bona fide in character and are enforceable at law.

"The undersigned has requested the Federal Trade Commission to secure at the earliest moment possible a certified copy of all contracts held to come within the foregoing rule.

"H. A. GARFIELD,
"United States Fuel Commissioner."

It is understood that Dr. Garfield proposes to use to the full the powers given under the priority legislation to bring about a distribution of the coal supply that will make the storage of large quantities of fuel unnecessary and assure all sections of the country an adequate supply. Ex-Judge Robert S. Lovett, named by President Wilson to take charge of matters of priority, will cooperate with Dr. Garfield.

PUT SUGAR INDUSTRY UNDER GOVERNMENT

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—Steps to place the sugar industry under complete governmental control were taken today when the principal refiners operating in this country agreed to import all raw sugar through the agency of a National Sugar Committee to be named by Herbert C. Hoover, the Food Administrator.

The Food Administration, with the consent of the producers, has fixed the price of beet sugar for the present, at least, at $7.25 a hundred pounds. Later there may be readjustments. The two agreements, however, make it possible for the Food Administration, through the proposed committee, to dominate the situation and stabilize the world market.

"Representatives of practically all refiners operating in the United States were present at the conference at which the policies of the Food Administration for the control of the sugar situation in the United States during the war were outlined. There was an enthusiastic response from the refiners to the request made by the Food Administration for co-operation in carrying out the plans proposed. The refiners expressed their hearty willingness to follow the plans of the national body as a patriotic duty.

"The representatives of the refiners promptly ratified the plan to import all foreign sugar through the committee to be appointed by the Food Administrator. This sugar will be distributed proportionately to all refiners operating in the country.

"It is anticipated that all the allied countries will purchase their supplies through this same agency, which will virtually place the control of the sugar situation in the hands of this National Sugar Committee.

"The refiners' margin was not settled upon, as it was decided to postpone discussion of this question until after bills now in Congress affecting sugar have been disposed of.

"The next sugar conference called by the Food Administration will be with the producers of raw sugar in Cuba, and it is confidently hoped that a voluntary agreement can be reached for fixing a price for Cuban sugar for next year that will be satisfactory to the Cuban planters and the Food Administration."

"This arrangement," Mr. Hoover said, "will assure to the American consumer a fair and just price during the period of the war."

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Sept. 5.—The confirmation of George W. Perkins as head of the State Food Control Commission will be the first question to come before the Senate when that body meets at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. Although a majority of the Republican Senators were opposed to the appointment of Mr. Perkins on the commission, well-informed person at the Capitol is betting against a Senate ratification of the appointment.

Friends of Governor Whitman said tonight that twenty-two votes were already assured for the confirmation of Mr. Perkins. Only twenty-five votes are needed.

WOOL MARKET IS QUIET.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Sept. 5.—The wool market for the last week has been quiet. The demand is largely on lines of medium scoured South American wools for Government purposes. Considerable wools were sold for civilian purposes. Revision of wool prices for the benefit of the Government has presented many difficulties.

It appears as if the abnormal demands for cotton had passed. As the crop continues to make good progress, it is expected by some that before long the market may sag.

The woolen goods market is more inactive than for a long time. More Government buying recently has supplied enough orders for the industry to keep it in reasonable operation, making possible rather high profits and exceedingly high prices for merchandise.

The cotton goods market is beginning to show the effect of the lack of demand, as has been predicted for some time. If conditions continue as they are, there can be nothing else but a reaction in price for the great majority of cotton fabrics.

BUSINESS OF CHEMICAL CO.

In the annual report of the Virginia-Carolina Chemical Company, just made public, President S. T. Morgan remarks that the fertilizer consumption this year materially increased throughout the South, as a reflex of the poor cotton crop of the previous year, farmers learning thereby to fertilize much more liberally this year, with consequent increased business for the company and increased crops for themselves.

"The demand for fertilizers for the Fall seeding of wheat is probably as huge as, if not larger than, we have ever known it," the report says. "Every indication points to a consumption fully up to, if not more than equal to the supply. The prices will necessarily be high in comparison with previous years. The foreign exports by this company and its subsidiary companies, for some months past, have been largely cut off. Fortunately the domestic demand has been such as to enable us to take care of the business in a fairly satisfactory manner."

The business done during the year was the largest in the history of the company, amounting to $83,774,580, but much of this was due to increased prices, and the percentage of profit was relatively small, although the net earnings were the largest, also, in the history of the company.

SPEYERS ANSWER CRITICS.

Make Public Letter by J. W. Kendrick on Management of M., K. & T.

Speyer & Co. yesterday replied to the recent criticism of Receiver Schaff, of the Missouri, Kansas & Texas Railroad Company, in the controversy concerning the road's management, by making public a letter written them last May by J. W. Kendrick, defending his report and criticisms of Mr. Schaff's management, which precipitated the controversy, by drawing a reply from Mr. Schaff in the form of a letter to Frederick Strauss, of J. & W. Seligman & Co. In a statement accompanying the letter, Speyer & Co. state that copies of Mr. Kendrick's report were sent to Mr. Schaff, in the hope that he would profit by the suggestions and criticisms it contained, but since he chose to attack the report, they publish Mr. Kendrick's reply.

Mr. Kendrick, after going into Mr. Schaff's criticisms in great detail, illustrated with charts and statistical computations on the road's earnings, gross revenues, operating expenses, &c., declares that "we have in the problem of the M., K. & T. something very different from anything that I have heretofore encountered during a experience of some thirty years. The management of the road practically states that the prospect for future earnings is poor. The most discouraging feature that has come to my notice concerning the M., K. & T., is the fact that its management disbelieves in its increased earning power." Mr. Kendrick then states that his opinion is very much to the contrary.

GREATER USE OF FUR.

Not the least of the factors contributing to the present prosperity of the American fur trade is the large orders now being placed by the Government for coats, gloves, caps—aviation garments in particular—made entirely of fur or lined or trimmed with it. The large use of practically every kind of fur for trimming women's clothing also is no small item in increasing the sales of the fur trade, and added to this is the great quantity of fur that is being used by manufacturing furriers in the making of coats, muffs, stoles, capes, and other things on which fashion has put the stamp of approval. The sale of furs is further swelled by their increased use in collars on fabric coats for men, according to the New York Fur Auction Sales Corporation.

So good has been the general demand, in fact, that in spite of the practical inability of the European markets to take American furs, and the higher prices asked for them, most of them have been absorbed through the retail shops of the country. At the present time there is very large demand for muskrat and red fox at advanced prices, as well as for muskrat suitable for seal dye. White and blue fox also are in active demand, but the call for silver fox is only fair. The finer grades of wolf are bringing extreme prices. Among the more popular furs are fine Eastern mink and raccoon, especially for use in coats, and Northwestern skunk. A better demand is reported for opossum.

REAL ESTATE FIELD.

Harlem and Washington Heights properties were the principal factors in yesterday's realty market, which continued dull and inactive, from both a speculative and investment standpoint.

This condition was also apparent in the auction market, where every one of the ten parcels offered in the Vesey Street Salesroom, which included private dwellings, flats, and vacant parcels, located in Manhattan and the Bronx, went to the plaintiffs.

In the West Harlem section the estate of Theophile Kick, resold to an investing client of Sharp & Co., 8 West 115th Street, a five-story flat, occupying a lot 25 by 100.11, located just west of Fifth Avenue. The sellers acquired the property last week from the Sexton Realty Company in a trade for the Westdale Apartments, at 602 and 604 West 139th Street.

Further north, in Harlem's colored district, the New York Colored Mission, which recently sold its property at 223 and 225 West Thirtieth Street, purchased from Jennie E. Sampter, 8 West 131st Street. The property, which consists of a three-story and basement dwelling, on a lot 17.10 by 94.11, just west of Fifth Avenue, and abutting the Church of the Puritans, will be remodeled by the buyers for a day nursery. Richard Collins negotiated the sale.

Children's Aid Society Sells East Harlem Plot.

As a site for a new law tenement, David Lyon purchased from the Children's Aid Society the one and three story buildings, 2,225 and 2,227 First Avenue, on a plot 50 by 100.

This plot was originally bought for an institution by the Aid Society, but the plan was finally abandoned. Douglas Robinson, Charles S. Brown Company were the brokers in the transaction.

E. Lowenthal & Son, Inc. purchased from Benjamin J. Applebaum for investment 1,490 Lexington Avenue, a five-story tenement, on a lot 25 by 80. The property, which was held at $28,000, adjoins the Ninety-sixth Street Station of the new Lexington Avenue subway.

Operator Buys Heights Apartment.

Frederick Brown, operator, purchased from the Marble Hill Development Corporation 506 West 176th Street, a five-story, fifteen-family apartment house, occupying a plot, 43.6 by 99.11, located between Amsterdam and Audubon Avenues.

A. Gitterman negotiated the sale, the property being held at $50,000.

Buyers for Private Dwellings.

William H. Archibald sold for Annie R. and Ellen R. Jones the four-story dwelling 445 West Twenty-second Street to Helen Hartley Jenkins. This is the first transfer of the property in almost fifty years.

The Glenn Realty Company sold to the Bond and Mortgage Guarantee Company the dwelling 61 West Eighty-second Street, near Columbus Avenue, on a lot 19 by 102.2.

An investor purchased from Benjamin Steiner 149 West 120th Street, a three-story and basement dwelling, on a lot 19 by 100.11.

Bronx Sales.

In the Unionport section of the Bronx Martha Jensen purchased from Bertha Ring, a plot 24.6 by 103 feet, on the south side of Quimby Avenue, 180.10 feet west of Castle Hill Avenue.

The Middleboro Realty Company sold to Leo Kalmus 2,047 Watson Avenue, near Avenue C, Unionport, a two-story two-family house, on a lot 25 by 103. S. Engle and George Costar were the brokers.

Brooklyn.

I. Salzberg sold for the Connelly Investing Corporation to D. Brown for investment 5,312 New Utrecht Avenue, a three-story and store building, on a plot 20 by 100, seventy-six feet south of Fifty-third Street.

Louis Arnold sold 180 South Oxford Street, a three-story frame dwelling, on a lot 25 by 120, for Louis A. Haigh and William F. Haigh to Mrs. Badger for occupancy; also, 401 Clermont Avenue, a three and one-half-story brown stone dwelling on a lot 20 by 100, for Miss Lilla Scrymser to John P. McNulty for occupancy.

Long Island.

Sonn Brothers, operators and builders, purchased from the State Banking Department a farm of about seventeen acres fronting on Rockaway Avenue, near the old Aqueduct race track and the Howard Beach Estates. The property is part of the assets of Adolf Mandel, former east side banker, and was sold for $17,500.

G. Smart purchased from the Sage Foundation Homes Company a residence on the southwest side of Deepdene Road, 147 feet northwest of Upshaw Road, Forest Hills Gardens, on a plot 60 by 94 feet. The reported selling price was $15,000.

The Sheridan Construction Company has purchased seventeen lots at Belle Harbor from C. Brady. The property will be developed with Summer bungalows.

Recent Buyers.

The Rembrandt Realty Company has conveyed title in the two apartments at 1,460 and 1,468 St. Nicholas Avenue to the Joseph E. Marx Company.

Commercial Leases.

Pease & Elliman leased for the Schulte Cigar Company the northerly store at 293 Sixth Avenue in the property at the northwest corner of Sixth Avenue and Eighteenth Street to Blumenstock & Rosenberg.

Manning & Trunk leased the ground floor store in the building at 122 West Forty-fourth Street for a term of years to Frank Speicher. A restaurant will be opened on the premises.

The Charles F. Noyes Company leased the entire basement at 326-330 Broadway, containing about 17,000 square feet, for the Tower Manufacturing and Novelty Company to the Wynkoop-Hallenbeck-Crawford Company for a term of years.

Realty Notes.

The Board of Appeals has granted the application of the B. F. Keith's New York Theatre Company for the erection of a playhouse extending back 100 feet in a residential territory. The theatre is to be built on the northwest corner of Valentine Avenue and Fordham Road, recently sold to them through the office of Charles S. Kohler.

BELIEVE MRS. KING DIED BY ACCIDENT

MYSTERY OF SECOND WILL

Reported Discovered by Means, Who Could Not Benefit by Death of Mrs. King.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Sept. 5.—Mysterious circumstances surrounding the death of Mrs. Maude A. Robinson King, widow of James C. King, multi-millionaire philanthropist of Chicago, seem no nearer solution than they did more than a week ago, when she was shot to death at a lonely spot near Concord, N. C.

Gaston B. Means, her attorney in the East, was with her at the time, and at the inquest testified that Mrs. King was one of a party motoring to Blackwelder Springs for pistol target practice. According to his testimony, he had loaded and then unloaded two pistols and afterward reloaded them. He placed a small automatic pistol in the fork of a tree, warning Mrs. King not to touch it, as it was loaded. As he stooped over to get water from the spring he heard a shot and turned to see Mrs. King falling. The bullet had entered behind her left ear, and she died instantly, making no outcry and saying no word.

Other members of the party corroborated his testimony, and the Coroner's jury returned a verdict of accidental death, after which the body of Mrs. King was brought to Chicago and placed in a vault at Graceland Cemetery last Monday.

Mrs. King's brothers, William Robinson of Morrison, Ill., and Paul Robinson of Muskogee, Okla., and a sister, Mrs. M. C. Melvin of New York, were the only attendants at the cemetery. Mrs. Melvin and Paul Robinson have departed for their homes.

Means a Frequent Visitor.

Mrs. King, Mrs. Melvin, and their aged mother, Mrs. Robinson, with a large staff of secretaries and servants, had been living at the Chicago Beach Hotel since last November, but departed for the East six weeks ago. Gaston B. Means was a frequent visitor at the hotel during their stay there. His last visit, so far as known, was in July, when he returned to New York.

Jason Newman and Americus Melville, attorneys, represented Mrs. King in her legal affairs in Chicago. Mr. Newman was her personal counsel at the time of her death and Melville was her attorney at the time she succeeded in breaking the King will before Judge Walker in 1908, which netted her $1,000,000 from her husband's estate, instead of the $100,000 he had awarded her.

Newman, a member of the firm of Newman, Poppenhuser & Stern, refused to commit himself on the question as to how Mrs. King might have come to her death, but remarked that under any circumstances it would be strange for a person to commit suicide by shooting behind the left ear. His attention was called to the fact that there remained grave suspicion regarding the manner of her death, despite the verdict of the Coroner's Jury. He did not seem surprised, but dashed the murder theory by clouding the motive.

"I had been Mrs. King's counsel for the last five years," he said. "She never consulted me about her business, usually seeking my advice only on technical legal questions. I heard her mention an antipathy for firearms.

"It was several months ago—I will not say just when—that Mrs. King came to me about the discovery of a second will. She said she had known of its existence ever since the death of her aged husband, but it had never been located until Gaston B. Means found it among some papers in a desk in her New York home. Her friendship with Means grew up through her friendship for his wife, and he gradually came to be her business counselor and manager.

To Share in Its Benefits.

"Later Means called at my office and showed me the will. He explained he was to share in its benefits if it were proven valid, and I was instructed to prepare the case. My first step was to send it to five handwriting experts to pass upon its genuiness. All said it was bona fide. I cannot disclose its contents, except that it bequeathed to Mrs. King the residue of the estate. It was in Means's possession at the time of Mrs. King's death. He was to return it to me after submitting it to a Boston handwriting expert.

"Means had everything to gain by Mrs. King remaining alive and everything to lose by her death, as her property will now go to her heirs—mother, sister, and two brothers. Also, if they care to, they can attempt to enforce the second will and secure the balance of the estate, in which Means will not participate."

Attorney Melville said he did not believe Mrs. King killed herself.

"She had no reason for doing so, so far as I can see," he remarked. "During the time I acted as her counsel she never said anything about the existence of a second will. If she knew of it—and she must have known, if her husband told her of its existence before he died—it would seem that she would have told me.

"The residue of the estate consists of about $3,000,000 held in trust by the Northern Trust Company, out of which was built the John C. King Home for Old Men. If the will should be proven valid and the estate given to Mrs. King's heirs this would probably mean that the home would have to be abandoned."

On behalf of the relatives, William Robinson, a brother, at Morrisonville, made the following statement:

"We are convinced that my sister came to her death as the result of an accident. We have not even had a suspicion against anybody. So far as we are concerned the case has been closed.

"As for the existence of a second will, I did not even know of its existence. I will consult with my brother and sister, and we will see what can be done after we have secured the exact facts."

Persons familiar with the case consider it strange that Mrs. King kept silent regarding a second will for eleven years.

Accused of Stealing Two Pieces of Cloth Worth $72.

Benjamin Diamond, who gave his age as 29 years and his home at 300 Haven Avenue, a woolen merchant of 30 East Twentieth Street, waived examination in Yorkville Court before Magistrate Groehl yesterday on a charge of burglary, and gave $1,000 bail in cash. Diamond is charged with breaking into a loft on the fourth floor of the building where his own office is located and stealing two pieces of cloth valued at $72 from the garment company. Louis Abel, proprietor of that company, was the complainant.

Detective James Hayden of the Second Branch testified that he saw Diamond break into the loft from the rear fire escape, and later emerge with the cloth. He also presented an alleged confession by Diamond, giving as a reason "the circumstances I have been in lately."

You know Economy is one of the war-cries now; and so far as clothes are concerned, all-wool is its other name. You may serve your country by giving or saving; by fighting or farming; but not by depreciating good quality to make it cost less. It isn't saving anything to mix cotton with wool in clothing fabrics; it's waste; all-wool is the real economy.
